NEW BORROWING IN DECEMBER TO TEST U. S. CREDIT

727 Millions Needed for Refinancing.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—With government credit soon to be tangibly tested in the treasury's December financing, the entire business world is waiting in great suspense to discover whether the week-end conferences at Warm Springs have produced any change in the President's monetary policy.

Acting Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. will be back at his desk tomorrow from the Warm Springs discussions in which Mr. Roosevelt appraised the results of the dollar depreciation program up to date and the tremendous opposition to it that has welled up in the last week. Mr. Morgenthau's moves will be closely watched for signs indicating whether the President has been influenced by the opposition to modify his course in any respect.

Government Bonds Decline.

The steady decline in the quotations for government bonds since the President began hammering the gold value of the dollar downward by bidding up the price of gold caused Prof. O. M. W. Sprague, in resigning his treasury post, to warn the President against destroying the credit of the government and to predict that before the fiscal year is out, unless the policy be abandoned, it will be necessary for the treasury to issue greenbacks to meet government obligations.

The treasury now, however, is proceeding with plans for the December financing in the usual way. It will offer to the investing public government securities in the amount of 727 million dollars or more, chiefly to refinance $254,364,500 of ¾ per cent certificates and $473,328,000 of 4¼ per cent bonds falling due on Dec. 15.

Whether the government credit is or is not being impaired will be disclosed by the interest offered on this, compared with previous borrowings and by the amount of the subscriptions.

So far the government has been able to borrow at low interest rates because the capital investment market has ceased to exist and lenders have feared to loan to any one but Uncle Sam.

Does Most of Credit Business.

The government is doing about all of the borrowing and also about all of the loaning that is going on. The government is in the banking business; in fact, is the biggest bank of all, doing about one-tenth of the country's banking.

As a result of policies instituted by the government, the federal reserve banks, through purchases of government securities, have built up a vast reservoir of potential credit made available by excess reserves now totaling 850 millions, an increase of 250 millions in the last year.

But the reservoir of credit remains untapped. The failure to employ this available credit was the chief reason the reserve banks stopped buying government securities.

Since the President launched his dollar depreciation policy the member banks of the reserve system have reduced their outstanding loans from 8 billion 843 million dollars to 8 billion 557 million dollars. All bank loans in the country are only tenfold the government loans to state, municipal and private enterprises.

Four Federal Credit Agencies.

A survey of four government credit agencies which are engaged in making loans formerly left to private financiers—the Farm Credit administration, the Home Loan banks and the Home Owners' Loan corporation, the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and the Public Works administration—shows that they have $4,279,800,000 in advances outstanding to state, city or private enterprises other than relief work.

Almost the whole range of human economic activity is now dipping into government credit for its financial life-blood to some extent. A list of the purposes for which the four agencies listed above will make loans includes the building of homes, the raising of food, and the manufacture of industrial commodities.

Through these four agencies the government is financing the banks, the railroads, the farms, the manufacturers, the builders and the wholesalers of the country, at least in part.

San Jose, Cal., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—John M. Holmes and Thomas H. Thurmond, confessed kidnapers and slayers of Brooke L. Hart, 22 year old son of Alex J. Hart, wealthy department store owner, were hanged here tonight by a mob of 5,000 persons who overcame tear gas attacks and battered their way through the brick walls of the Santa Clara county jail. The kidnapers had demanded $40,000 ransom.

The slayers were dragged from their cells after the dozens of guards had run out of tear gas bombs and reinforcements of police and gas bombs rushed from San Francisco and Oakland had failed to arrive on time.

Dragged to Square.

Lynch law was resorted to hours after the mutilated body of the murdered victim had been recovered from San Francisco bay by two duck hunters, Leonard L. Dalve and Harold L. Stephens. All day long a crowd had milled about the jail, but it was not until after 9 o'clock tonight that the mob broke out of bounds and stormed the prison.

The slayers were dragged to St. James square, opposite the courthouse, and strung up to trees to the accompaniment of shouts from the mob.

The crowd beat and attacked the two terrified men when they arrived at the park. Shouting, they dragged them to the square and members of the mob looked around for a likely tree from which to string them up.

Holmes Seized First.

Holmes was seized first at the jail. He was dragged to the street and his clothing was ripped from his body. He was beaten and kicked. He was hustled to St. James square. Part of the mob kept surging through the jail until they had seized Thurmond.

He, too, was hustled quickly to the park. Ropes were placed over the necks of the two. The other ends of the ropes were tossed over tree limbs. The crowd pulled on the ropes. Within a few minutes Holmes and Thurmond had expiated their crime outside the law.

Swing from Separate Trees.

While the two men swung from separate trees in the historic park members of the Hart family drove by in an automobile.

Thurmond was hung from a tree at the south end of the park, while his companion in crime died from the end of a rope swung over a tree at the north end of the square.

"Don't cut him down, he's not dead yet."

Others shouted:

"How do you like it yourself?"

Nearly Hanged Wrong Man.

The crowd came near making a fatal mistake and hanging the wrong man. They mistook a prisoner in the jail for Thurmond and had dragged him into the street when they discovered the error. They sent him hustling back into the jail.

"You admit you're Jack Holmes and that you killed Brooke Hart?"

"I won't tell you anything," was Holmes' answer.

"Give me a chance," quavered Holmes. "Let me explain. I admit the kidnaping, but——"

Then he was interrupted by another blow which stretched him senseless.

Within another minute or so he had revived to feel the rope end around his neck.

Thurmond, frightened and speechless, was stretched up fully conscious.

The two were allowed to hang in the park for some time before they were cut down.

Police Make Last Stand.

When the men were taken from the jail Sheriff Emig attempted to organize his forces in an effort to rescue the prisoners from the mob. However, before he could act ropes were thrown over tree limbs in St. James square.

The prisoners were stripped of their clothing. Their bodies were covered with blood from head to foot. Thousands of men and women filled the air with their shouts and cries.

When battering down resistance to their entry to the jail the mob used fire hose to wet down the ground and lay the gas. They also turned the hose

5,000 Strike at Stockyards; NRA in Action

Three stockyards labor unions, claiming about 5,000 members, voted yesterday to go on strike this morning. The strike was virtually in progress the moment it was voted, for pickets were posted immediately. Officials of the Union Stockyards and Transit company asked police to detail men to preserve order in Halsted street outside the main entrance to the yards.

At 8 o'clock 300 stock handlers working on the night shift walked out on orders of their agents. The immediate effect of the walkout was discernible at midnight when between 200 and 300 farm trucks loaded with live stock clogged the inner gates waiting to be unloaded. Ordinarily the trucks are unloaded within a few minutes after arrival.

The strike is an attempt by the workers to force their employers to return to the 1929 wage scales, which would involve a pay increase of approximately 50 per cent.

NRA Labor Board Acts.

The strike action was followed quickly by efforts of the national board of the NRA to head off the walkout, which union officials predicted would tie up completely Chicago's great meat packing industry.

According to reports from Washington, Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], chairman of the national labor board, got on the long distance telephone in a personal effort to prevent the strike. Other members of the board said that Chicago packers had promised that they would negotiate with their employés, while union leaders had given the senator a personal promise that they would submit their case to the Chicago regional labor board before striking.

No Complaint to Board.

President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago is chairman of the board and Dr. John A. Lapp, recently appointed chairman of the labor board for the soft coal industry, is secretary. Dr. Lapp said last night that he had received instructions to offer his services as a mediator, but had received no complaint from either party to the wage controversy.

While the number of employés involved in the strike is a small percentage of the total of stockyards workers, their leaders assert that one of the three unions, that of the live stock handlers, includes virtually all of the men engaged in the vital activities of unloading, weighing, and feeding stock at the yards.

Minimizes Effect of Strike.

This claim was disputed by O. T. Henkle, general manager of the Union Stockyards and Transit company, which employs the live stock handlers. There are two unions of these employés, he said, and the one which voted to strike, local 517 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workers of North America, an A. F. of L. affiliate, comprises only about a third of the stock handlers.

The other union is local 1 of the Live Stock Handlers' union, which was organized during the world war by William Z. Foster, a fact which Mr. Henkle pointed out in disputing the charge of the A. F. of L. union leaders that local 1 is a company union.

"About four months ago," Mr. Henkle said, "professional organizers started to create dissatisfaction among the members of the old union. A new organization has been set up by the professional organizers and they have called a strike of their members.

"We met with our men Saturday, as we always have done, and such differences as existed were being ironed out in a manner satisfactory to all. The strike was called by the professional organizers."

"Big Three" Unaffected.

The other two unions which voted to strike, both locals of the "Amalgamated" and the A. F. of L., were local 187, the cattle and sheep butchers, and local 118, the cellar and cold storage workers. These two locals number about 4,000 members, their secretary, Joel Shoemaker, said, employed by small packing companies. The "big three" packers, Armour, Swift, and Cudahy, do not recognize the A. F. of L. unions.

John J. Cronin, secretary of local 517, the stock handlers, asserted that of 875 stock handlers in the yards, 800 are members of his union.

STATE WILL ASK HIS INDICTMENT ON PLOT CHARGE

Faces Arraignment in Court Today.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

In the company of Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty and police officials Wynekoop and his chum, Stanley Young, were taken by automobile to Lockport. There two attendants of a gasoline station identified them as the pair who stopped for tire repairs at 11:55 a. m. last Tuesday and left about an hour later. Their departure was two and a half hours before Rheta Wynekoop was slain.

Last night, after the return from Lockport, Earle was locked up at the defective bureau, where he was questioned for several hours. This morning he will be arraigned in felony court on a warrant charging him and his mother, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, with the murder.

Prepares to Ask Indictments.

Prosecutor Dougherty announced that he would go before the grand jury tomorrow or Wednesday to ask indictment of the mother and son—Dr. Wynekoop on the charge of firing the shot which the state contends killed Rheta and Earle on the charge of having advance knowledge of the mother's purpose and perhaps inciting her to the deed.

The prosecutor said he was resolved to have indictments voted before next Friday, at which time a hearing is scheduled before Judge Joseph B. David on a writ of habeas corpus for Dr. Wynekoop. The 62 year old woman physician is now in the county jail infirmary. Judge David transferred her from the custody of the police to the jail on Saturday.

"New Confession" Denied.

Reports of a purported new confession of 96 pages, in which Dr. Wynekoop allegedly admitted killing Rheta to free her son of a loveless marriage tie, brought a shrug of denial from Prosecutor Dougherty. No one, it was ascertained, has had access to the physician since she signed her admission of an accidental killing and was committed to jail.

"I wish it were true," the prosecutor remarked, "but we have no evidence that has not already been made public. The only 'confession' in our hands is Dr. Wynekoop's statement that she killed Rheta accidentally with chloroform, then fired a shot into her lifeless body to pin the death on a mythical robber.

"The only 96 page document I know of is a stenographic transcript of the questioning of the doctor before and after she signed her statement. In that transcript there are no facts not already published."

Young's Story Confirmed.

While the Lockport identification did not preclude the possibility of Earle's being present at the slaying of Rheta, it tended to confirm the story of Earle's alibi witness, Stanley Young, that the pair were driving towards Kansas City at the approximate hour of Rheta's death in the Wynekoop home at 3406 West Monroe street, Prosecutor Dougherty said.

Young, a nephew of former United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, had jeered at Earle's "confession" of the killing Saturday night and called him a liar. Young had cited the tire repairing at Lockport as the first corroborative incident of the alibi and yesterday's trip confirmed it.

The Ride to Lockport.

On the ride to Lockport Earle and Stanley chatted about the belongings in Earle's car, which he left in Kansas City when he started home by train last Wednesday night, 18 hours after the discovery of his wife's death. Deputy Chief of Detectives William V. Blaul and Police Captain Thomas L. Duffy accompanied Prosecutor Dougherty on the trip.

A crowd of 150 had gathered at the filling station, 12th and State streets, Lockport, before the party arrived. Deputy Blaul had telephoned ahead for the manager, Frank Capaul, and his assistant, Harry Hodges, to be present for the identification.

Both recalled Earle and Stanley stopping there for tire repairs. A Lockport restaurant owner, Mrs. Ellen

COURT REUNITES TWO BROTHERS, PARTED 31 YEARS

After 31 years of separation James J. Cook, a ranch owner of Lapoint, Utah, and his brother, William Cook, who lives at 5459 West 64th street, were reunited last week through the efforts of the Probate court. Yesterday James Cook was on his way to his Utah home, richer by $6,000, half of his mother's estate.

As related to Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge John F. O'Connell, James Cook came to Chicago last summer to visit the World's Fair. He had not seen his mother and brother since 1902 and began a search for them. From the records of the Probate court he learned that his mother died several years ago and that her $12,000 estate was held by the county until heirs could be found.

Cook was unable to find his brother and, believing him to be dead, he appeared before Mr. Caplan and claimed the entire estate. Mr. Caplan urged him to continue his search. Two days later Cook found his brother, living with a nephew.

James Cook, who is 77 years old, said that he would use his $6,000 to buy more sheep for his ranch. William Cook is 72 years old.

60 POUNDS WORTH $103,000; DANCER SUES FOR ARREST

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Mrs. Flo Bilkie, a dancer, thinks sixty pounds of excess flesh is worth $103,000. That is the bill she expects to present in Superior court tomorrow against a wholesale packing company which she has sued for damages for malicious prosecution.

She claimed that on Oct. 11, 1932, the company caused her arrest on a check charge growing out of the delivery of a bill to a café she owned. Prior to the incident, she said, she weighed 105 pounds, but the shock of arrest brought about glandular disturbances which increased her weight 60 pounds, injuring her career.

Royal Scot Train Stranded on Freighter Below Quebec

QUEBEC, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The locomotive and eight coaches of the famous Royal Scot train, which has just finished a tour of the United States and Canada, was en route to London today after being stranded at Traverse Point, 40 miles below Quebec, aboard the 6,000 ton freighter Beaverdale. The freighter was refloated on a rising tide.

Artist Zaiss Ends His Life After a Party

Harrison, N. Y., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Leonard C. Zaiss, 41 years old, an artist, a sculptor, and a world war aviator, committed suicide here at 7 a. m. today, after an all night gin party. He fired a bullet through his right temple, in the presence of his wife, Mrs. Lillian Ames Chatman Zaiss, in the bedroom of the house in Buckhout road which they bought from Ethel Barrymore six years ago.

Mrs. Zaiss, 40 years old, granddaughter of the late Gov. Oliver Ames of Massachusetts, and their two house guests, Charles Bateman, 43, an artist, of South Salem, N. Y., and his wife, Mrs. Ethel Bateman, were detained in the house by the police until a few minutes before noon. At that time Dr. Amos O. Squire, Westchester county medical examiner, said that the sculptor's death was clearly a suicide.

Sees Suicide Incentive.

"It seems to me," Dr. Squire said, "on the basis of what I have been told and the police report which I have read, that Mrs. Zaiss was a little bit jealous and began to berate her husband, providing the incentive for the suicide."

According to all the stories told the police, Mr. and Mrs. Bateman came here last night to dine with Mr. and Mrs. Zaiss. Gin cocktails were served with dinner, and after the meal the four drank gin and ginger ale until daybreak.

"About this time," Mrs. Bateman told the police under Acting Captain Robert P. Sullivan, "Mr. Bateman suggested I dance in the nude, which was agreeable to me, so I danced."

Sees Husband Enter Room.

Mrs. Zaiss, according to Capt. Sullivan, made the following statement: "I was so intoxicated that my husband had to help me to my bedroom. Mr. Bateman helped Mrs. Bateman to her bedroom, and after leaving Mrs. Bateman in her room Mr. Bateman went outside to get some air and have a smoke. From where I was lying I could see my husband going into the room where Mrs. Bateman was.

"I called out, 'Leonard, what are you going into that room for?' He came out of Mrs. Bateman's room after a few minutes and came back to my bed. I said to him, 'You are nothing but a dirty rotter.'

"Leonard said to me, 'You're right, Lillian, I am no damn good. What you said is right. I am going to end it all.'"

Shoots Self in Head.

She said he walked to a night table, took a .38 caliber automatic pistol from a drawer and fired a bullet into his head. It emerged from the left side of his head, crashed against a wall and fell to the floor. Mrs. Zaiss screamed and ran to the telephone to call the family physician, Dr. Robert Towse, who reported the shooting to the police at 8:15 a. m.

Bateman said he picked up the pistol and dropped it in his pocket, fearing that Mrs. Zaiss might pick it up. Later, he said, he realized that he should not have touched it and replaced it beside Zaiss.

The police said Mrs. Bateman told them: "Mr. Bateman took me to my room. I don't remember anything after that until I heard Mrs. Zaiss scream, 'Leonard has shot himself! Leonard has shot himself!'"

Frank Baska, a butler in the Zaiss home, told police he had heard Mrs. Zaiss cry out her husband had killed himself.

Steal $900 in Costumes of "Green Pastures" Chorus

Thieves broke a window in a motor bus parked in front of the Studebaker theater, 418 South Michigan avenue, last night and stole five suitcases of costumes valued at $900. The clothing belonged to members of the Hall-Johnson Negro chorus from "The Green Pastures" company, which gave a recital there yesterday.

Pastor Throws a New Light on Dr. Wynekoop's Character

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

As the police continued to delve yesterday into the slaying of Rheta Gardner Wynekoop, an even more baffling array of inconsistencies confronted them in the character of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, who has confessed that she fired a bullet into the lifeless body of her daughter-in-law.

There will be no dearth of evidence that "Dr. Lindsay" displayed an affectionate and concerned attitude toward little, red haired Rheta. The Rev. Canon David E. Gibson of the Cathedral shelter contributed yesterday one of the incidents tending to support these claims of Dr. Wynekoop. Canon Gibson was questioned about a letter of consolation written by him to Rheta and found in her effects. It was dated Sept. 20.

Recalls Writing Letter.

"Why, yes—I wrote the letter," Canon Gibson recalled. "To the best of my recollection, an elderly lady came to me here at the shelter and asked me to pray for Rheta Wynekoop, because she was physically miserable, and 'she worried about everything so.' I did not know the lady, but my secretary is confident that it was Dr. Wynekoop.

"So I said, certainly, I would have prayers said immediately, and I went into the chapel and had them said. I asked her whether it would help if I wrote a cheering note and sent her daughter a crucifix, and she was very much pleased and said she was sure it would. So I did write, and sent the crucifix, as I mention in the note, and hoped she was better."

"Then you did not know Dr. Wynekoop personally?" Canon Gibson was asked.

"I think I met her just once. She called and told me some one near to her had died, destitute, and would I help out? And I said of course, she mustn't think about money and that I'd be glad to officiate. So I went to the Berz undertaking chapel at 41 North Leavitt street and conducted the funeral services, but I don't remember who had died, as I hold funeral services there often.

"After the services Dr. Wynekoop herself came up to me and thanked me warmly for my assistance. That is my only recollection."

Inquiry at the Berz office revealed that the services were conducted for A. L. Hennessey, father of Miss Enid Hennessey, Dr. Wynekoop's school teacher roomer, and that the date was last May 11.

Letter from Stepmother.

A letter to Rheta from her stepmother, Mrs. B. H. Gardner of Indianapolis, date last March 5, contains these paragraphs:

"We were delighted to have an expression from Dr. Wynekoop as to her feelings toward you. However, we were never concerned about that, because with your good disposition and pleasing personality it could not be otherwise. We hope she is fully recovered by this time. We will acknowledge her letter at an early date.

"I wish you would write us exactly how you are—don't keep anything from us, as we feel that Dr. Wynekoop's letter must have been prompted by some concern about your condition."

Long, said her son had served them lunch while the tires were being fixed.

"Sure, I remember the incident clearly," Hodges told Prosecutor Dougherty and the police officers. "Wynekoop, here, was driving the car. They had a blowout on a rear tire and the spare tire also needed fixing. I remember Earle telling me not to let any kids near the machine, as he had a loaded .38 caliber pistol in the pocket of the car. I saw the pistol while rummaging for a tire tool."

A court reporter was at hand to take down Hodges' remarks, and the corroborative statement of his employer, Capaul. Prosecutor Dougherty was taking no chances that the impulsive Earle, who had "reënacted" the killing after his "confession" Saturday night and then admitted it was a hoax, might once more try to make himself the murderer when his mother goes to trial.

Young Offers to Go to Peoria.

"Well, where do we go from here?" inquired Young when the identification was over. "If you want more proof that his story was a hoax, we can go on down to Peoria, where he filed a telegram to his mother from a telephone booth, or to Quincy, where we stopped for dinner. I'm sure I can find the waitress who served us each a 70 cent meal at Quincy."

Prosecutor Dougherty indicated that no further corroboration was necessary and the party returned to Chicago.

Pending presentation of the case to the grand jury, Dougherty said, he will ask the police to make a thorough investigation of the deaths of four other persons who died under Dr. Wynekoop's care within the last four years.

DR. FRANK E. WYNEKOOP, 62 years old, husband of Dr. Alice, who died suddenly on Jan. 2, 1929, leaving her and her children an estate of $75,000.

MARY LOUISE WYNEKOOP, 22 years old, an adopted daughter, who died last March 12. Dr. Alice ascribed her death to heart disease, as she had the husband's, and ordered the body cremated.

AUGUSTUS L. HENNESSEY, 85 years old, father of Dr. Alice's lodger, Miss Enid Hennessey. Hennessey died last May 8, leaving a small estate to his daughter.

KATE M. PORTER, 67 years old, spinster friend of Dr. Alice, who died last Aug. 30, leaving her real estate to her brother and omitting reference in her will to a $2,000 joint bank account with Dr. Wynekoop, which sum the physician withdrew from the bank the day she had Miss Porter's body cremated.

Prosecutor Dougherty said he wanted a more thorough investigation of the circumstances surrounding the drawing of Kate Porter's will.

In presenting the case of Rheta's death to the grand jury the prosecutor indicated he would rely principally on another insurance angle, the fact that Dr. Wynekoop had procured a $5,000 double indemnity policy on Rheta's life on Nov. 11, less than two weeks before the young wife's death. Dr. Wynekoop first denied, then admitted getting the policy with herself as beneficiary, but averred that Rheta advanced the suggestion as to the beneficiary because Dr. Wynekoop had paid the premium.

Offer of Marriage Cited.

Mr. Dougherty will not rely on the monetary motive alone, however, he said. He will attempt to develop also, he said, the strong bond of affection between the mother and son, and the fact that the mother was aware of Earle's unhappy married life with Rheta. In this connection, it was said, the prosecutor might summon as a witness Miss Margaret McHale, the only one of Earle's sweethearts to whom he had revealed his marriage.

"We have established that he gave this girl a diamond ring, the same ring with which he had first pledged his engagement to his wife," said Dougherty. "We have Miss McHale's statement that he talked of his longing to marry her and even discussed the possibility of such a marriage with her parents, a suggestion which her parents rejected.

"We have already established the strong bond between mother and son, and can leave it to the jury to decide whether it was the motive of profit or the motive of misguided maternal love, or both, that impelled Dr. Wynekoop to commit this murder."

Prosecutor Dougherty is convinced, he said, that the murder was agreed upon between mother and son at the secret rendezvous they had on the Sunday afternoon before the killing, at which time Rheta and others in the household believed Earle on his way to Arizona. The difficulty, he said, is that neither Earle nor the doctor will admit anything but a discussion of casual subjects at the meeting, the doctor saying she merely admonished her son against using intoxicants on the trip, while Earle says the talk was only "about a job."

Dougherty Changes Plans.

With Earle definitely placed miles from the death scene as a result of the Lockport trip yesterday, Mr. Dougherty at first talked of dropping Earle out of the indictment picture altogether. Efforts to link him with the insurance plot had proved futile, the prosecutor conceded at that time, remarking that he "didn't know whether he would ask Earle's indictment at all." After conferring with Capt. John Stege, head of the police investigators in the case, however, Dougherty announced he would make the effort to have Earle indicted with his mother.

"Some of the circumstantial evidence against them is more inverse than direct," Capt. Stege said, "but the whole mass of it can be welded into what we regard as a convincing case of a mother killing her son's unwanted wife, both to gratify him and to save herself from poverty.

"Dr. Wynekoop has been able to give glib answers to many of the suspicious circumstances in the case, but in the 96 pages of interrogation we have developed five points which mother and son have found unanswerable. I believe that on these points alone an indictment of both is justifiable."

Stege Lists the Five Points.

Capt. Stege enumerated the five points as follows:

"1. Earle claims he left his gun and cartridges with Dr. Wynekoop on Nov. 11, the day Rheta's insurance was procured, only because he wanted her to have protection while he was away on his trip. Why did she suddenly need protection at this time, when all summer he had left her unprotected while he slept at a World's Fair scout camp?

"2. The doctor applied to two other insurance companies before getting the $5,000 double indemnity policy. Why did she get this insurance and pay the premiums when she was facing foreclosure on her home and had no funds to pay her servant?

"3. On the afternoon of the killing the doctor told Rheta to do the household shopping early; had Miss Hennessey go downtown to exchange some tax warrants instead of coming home from school, and canceled all consultations with her own patients. Why all these correlated arrangements?

"4. A week before the killing the doctor telephoned her next door neighbor, Mrs. Vera Duncan, called her to the back porch, and in a brief conversation told her she was "sending Rheta away on a long trip." Why this announcement to Mrs. Duncan unless she was plotting Rheta's disappearance and was already building up an explanation?

"5. After killing the girl she sat down at supper with Miss Hennessey, put a pork chop on Rheta's plate, and did not notify her daughter, Dr. Katherine, of the killing until she sent Miss Hennessey out on an errand. She and the daughter said nothing to the police, but notified two doctors and an undertaker, James Ahearn, the same who had cremated Miss Porter. When the undertaker suggested notifying the authorities Dr. Wynekoop expressed astonishment. Why the astonishment, unless she expected Ahearn to cremate Rheta as he had Miss Porter?"

Question of Bullets Cleared Up.

One important admission was gained from Earle before the Lockport trip, Capt. Stege announced, clearing up a hitherto puzzling circumstance of the killing. Whereas only one bullet was found in Rheta's body, Stege said, there were three empty cartridges in the gun, and no marks about the house to indicate where the other two bullets might have been fired.

"Earle now admits that in leaving the gun with his mother, he put two empty cartridges in the chamber," Capt. Stege said. "He claims he did this as a precaution against an accidental discharge of the gun, but we are inclined to think he did it to add one more confusing element to the case."

Defense Also at Work.

Dr. Wynekoop's attorney, Frank Tyrrell, was also busy gathering evidence, it was disclosed. He said he had discussed various phases of the medical evidence with surgeons and psychiatrists, and indicated the defense might first attempt a flat contradiction of Dr. Wynekoop's own statement, and if that failed, raise a question of sanity.

"I don't believe the doctor's statement to be true, even though it does exonerate her of murder," said Attorney Tyrrell. "I am still interested in exploring the possibilities of her original story, that a marauder came into the house, stole something and shot Rheta.

"We expect to show that the girl was of unsound mind. The family doesn't care to discuss it, but the fact is that the girl was peculiar.

"The skepticism the police profess regarding three burglaries the doctor reported before Rheta's death is unfounded. We can show that there were such burglaries and that after one of them Rheta claimed she stood in an alcove of the doctor's office, scarcely breathing while a burglar stole some drugs.

"There is undisputed evidence also that Dr. Wynekoop loved Rheta as her own daughter. If the prosecution should, by any chance, develop a circumstantial case indicating that the doctor killed the girl, then I think there must be alienists who can say that the killing was done by a person of unsound mind.

"The police story of the doctor's need of money is false and their theory that it was a killing for $10,000 insurance is ridiculous. We will be able to show that the doctor had a substantial income and owns property worth many times $10,000."

DOCTOR'S DAY IN JAIL

Dr. Wynekoop was wakened at 7 a. m. yesterday by the sound of a gong in the women's infirmary in the county jail after what she described as the first sound sleep she had taken since Rheta's death. She had been permitted to retire at 7 p. m. Saturday night, but spent the two hours until the lights went out reading the news of the case as she reclined on her cot.

During most of yesterday, according to Mrs. Clara Bauler, jail matron, Dr. Wynekoop reclined on her cot, dozing at times and occasionally discussing their problems with the three other prisoners in the infirmary. There were Catholic and Episcopal religious services in the basement, but Dr. Wynekoop expressed no desire to attend, according to the matron, although she is a member of the Episcopal church.

Late in the afternoon her sister, Mrs. Mabel Fairclee of Peoria, with her husband and another man appeared at the jail to visit Dr. Wynekoop. The assistant warden, Edward J. McDonald, refused them admittance, explaining the inflexible jail rule against Sunday visitors. When the relatives became insistent, McDonald said they were only putting him and Warden David Moneypenny "on a spot."

The party departed after leaving with McDonald a hand bag of clothing and a parcel of food for the doctor. Each wrote her a note announcing the call and saying they would return tomorrow, a regular visiting day. Whether they would be admitted then was questionable, Attorney Tyrrell having given orders that Dr. Wynekoop was not to be disturbed by any relatives for three days.

The doctor, according to Matron Bauler, betrayed no reaction and expressed no opinion on the Saturday "confession" by her son and his attempt to "enact" the killing as reported in the newspapers. She seemed quite content with the seclusion afforded by her white walled cell, the matron said.

CITY PROJECTS PROVIDING JOBS FOR 21,000 O. K.'D

Involve Annual Saving of $369,000 on Water.

Mayor Kelly announced yesterday that the federal civil works administration had tentatively approved city projects that will provide jobs for approximately 21,000 men now unemployed. Chief among the projects is to be a rehabilitation of Chicago's water system, putting 9,916 men to work, eliminating the loss of 200,000,000 gallons of water a day through leakage and saving the city $369,000 a year.

These projects are exclusive of the proposed plan of putting 10,000 men to work repairing some 300 miles of brick pavements. This plan is now under consideration by Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works. If it and those already tentatively approved are carried out, the city will have 33,000 men working on CWA jobs, 2,000 having been assigned last week.

To Reduce Pumpage a Fifth.

The water works project is intended to effect a vast improvement in the service throughout the city in addition to the saving that will result from a reduction in the necessary pumpage from the lake by one-fifth. The city now pumps one billion gallons a day, 200,000,000 gallons, or one-fifth of which is lost through leakage.

"The engineers estimate that the contemplated repairs and adjustments will reduce the pumpage by 200,000,000 million gallons a day during seven months in the year and greatly improve the service during the five other summer months," said Mayor Kelly. "There will be no more complaints about low pressure in certain residential areas, where in the past there has been no water above the first floors on some of the hot days. We hope to have the best service next summer that we have had in ten years."

4,526 to Repair Cap Shutoffs.

Formal approval of the plan to employ 4,526 men repairing and adjusting buffalo boxes, or cap shutoffs, has already been obtained from the civil works administration. Buffalo boxes are the devices by which the water is turned on or shut off at a building. They are covered by small circular plates at the surface of the ground, and sometimes become submerged and are damaged by freezing. The other water works projects were informally approved yesterday at a conference attended by Robert J. Dunham, CWA administrator for Illinois, his engineers and members of his staff, Mayor Kelly and the city engineers in the office of Commissioner Hewitt.

The men to be employed will repair or adjust the faucets and water closets in more than 300,000 homes in Chicago, or all homes which are charged a basic water rate according to frontage. The 100,000 meter consumers in Chicago use 300,000,000 gallons of water a day and the other 700,000,000 gallons goes to unmetered or frontage consumers, to the free consumers, such as parks, schools, hospitals, etc., and to waste.

To Replace Hydrants and Pipe.

The men on the new jobs will repair or adjust 90,000 buffalo boxes, replace 2,200 fire hydrants, replace 26,000 feet of 4 inch pipe with 8 inch pipe, remove all service pipes from buildings abandoned because of fire or other reasons, replace 1,500 obsolete meter vaults, replace 4,000 meters and recalk the joints in all mains where leaks occur.

The 9,916 jobs will be classified approximately as follows: Laborers, 6,512; plumbers, 2,619; clerks, 199; bricklayers, 233; clerk superintendents, 19; plumber foremen, 260; bricklayer foremen, 24; assistant engineers, 7; junior engineers, 39; draftsmen, 4.

The total cost of the waterworks improvements will be approximately $4,900,000, of which $1,234,000 will go for materials. The civil works administration will pay all the labor cost and one-half of the materials cost. In job projects under the CWA the government will pay one-half of the cost of materials if its share does not exceed 12½ per cent of the total cost of the project.

Other projects on which 11,000 men will be employed were discussed by the city and CWA officials at the conference yesterday and requisitions for these men will be sent out today. The city officials, it was reported, are confident of obtaining approval from the CWA. These 11,000 men will be put to work approximately as follows: Reforestation, 7,000; city nursery, 500; airport, 1,200; surveys, 48; shore protection, 1,200; playgrounds, 700.

The civil works administration announced yesterday that a total of 34,969 persons were put to work on CWA jobs in the 101 counties outside of Cook during the week. They earned a total of $485,730, or an average of $13.89 each. The low average was due to the fact that many went to work late in the week. The average daily rate of pay was about $5.

Total of 50,000 by Dec. 1.

The figures for Cook county had not been completed, but it was estimated that more than 25,000 went to work, including 8,598 new jobs that were created. These men were on relief rolls, but not work relief, while the others employed during the week had been on part time work relief.

By Dec. 1 a total of 50,000 men are to be transferred from the relief rolls to federal pay rolls in Cook county and after Dec. 1 50,000 unemployed men not receiving relief are to be given jobs. Cook county's share of the Illinois total of 187,000 under the CWA is 100,000.

Policemen assigned by Commissioner Allman were busy yesterday notifying 800 men on the register of the service bureau of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission that they are to report to work today. A total of 2,000 in this class, who are receiving relief but not working, are to be put to work during the week.

"These men can be reached only by messenger," said Allan R. Carpenter, director of the service bureau for men. "They all live in rooming houses or flats with no telephones. Commissioner Allman is doing a great service in assigning the policemen to us."

Morgenthau Leaves for Capital.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt and his acting secretary of the treasury, Henry Morgenthau Jr., today surveyed the complexities of the monetary situation.

With the President at the wheel of his open touring car, the two drove over the Georgia roads and discussed how best to meet the recent concentration of attacks upon the gold purchase program.

Morgenthau to Fly.

Immediately following the talk Mr. Morgenthau boarded a train which will bring him into Lynchburg, Va., tomorrow; thence he will fly the remainder of the way to Washington.

"We discussed treasury affairs," was all Mr. Morgenthau would say as he departed, but there was no indication of an amendment to the President's recently announced intention of standing by his present program.

During the ride, later in the day, President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Interior Ickes talked over the progress of the public works program, of which Mr. Ickes is administrator.

Johnson Extends Visit.

Though Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, continued his visit here, the President put off until next week the task of examining and signing the 25 codes which the administrator brought with him when he arrived here last Friday.

It was announced that though the hotel code would go into effect tomorrow, a ten day period of grace would be extended to hotels.

TWO GANGSTERS DIE, FIVE BULLETS EACH; FOUND IN DETROIT

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Slain in the manner of gangland, the bodies of Abe Axler, 34, Detroit public enemy and long known to New York police, and Eddie Fletcher, 33, identified with Axler in underworld activities here since 1926, were found early today in an automobile near fashionable Bloomfield Hills suburb, 23 miles from here.

The bodies were found in the rear of a car owned by Axler's wife by a constable, who saw the car parked on a lonely road, the front wheels off the pavement. An autopsy indicated the men had been dead 30 minutes. Each had been shot five times.

The victims and their wives occupied apartments at the same address in Detroit. Mrs. Fletcher said that early Saturday evening her husband had left the apartment after remarking, "I got to go out."

Both men were reputed members of the "purple gang" here and had been taken into custody for questioning on nearly every major crime in the city since 1926.

NEGRO GOES ON TRIAL 3D TIME IN NOTED CASE

Decatur, Ala., Nov. 26.—(AP)—In the same courtroom where eight months ago a jury sentenced him to death, Heywood Patterson, one of seven Negro defendants in the "Scottsboro case," tomorrow faces a new trial, with his life in the balance.

The seven, accused of attacking two white girls aboard a freight train, all have been tried, convicted, and granted new trials after death sentences.

Patterson was tried a second time here last April and sentenced to death. This verdict was set aside in June by Judge James E. Horton on grounds of insufficient evidence.

SANITARY BOARD HOPES TO GET U. S. LOAN THIS WEEK

$8,000,000 Will Finance Sewage Projects.

Officials of the sanitary district this week hope to meet the last of the government's requirements for an $8,000,000 loan so that work can be resumed on its sewage disposal projects. The $8,000,000 will finance the completion of work that was halted several years ago when funds were exhausted.

New contracts, embodying the requirements laid down by the Public Works Administration, must be entered into by the contractors and the district before the work can start. These agreements will then be approved by the local PWA officials and will be executed at a special meeting of the sanitary district trustees.

Hope to Start This Week.

"It's plug, plug all the time," Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the district finance committee, said yesterday, "but I believe we will clean up the job this week. The men will go to work the day after the agreements have been signed."

The five contractors who will resume the work on the sewage disposal projects already have money due them from the district. The contractors and the amounts due, a portion of which is not payable until the work is completed, are as follows: John Griffiths & Sons company, $12,114; Herlihy Mid-Continent Construction company, $18,455; Ryan company, $187,870, and W. J. Newman company, $509, all of Chicago, and the S. A. Healy company of Detroit, $274,452.

Applications on Way.

Two other applications for an additional $33,935,770 from PWA funds to complete construction of sewage plants in Chicago during the next two years will arrive in Washington by air mail today. Public Works Administrator Harold Ickes had requested the local advisory board on federal works to have the applications before him on this date.

One of the applications is for $4,690,000 to complete four sewers on the west side. The other, for $29,245,770, will finance treatment works. Joshua D'Esposito, engineer for the local advisory board, told district officials that an engineering survey would be made of the projects before any money would be allocated.

SHOT BY BANDIT GANG; FOUND DEAD IN MEAT MARKET

Six hours after he was shot by bandits, Frank Naga, 35 years old, was found dead early yesterday in the basement of the Fair Deal meat market, 263 North Crawford avenue, where he worked as a porter. His body was found by a janitor who went to fire the furnace. The robbers took $15 from Anthony Cascio, the owner of the market. When he moved as if to resist they opened fire and one bullet hit Naga, who is believed to have been climbing the basement stairs. No one knew he had been shot until his body was found.

SHOOTS SELF AT FIANCEE'S HOME.

Mishawaka, Ind., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Francis Hupp, 20, who fired a shot into his chest, is in a critical condition in the hospital here. He was found on the doorstep of his sweetheart's home.

SOME ONE HAS TO FIX GOLD PRICE; WHY NOT U. S.? MOLEY ASKS

Santa Barbara, Cal., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Replying to critics of the Roosevelt monetary policies, Raymond Moley, former assistant secretary of state in the President's cabinet, asked this question today:

"Some one has to fix the price of gold; why shouldn't it be the United States?"

"For years the Bank of England has fixed the price of gold and no one ever howled. Now that the President has decided to have the United States fix the price, why should there be any objections?

"There were to complaints when England was forcing its pound down from $4.86 to $3.25, thus pushing the dollar up. Why should there be complaints now that President Roosevelt has forced the pound back up, regaining the international trade that was being diverted to Great Britain by the decline of the pound?"

Henry Hoyt Hilton Jr., 28 years old, son of the chairman of the board of Ginn & Co., educational book publishers, married Josephine Wilson Cothran of Glencoe yesterday in Waukegan. The ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace Henry Wallenwein.

Hilton and the young woman, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. James A. Moore of Glencoe, first appeared at Justice Wallenwein's home at 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning. The justice refused to perform the ceremony then, telling the party to return later. They returned at 8:30 a. m. and the ceremony was performed.

Hilton's father, reached at the family residence at 5540 Woodlawn avenue, said he had not been informed of the marriage and that he did not know his son's bride. Mrs. Moore, asked for details of the marriage, said she had nothing to say.

Young Hilton was divorced a few years ago in Cambridge, Mass., from Mrs. Agnes Holt Hilton, whom he married while he was a student at Dartmouth college.

START HEARING TODAY TO SOLVE MILK PROBLEMS

Consumers to Give Views for First Time.

Chicago's highly controversial milk marketing code will be thrown wide open for discussion and revision today at a public hearing conducted by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. It opens at 9:30 o'clock this morning in the north ballroom of the Stevens hotel.

The hearing, which will give Chicago consumers their first real opportunity to present their side of the milk argument, finds nearly every party to the present code, or marketing agreement, charged with violating it. In addition to the charges of price cutting, of which the AAA has taken cognizance, the "big four" dairy companies and the Pure Milk association, known as backers of the code, have also been charged with breaking the code they are fighting to retain.

Charges Violation by Dairies.

Don R. Geyer, manager of the Pure Milk association, charged a few days ago that the big milk companies are not living up to the amendment to the agreement, made effective Nov. 1, to forestall a threatened strike by the farmer producers of his association.

The dairy companies, under that agreement, agreed to increase their milk purchases by 500,000 pounds a day, using the milk for the extraction of cream to replace cheap cream they had been buying outside the Chicago milkshed, principally in Wisconsin. The companies have not kept their promise to make these additional purchases, Geyer charged.

On the other hand, AAA authorities have received charges that the Pure Milk association itself is breaking the agreement. The agreement provided that the additional base [high priced milk] quotas made possible by the additional purchase of 500,000 pounds a day could be distributed among farmers already members of the association or to new members.

Assert Quotas Are Exceeded.

It was provided, however, that new producers were to be given a base of not more than 40 per cent of their production. That meant that the other 60 per cent of their milk production would have to be sold at the low surplus price, based on the value of the milk for butter making. It is understood, however, that solicitors for the association are offering prospective members base quotas as high as 80 per cent, in violation of the agreement.

Jerome Frank, a former Chicagoan, who is now general counsel for the AAA, will arrive this morning from Washington to conduct the public hearing. Several Chicago clubwomen are expected to testify to the consumer attitude toward the milk agreement, particularly regarding the much discussed differential between cash and carry and delivered milk prices, which is not permitted by the present code.

Any witnesses who wish to appear, it has been announced, should give their names to the chairman of the hearing at the opening of the session.

Mayor to Warn of Watered Stock.

Mayor Kelly will also make a brief statement at the hearing, probably this morning. He said yesterday that he would confine himself to a recommendation that any amended agreement provide a fair return to the farmers and to the labor which handles the milk, but that sufficient information be collected to assure that the middlemen do not make excessive profits in the form of dividends on watered stock or otherwise.

It has never been possible to determine the margin of profit of the big milk distributors because the amount of their capital investments has always been a closely held secret. Two of the companies are family owned and the other two are units in the country-wide Borden company.

Recently the AAA, through an audit of the companies' books as well as those of the many small dealers who are parties to the milk agreement, got this information. Whether it will be made public at the Chicago hearing has not been announced. It was reported yesterday, however, that the large companies may not be averse to this.

Expect Move for Simplification.

Some time during the present hearing, it was predicted yesterday, the suggestion will be made that the present complicated milk code, with its burdensome problems of enforcement, be scrapped in favor of a much simpler one which would merely set a maximum price to be charged to consumers and a minimum price for farmers, with some form of production control similar to the present base surplus plan to curb overproduction and leave the other matters now governed by the code to be settled by the forces of competition.

A statement threatening a milk price war unless the code agreement is strictly enforced was issued yesterday by O. B. Black, president of the Chicago Milk Dealers' association. This association is composed of smaller milk companies. They are all in sympathy with the code, although not all of them signed the Nov. 1 amendment to it, Mr. Black said.

"One hundred and twenty-five dealers, members of the Chicago Milk Dealers' association, are fighting to keep their business against a group of chiselers who have little investment to lose," Mr. Black said.

"In case the code breaks down the result will be disastrous to the farmers and labor, but before we lose our life savings in plants and equipment we must adopt the same methods as our cut price competitors, without regard to the economic welfare of producers or labor."

The last statement, Mr. Black admitted, was a threat to go into the cash and carry business, buying milk at whatever price farmers will accept, if the government fails to put the present cut rate dealers out of business.

Conducts Hearings

[Acme Photo.]

U. S. Promises Thorough Inquiry.

A press release by the department of agriculture at Washington, when the date for the hearing was set last week, indicated that the Chicago investigation of the milk situation is to be a thorough one.

The hottest fight at the hearing, it is expected, will be over the desirability of cash and carry milk. It was price cutting incidental to such sales that led Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, on Thursday, to revoke the licenses of three Chicago independent milk dealers, the Edgewater, Lake View, and Wagner dairies.

In this connection it was pointed out yesterday that while the AAA "cracked down" on these violators of the milk code, supposedly because of the threat of the "big four" companies to scrap the code if immediate steps were not taken to enforce its price fixing sections, no action has been taken against a fourth company which is doing business in the same manner as the three violators, and which has been closely allied with them in the controversy.

That concern is the Crescent dairy. One reason advanced for the tardiness of the AAA enforcers in dealing with the Crescent company has been that it is in federal court receivership. Were the secretary of agriculture to attempt to put it out of business, the probable disposition of the federal court to protect the assets of a company of which it is custodian would give a very direct, and perhaps unwelcome, test of the legality of the whole marketing agreement.

COMMITS SUICIDE BY JUMP.

Ottawa, Ill., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—The body of Frank Connett, 60, of Earlville was found lying behind a silo at the La Salle county farm this morning. He had climbed to the top of the silo and jumped.

ECONOMISTS KNIT BROWS; 3 NATIONS ARE PROSPEROUS

South Africa, Lithuania, Finland Pace World.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Economists are speculating on the good fortune of three small unrelated countries that are enjoying real prosperity while the rest of the world is still painfully emerging from the depression.

The three are Finland, Lithuania and South Africa, the first two of them poor countries even in the best of times. Reliable reports reaching London show that all three not only are prosperous but are building on sound foundations.

Finland's foreign trade has risen 50 per cent since last year—a fact that puzzles observers here since none of Finland's Scandinavian neighbors has achieved similar success.

Gold Flows to Lithuania.

The case of Lithuania is even stranger for this little peasant republic is the only country in eastern Europe where an effective gold standard still functions. As a result Kaunas is becoming the banking capital of the Baltic states and is spreading the profits of its banking business over the whole country.

The recovery in South Africa as seen in London is the result, first, of the government's wise measures to control gold mining at a time when the price of gold is soaring, second, of the drastic restriction of output with which the diamond industry has been pulled up from stagnation in a little more than a year, and third, the new British tariff which has given South African fruits a preference in the rich British market.

Japan's Boom Inflationary.

If it were not for the severe drought that has destroyed crops and threatened thousands of farmers with ruin this winter South Africa's cup of plenty might be overflowing.

The list of prosperous countries could be enlarged to include Japan, but the Japanese boom is inflationary and in the opinion of most observers here is doomed to collapse. Palestine, too, has been prosperous, but the land boom there is petering out.

Even Australia, where recovery has made great strides, is prosperous only by comparison with the desperate conditions of three years ago.

ACTRESS, FOOTBALL PLAYER, 2 OTHERS DIE IN AUTO CRASH

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Four persons, including Gladys McClure, actress, known in motion pictures as Linda March, and Bruce Tarver, reserve right guard of the Stanford football team, were killed today in an automobile collision near Broadway, Cal., on the Bayshore highway.

Dorothy Karr, Stanford freshman student, daughter of Frank Karr of Los Angeles, and Albert D. Racey, 28, San Francisco salesman, also were killed and seven others injured.

Police declared the accident occurred when a motor car driven by Racey toward San Francisco after a Stanford big game victory celebration crashed into a car driven by Don Tatum of Los Angeles. Seven persons were in the car driven by Racey. Officers said all were catapulted to the pavement as the car shot into the air, turned over, and caught fire. The other three killed were in Tatum's machine.

Miss McClure, sister of Adrienna Ames, screen actress, made her home in Beverly Hills with her mother, Mrs. Flora McClure. The mother said her body would be sent to Los Angeles for burial.

HUNT 3 TOUHY GANGSTERS FOR MAIL ROBBERY

Three Chicago gangsters allied with the Touhy gang of kidnapers and gunmen are being sought by postoffice inspectors in connection with a big mail robbery at week ago in Charlotte, N. C. The men were reported to have been identified from rogues' gallery pictures.

Those hunted by the federal agents are Tommy Touhy, Frank (Porky) Dillon, and Marton (Ice Wagon) Connors. Tommy is a brother of Roger Touhy, who is on trial for the Hamm kidnaping in St. Paul. Connors is a fugitive. Dillon, who has a long record involving robbery with a gun, at least one murder charge, and is said to have been prominent in the Capone gang, has dropped from sight for the last two years.

In the robbery in Charlotte four men carrying machine guns halted a mail truck early in the morning in the downtown area and escaped with loot estimated at more than a quarter of a million dollars. Federal officials placed the loss in the neighborhood of $100,000. It was said the loot was in new $5 bills.

BOSTON RIOTERS PROTEST TALK BACKING HITLER

Boston, Mass., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Six men were arrested and several received bruised heads tonight as police charged a crowd of more than 5,000 persons who gathered in the vicinity of Ford hall to protest a speech in support of Chancellor Adolf Hitler by a German professor.

A large detail of police had established lines around the hall after the crowd surged up Beacon Hill calling "Down with Hitler! Down with Nazism!" and otherwise attempted to disrupt the meeting where Dr. Friedrich Schoenemann, professor at the University of Berlin, spoke on "Why I Believe in the Hitler Government."

A youth broke through the lines, grabbed the bridle of a policeman's horse, and attempted to dismount the rider. The crowd pushed on after him and then a phalanx of police closed in with swinging clubs. The crowd retreated as several heads were banged, but not before several officers had been struck with fists.

Superintendent of Police Martin H. King, who took personal charge of his forces, said it was the worst demonstration in Boston since the Sacco-Vanzetti riots some years ago. He said five of the men arrested would be charged with disturbing the peace.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

The address of James McGlynn, arrested Saturday for the slaying of a friend, was incorrectly given yesterday as 1903 Blue Island avenue, the home of Mrs. Frances Hais. McGlynn, police said, lived in the building at 1900-6 Blue Island avenue.

The family of Lyman T. Crossman, 7640 Saginaw avenue, deny the implication in an item in yesterday's TRIBUNE that Crossman ran away from the scene of an accident involving a car he was driving. According to the family, Crossman was injured and dazed and was taken to a doctor's office and then home.

10,076,000 U. S. UNEMPLOYED IN OCTOBER: GREEN

Labor Leader Warns and Also Shows Optimism.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Unemployment in the United States, calculated by the American Federation of Labor from government and union figures, reached 10,076,000 in October—an increase of 11,000 over September, which William Green pronounced exceptionally small for this time of the year.

Despite the large number of jobless, and while giving warning that wholehearted coöperation of the citizenry will be needed to keep the number from growing much larger through the winter, Green today reported a substantial number of favorable factors.

Some Hopeful Factors.

These he listed as:

Average wages increased slightly from September to October, amounting to $1.20 a month, or 1.4 per cent.

Cost of living rose only ½ of 1 per cent, slightly reducing the individual worker's loss of real income since March, bringing this down to 1.1 per cent.

Dollar buying power of workers in October was $600,000,000 per month above March.

The union reports on employment showed that in the first part of November 21.8 per cent of the membership was out of work, instead of 21.7 per cent the month before.

Some Employment Changes.

Layoffs—75,000 on farms; 45,000 in canneries; 7,000 on railroads; 10,000 in hotels and laundries.

New employment—125,000 in wholesale and retail trade; several small amounts in other industries.

In November 13 cities reported employment gains, one no change, and ten growing unemployment.

Taking the combined government and union figures, Green said:

"Both these records indicate that the NRA program is keeping the employment situation under better control than is usual at this time of the year.

"Only once since the depression began has unemployment failed to increase by at least 450,000 from September to October; the one exception was last year with its October business increase. In November, trade union reports have always [since 1928] shown an unemployment increase often the increase affected at least 1 per cent of the membership or more.

"The effort of employers to keep their men at work, even if only on part time, is indicated by union part time figures which have shown an increase in part time work in both October and November. The number of union members on part time has risen from 20 per cent in September to 21 per cent in October and 22 per cent in November."

The figures on total unemployment for September, October and November in the last four years show [last three ciphers omitted]:

|---|---|---|---|---|
| September | 4,150 | 7,303 | 11,767 | 10,065 |
| October | 4,639 | 7,778 | 11,586 | 10,076 |
| November | 5,364 | 8,699 | 12,008 | ..... |

List Passenger Totals in Exposition Period.

All time railroad passenger traffic records were established in Chicago during A Century of Progress. This was disclosed yesterday as World's Fair statisticians began compilation of reports submitted by the city's railroads.

The previous peak year here and for the nation was 1920. Railroad officials are convinced the record of that year will be surpassed by that of 1933. Although roads not operating in Chicago have made no reports, it is assumed that they felt the surge of business here in feeding passengers to lines entering Chicago.

Seen as World Record.

Chicago's preëminence as a railroad center gives assurance that the records cannot be approached elsewhere in the world, railroad officials assert. Compilation of the records will be completed at the close of the year.

Among reports presented to Fair officials is that of the New York Central lines, listing 652,147 passengers to the city in the period from May 27 to Oct. 31, exclusive of the last days of the Fair. The Michigan Central railroad brought in 292,461; the New York Central, 227,172, and the Big Four, 132,514.

To handle this number of visitors 3,228 regular and 1,307 special trains were operated. An average of 144 passengers per train was maintained during the period. One single train, the Exposition Flyer, in eight sections, brought 2,024 passengers on July 2. This train brought 64,821 passengers during the entire period.

September Peak Month.

In the entire period of the Fair the Chicago and North Western railroad brought 668,000 visitors. Passenger Traffic Manager Robert Thomson reported September as the peak month with 148,000 passengers.

In the same period the Illinois Central railroad brought 273,354 visitors. The railroad operated 6,203 coach and chair cars and 3,418 Pullman cars. In its suburban division the road broke all previous records, with 19,328,743 passengers, or 7,406,000 in excess of normal traffic. The peak day was Oct. 3, during the American Legion convention, with 215,734 passengers.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad has submitted figures thus far for the period between May 27 and Sept. 30. These show 183,982 passengers in 10,419 cars, an average of about 1,500 a day. In addition the railroad had more than a million suburban passengers in the same period.

Baltimore and Ohio Figures.

W. G. Brown, passenger traffic manager of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, reported 135,471 incoming passengers during the Fair period. The railroad operated 850 regular trains, 79 special trains, and 154 extra sections.

Passenger Traffic Manager W. J. Black of the Santa Fé railroad reported 180,000 passengers during the Fair. The railroad used 1,690 extra coaches, 1,260 extra Pullmans, 121 special trains, and 3,700 extra employés.

TWO KIDNAPERS AND SLAYERS OF HART LYNCHED

At 11 o'clock the policemen were grouped on the second floor making what was apparently a last stand.

When some of the crowd had gained entrance to the lower corridors of the jail they were halted by a heavy inner steel door. With a steel battering ram they began hammering at the brick wall.

Ready to Join Mob.

Indication that inmates of the jail were ready to join the mob came when two men called from the third floor: "We'll bring 'em down to you!"

Twenty-five men gained entrance to the jail shortly before 1 o'clock [Chicago time] by battering down the brick wall. Within two minutes the crowd had reached the third floor and was reported outside of Thurmond's cell.

From that time on the mob was complete master of the situation and completed its work in short order.

The two slayers had been scheduled for arraignment this week on charges of murder and kidnaping. A new California law carries a death penalty or life imprisonment without parole.

"Lesson to Country," Says Governor.

Sacramento, Cal., Nov. 26.—(AP)—When Gov. James Rolph was advised tonight the slayer-kidnapers of Brooke L. Hart had been lynched in San José he said, "This is the best lesson that California has ever given the country. We show the country that the state is not going to tolerate kidnaping."

STORY OF KIDNAPING

Chronology of the Hart kidnaping follows:

November 9—Brooke disappeared at 5:55 p. m. after leaving Hart Department store. Telephonic demands for $40,000 ransom put through to Hart home at 10:30 p. m. Call traced to a San Francisco hotel. Young Hart's car found two miles from San José country club at midnight.

Nov. 13—Hart family, breaking four day silence, issues direct appeal to kidnapers to open negotiations.

Nov. 15—Hart Sr. announces receipt of numerous communications purporting to come from persons holding the youth. Some believed bona fide. He issues second direct appeal to kidnapers, asking evidence of good faith on the part of negotiators, proof that communicators are holding his son and pleading for boy's safe return.

Seized in Phone Booth.

Nov. 16—Thomas H. Thurmond and John M. Holmes arrested. Thurmond was seized while telephoning to the elder Hart that if the $40,000 ransom was paid the youth would be returned alive. Questioning by police brought the confession from Thurmond, who implicated Holmes.

Holmes was taken in a San José hotel. Both confessed to slaying Brooke on the San Mateo bridge and throwing the body into the bay shortly after kidnaping him. Admitted ransom demand. Gathering mob of San José citizens, inflamed by confessions of pair that they planned the murder deliberately before kidnaping Hart, causes officials to rush Thurmond and Holmes to San Francisco in fear of lynching.

Nov. 22—Federal grand jury indicts Thurmond and Holmes on charges of using the mails to extort and conspiracy to extort. San Francisco police turn prisoners over to sheriff. They are returned to San José county jail, where precautions against possible mob violence are taken.

Identification Is Made.

Nov. 26—Body of Hart found in the bay near the Alameda county shore, one mile south of the bridge head, by duck hunters.

Final identification of body made by Louis Rossi, manager of men's department of the Hart store, who declared he had sold young Hart all of the clothing which still clung to body.

"He bought this suit just a few days before he disappeared," Rossi said as tears came into his eyes. He broke down completely.

Charles O'Brien, chum of slain youth, also identified suit and said Brooke was wearing it the day he was kidnaped "because he was going to get his picture taken."

ASKS RICH INDIAN PAY COST TO HELP HIM KEEP CASH

Guarding Red Man's Money Expensive to U. S.

Muskogee, Okla., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Rich redmen of the five civilized tribes may be asked to bear a share of helping them keep their millions.

About 150 of them are in the big money class. More than $27,500,000 that came from oil is on deposit with the Indian agency here. And the ways the Indians find to spend it has cost Uncle Sam money and trouble.

"The government has already spent many thousands of dollars in helping protect the wealthy Indian from his white brother, who misses few chances to swindle him," says A. M. Landman, superintendent of the five civilized tribes, who has recommended that these oil kings and queens be assessed part of their money to help meet the expense of handling it.

"The wealthy Indians should pay for this protection or properly safeguarded trusts should be created," he says.

Since oil came and lavish spending began, the names of Exie Fife, Katie Fixico, Eastman Richards and others have been continually in the courts.

Eastman, who owns a town of 200, Richardsville, is reputed to have spent $250,000 in legal adjustments arising from his marital affairs. He once paid $100 for concession space at a fair for a hamburger stand. He didn't sell any hamburgers; he just wanted a place to eat.

As in the case of Exie, "poor little rich girl of the Creeks," the government has stepped into divorce and alienation suits in which she was involved.

For years, Katie Fixico, who once spent $200 for ribbon at a ten cent store to make a dress for a tribal dance, has sought in the federal courts to have herself declared competent so she might spend her money as she pleased. Recently she was named in a $50,000 alienation of affections suit.

13 HORSES KILLED, WATCHMAN SAVED IN JUNK SHOP FIRE

Thirteen horses were burned to death last night when fire attacked a one story junk shop and stable at 130 Swann street. Eight other horses were saved by neighborhood residents. A Negro watchman, James Bates, 63 years old, was slightly burned.

The fire, started supposedly by a carelessly tossed cigaret, swept rapidly through the structure. Before help could arrive thirteen horses had perished. Firemen under Lieut. Arthur Dressall saved Bates. Damage to the place, owned by H. Lipsy, was estimated at $2,000.

It was the second junk shop fire in 20 hours. The first, at 2415 Lake street, caused the deaths of Chris Miller, 49 years old, and John White, 38. Three other men—all five lived on the premises—were severely burned. They are John Greenberg, Alexander Jeske, and Walter Konowich. Fire officials were investigating this fire last night.

PROMISES TO GIVE CITY ITS WAY ON LIQUOR CONTROL

Senator Ward Pledges Aid to Mayor's Plan.

On the eve of the reconvening of special session of the Illinois general assembly, called to tackle the problem of liquor control legislation, Mayor Kelly was given assurance last night that no assault would be made on home rule for Chicago and other municipalities. State Senator Harold C. Ward, chairman of the liquor control commission, which is seeking the enactment of control legislation by the assembly told the mayor that he would fight any move to curb local control of the problem.

In a conference with Mayor Kelly the senator quieted fears that efforts might be made to take liquor out of municipal hands and give it to the state. Although there has been talk of a state license and a permanent state liquor commission, which would take liquor completely out of local hands, Senator Ward said he would fight such amendments to the bill.

Gives Cities More Power.

In the interval since the adjournment of the session of the legislature last week, occasioned by lack of attendance, the liquor law draft has been revised. The changes, however, are of a minor character, Senator Ward said, and in fact broaden the scope of the bill to give more complete power to municipalities.

Mayor Kelly said the assurance given by Senator Ward would speed the adoption of the city control ordinance now being drafted so that it can be adopted by the city council before Dec. 5, when prohibition ends.

"Chicago wants to handle this problem for itself in an orderly manner that will make the new liquor régime successful," Mayor Kelly said. "This is possible only under home rule. It is my belief that state domination would not be for the best interests of order and temperance.

Insists on Home Rule.

"The state should, of course, tax liquor. It should also lay down general regulatory principles. But the handling of liquor should be left to the municipalities to dispose of as they see fit. The community is the best judge of temperance promotion."

The mayor's ordinance is to be presented in draft to the council tomorrow. It is expected it will be referred to the council license committee for revision. The mayor hopes the revised ordinance will be returned to the council for adoption before Dec. 5.

Horner Opposes Mayor's Stand.

The mayor's stand in ordering preparation of the control ordinance has been opposed by Gov. Horner. The governor insists there must be state legislation on intoxicating liquor before municipalities can enact regulations.

"There can be no power in municipal governments except by legislative enactments," Gov. Horner said. "Since there is no state law, municipalities are powerless to act. Every effort should now be concentrated to enact a state statute of regulation. Without such a statute, every city, village and town, I am convinced, is powerless."

In opposing the governor Mayor Kelly takes the stand that under general police powers municipalities have the power to make such regulations as they deem necessary. He has the support of a number of legal authorities.

The special session of the legislature faces a problem in obtaining a quorum to pass a control law. With the lack of attendance last week as an indication it is predicted that no final statute will be enacted before Dec. 5.

Seize Mother for Kidnaping Child

On Way to Sweden

Seized when she alighted from a plane at the Municipal airport with her 5 year olds son, Mrs. Ingeborg Seaburg Mainquist, 34 years old, of Red Oak, Ia., was being held at the detective bureau last night on charges of contempt of court for kidnapping the boy from her divorced husband.

Police yesterday received a telephone call from the sheriff at Red Oak, asking that the mother be arrested on the two charges to prevent her intended journey to Sweden. It was said she had left Red Oak in an automobile, but intended to transfer to a plane at the nearest possible point. She left three letters to her former husband.

Sergt. James McGurk called the various air transport companies and learned the time of the arrival of the plane on which she was believed to be a passenger. Detectives Michael Sullivan and Robert Woodward went to the airport and found her in a ship from Omaha, Neb., with its next scheduled stop Cleveland. The blonde, blue-eyed mother had registered the child as "Jerome Johnson."

Bandits Take Possession of Suburb Business Area

Six bandits took possession of the business district of the suburb of Berkeley, southwest of Chicago, on Saturday night while they robbed two stores in the village. While one of their number remained at the wheel of their automobile and a second stood guard nearby with a shotgun, the other four robbers took $35 in the General Merchandise store and $70 and a radio from Samuel Collins, owner of an adjoining grocery.

MEDICAL SCHOOL STUDENTS OF N. U. PROTEST MERGER

Open Letter to Trustees Points Out Dangers.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Students of the Northwestern university medical school last night issued an open letter to the Northwestern trustees in protest against the proposed merger with the University of Chicago.

The letter, which, according to its sponsors, represents the unanimous opinion of the 600 students of the Northwestern medical school on McKinlock campus, was drafted by a group of leading senior students. It asserts that the merger would "gravely endanger the position which Chicago is reaching as the medical center of the world." It offers "facts which every trustee must weigh carefully before he dares to assume the responsibility of a vote which will plunge Chicago from this position."

Compare Medical Schools.

It is then pointed out that the future of the city as the leading medical center lies in the quality of its five medical schools.

"Four of these schools," the letter continues, "have achieved world-wide renown, not only because of the research work conducted by them but also because of the manner and method of teaching, which affords the student the opportunity to learn the accumulated scientific knowledge of the past and, what is far more important, to participate in the research on which all progress in medicine is based."

These four schools are then described by the students as being taught by men "who give an hour or two a day of their ever widening clinical experience. They teach living medicine, the fruit of their experience, born of the application of their knowledge, combining theory with its practical use."

On the U. of C. School.

Contrary to this method of instruction, the fifth school of medicine in the city, the medical school of the department of biological sciences at the University of Chicago, proceeds on a different plan of instruction, according to the letter.

"The men teaching medicine [at the University of Chicago school] are not engaged in private practice," the students point out. "Their clinical experience of necessity is limited, and thus the students are deprived of the greater value which can only be brought by the progressive experience of the man who has the opportunity to apply his knowledge in every day practice."

The students then explain their understanding of the effects of the merger on medical instruction. Two of the medical schools, Rush and Northwestern, they say, are scheduled to be merged with the medical school of the University of Chicago.

See Peril to Research.

"At present in these schools, operating independently, a wealth of research work is going forward," says the letter. "In each of the schools the buildings devoted to this can hardly accommodate the number of scientists engaged in this work. Under the merger plan all research is to be confined to buildings on the midway, which are crowded now. It would be a physical impossibility to accommodate more than one-third, or at most one-half, of the number of men now so engaged. Chicago's contribution to the advancement of science would be reduced to a fraction of what it is today."

The letter closes with an appeal for every Chicagoan "to protest against such a merger plan."

Among the leading senior students who signed the letter are George L. Malson, 523 Fullerton parkway; John Martin Jr., Alpha Kappa Kappa fraternity; W. S. H. Tousey, Phi Beta Pi; Randall G. Sprague, Henrotin hospital, and Andrew Rueb, Phi Chi fraternity. The letter will be addressed to the Northwestern university trustees, who will meet tomorrow night.

After visiting her mother at the Washington Boulevard hospital Saturday, Miss Dorothy Hazel Moline, 28 years old, 41 South boulevard, Oak Park, ended her life in the lake because she feared her unemployment was making her a burden. This was the opinion of Sergt. Charles Reynolds of the coroner's office yesterday after the missing girl's body was found off the foot of 54th street.

727 Millions Needed for Refinancing.

The four and a quarter billions it now has outstanding is not the end. Other millions still lie in the federal land banks, the home loan banks, the public works fund, the RFC, or the treasury, earmarked for such lending.

Nor does the four and a quarter billion include other millions which the government has spent or will spend for relief. Nor the two billion or more dollars which the public works fund has merely turned back to other federal departments, such as the navy for construction work.

Four and a half billion dollars of federal money and credit is now engaged solely in oiling the wheels of exchange, building homes, financing crops, buying steel or building civic improvement which four years ago were cared for by private credit from banks, mortgage companies, or similar institutions.

Why has the government become within four years the largest banker in the country, the lender of one dollar out of every ten now engaged in commercial or industrial activity?

Uncertainty Halts Credit Flow.

The answer, department of commerce and treasury department reports show, is a shrinkage in private credit accommodations through fear or uncertainty.

Railroads have not floated an issue of equipment trust certificates in more than a year, the records of the interstate commerce commission show. In three years offerings of such certificates, which are an index to the steel purchases and employment by railroads, have been especially scant.

With the railroads unable and unwilling to borrow funds through normal channels with which to carry on their construction and improvements, the government has had to step forward and invade another field of private credit. Equipment trust certifications, which used to be sold on the open markets of the country, are now being taken by the public works administration and the RFC as the basis for loans.

The government is advancing the money formerly obtained from private investors. Early in the life of the NRA the demand for more liberal credit from banks for industry was heard. The NRA requirements were raising the costs of operations and industries unable to finance the higher costs out of earnings or surpluses would have to borrow until such a time as earnings would meet increased expenses.

Banks Refuse to Take Risks.

Bankers, as represented by the federal reserve advisory council, said they could not take risks with depositors' money. The future of business earnings of finances and of monetary policy, the bankers said, was too uncertain. The RFC after announcing that it would finance business directly if banks did not do so, started encouraging the formation of community mortgage loan companies.

Groups of industries in need of credit can band together into such a company and borrow from the RFC. The commercial financing operations of banks were thus practically cared for through a government sponsored system which disregards the banks.

The Home Owners' Loan corporation and the home loan banks are financing home mortgages. The home loan bank system, in addition, has begun the building of homes. As life insurance companies and other sources of construction credit contract, the home loan banks are forming a system of federal savings and loan associations through which home owners and prospective home builders may borrow from the home loan banks.

Approximately 94 million dollars in loans for home mortgage and home building purposes is now outstanding from the corporation and the home loan banks.

Under Public Works Administration.

Construction loans are concentrated in the public works administration. Here cities and states are able to use their bonds as collateral for federal loans without the recourse to public flotations which were the previous method of obtaining funds. Railroads are followinz the same procedure. Housing construction is being fostered by similar loans and by direction expenditures through a new housing corporation.

On state, local, railroad, or housing construction alone, the PWA has advanced $513,381,796.

The RFC has been a hodgepodge of government lending. It was the first of the emergency agencies to be created, it has outstanding $1,792,100,000 in loans, which are similar to those formerly made by private lenders. These loans are to banks, railroads, farmers, farm marketing associations, self-liquidating construction projects and industry through mortgage loan companies.

Extensions of farm credit by the government far outweigh all others. The loans outstanding from the farm credit administration aggregate more than those outstanding by any other government credit agency lending for purposes formerly left to private enterprise.

In addition to the $1,870,444,217 which the FCA has loaned to farmers, farm marketing groups, and farm mortgage institutions, the RFC still has on its books loans to agriculture which it made before the creation of the FCA.

Nab Chicago Youths After They Wreck Stolen Auto

Ray Renolds and George Phillips, both 19 years old, who gave their address as 7464 Greenview avenue, were arrested near Kenosha, Wis., yesterday after they had wrecked an automobile which they later admitted they had stolen in Chicago. They are being held for federal authorities for transporting a stolen car from one state to another. The youths wrecked the car in trying to drive away from a gasoline station without paying for fuel and oil.

SAYS ACHESON DOUBTED GOLD PLAN LEGALITY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—(AP)—The Washington Post says that "hitherto undisclosed legal opinions" involving the government's gold buying plan shed new light on the recent resignations of Dean Acheson, undersecretary, and Dr. O. M. W. Sprague, financial adviser, of the treasury.

Acheson, the paper says, submitted a memorandum during the absence of Secretary Woodin holding that the plan of letting the RFC buy gold would be of "doubtful legality."

At about the same time, the paper reports, Stanley Reed, RFC general counsel, said that language in the recovery act that the RFC "may sell on a discount basis short-term obligations payable at maturity without interest" permits the corporation to exchange its short-term notes for gold.

Attorney General Cummings prepared for the President a special opinion on the legality of the plan, upholding Reed, but that opinion has not been made public.

The Post attributes to Acheson a memorandum citing the same language from the recovery act as was quoted by Reed and adding that congress contemplated the issuance of RFC obligations should be used only for revenue purposes, for giving the corporation means of raising funds for lending purposes.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES

TO BE A FOOTBALL REFEREE

M. J. ("MIKE") THOMPSON, FAMOUS FOOTBALL REFEREE

IF YOU WANT TO SEE nerve strain, look at "Mike" Thompson's job — refereeing two tons of football brawn, seeing every detail, but never getting in the players' way. "Mike" Thompson has been a steady smoker for years. "I'm open-minded on cigarettes," he says, "but I've got to keep my nerves in shape, so I stick to Camels."

HOW ARE YOUR NERVES?

TRY THIS TEST

Fasten one end of a short string to a finger ring. Have a second person hold string at arm's length above shoulder. The test is for you to make a full-arm swing downward and up . . . and try to put a pencil, held 3 inches from the point, through the ring. Good performance is being successful once in the first 3 tries.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

M. J. ("Mike") Thompson, football's most famous referee, has to keep his nerves healthy. Listen to what he says:

"Refereeing football never was an armchair job, and it is more of a strain than ever in this day of 'open' play. It takes healthy nerves—and plenty of wind, too—to cover the field . . . and stay on top of every fast-moving, deceptive play during sixty minutes of fighting football. Because nothing can be allowed to interfere with healthy nerves I smoke Camels. I have tried them all—given every popular brand a chance to show what it can offer. Camels don't upset my nerves even when I smoke constantly. And the longer I smoke them the more I come to appreciate their mildness and rich flavor."

✱ ✱ ✱

Many smokers who have changed to Camels report that their nerves are no longer irritable . . . "jumpy." Switch to Camels yourself. Smoke them steadily. You will find that Camels do not jangle your nerves or tire your taste.

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. Camel pays millions more—for your enjoyment.

U. S. EASY MONEY LIGHT PLANT AID, KNOXVILLE GOAL

City Votes Authority for Bond Issue.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Knoxville is going after easy money in a big way. By the small vote of 5,129 to 2,560, the city yesterday decided to grant power to issue $3,225,000 bonds to be used in building a municipal lighting plant. The power the municipal supporters hope, will be obtained from the Norris dam on the Clinch river, one of the largest of the Muscle Shoals developments.

This brings up a curious question of economics. Since the collapse of the Rogers Caldwell-Luke Lea financial empire in this and surrounding states, Knoxville has been in serious trouble. Business and banking were hard hit and the city's money tied up. The total debt of Knoxville already is in excess of $26,800,000. There is only 120 million dollars assessed property in the city.

City on Warrant Basis.

The city has for more than a year operated on a system of warrants or scrip with which it pays its employes and local bills and the tax collections have steadily fallen off until they now represent a delinquency of about 30 per cent. Tax receivables amount to $3,000,000.

City officials admit they have no hopes of undertaking the new financing except through a loan from the federal public works board, where it hopes to be given a loan and grant with the bonds accepted at par. These now sell at about 70 cents on the dollar.

Drastic electric rate reductions and perhaps total elimination of the street railway will probably be resorted to by the Tennessee Public Service company, the National Power and Light subsidiary serving Knoxville, if it meets competition from a municipally owned electric system.

Appeal for T. V. A. Support.

The question of municipal ownership hardly entered into the appeals to the voters during the intense campaign and was hardly considered by them. The campaign was based upon an appeal for support to the Tennessee Valley Authority and was so considered by the voters in their personal conversations and public expressions.

The question of municipal ownership arose out of the activities of the T. V. A. in Knoxville and its vicinity. The Authority has made Knoxville headquarters for its operations.

The appeal was made that the Knoxville plant, regardless of the economics involved and regardless of whether the plant would be successful, should be built out of loyalty to the President's program and as an expression of appreciation for the T. V. A. activities.

Large Orders Are Cited.

During the 10 days immediately preceding the election the T. V. A. released inquiries and orders to a large number of local dealers, manufacturing concerns, and manufacturers' agents for material and supplies, and the proponents of the bond issue made vigorous use of the volume of business being done by the T. V. A. The large pay roll was mentioned.

Tennessee Public Service company publicly expressed its willingnes to negotiate with the Authority for the use of T. V. A. power by means of the existing distribution system, but its offer was lost sight of in the appeal to support the President.

The present rate charged for residential lighting service is 60 cents per month plus five cents per kilowatt hour, with optional and lower schedules for residential customers using additional service. The commercial lighting service is under a general rate schedule of a fixed plus energy charge form averaging 4.9 cents per kilowatt hour.

No City Rates Proposed.

The city has fixed no proposed rates. There was, however, a report of an engineering firm employed by the city which recommended use of the rates the T. V. A. has promulgated. This report claimed the rates were one-half the private utilities' rates.

The present company has an existing investment in its electric business in Knoxville and vicinity and in the street railway system of approximately $13,600,000.

The city's engineers estimated that the city owned distribution system can be built for $3,225,000, which system they claimed will exactly duplicate and parallel within the city limits the existing privately owned system. Other competent engineers have questioned the estimate as being entirely inadequate.

The Tennessee Public Utilities company is understood to plan to continue operation of the electric system, the franchises under which it operates being perpetual. The transportation system has been partially supported for some time by electric operations and failing this support it is not self-sustaining and cannot be continued in operation.

LAWYER SHOT DEAD AND WIFE WOUNDED ON BROOKLYN STREET

New York, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Aaron Scherwin, a lawyer of 60 Wall street and his wife, Charlotte, were returning to their home in 14th avenue, in Brooklyn tonight, when a man stepped from the shadows of a nearby building, aimed a pistol at Scherwin and fired four times, killing him.

As her husband fell to the pavement Mrs. Scherwin screamed. The gunman then turned the gun on her and fired, the bullet striking her in the neck.

Neighbors of the thickly populated section, hearing the shots, rushed to the street. They found Mrs. Scherwin only partly conscious. Her assailant had fled. Police were summoned and the wounded woman was taken to a hospital, where her condition was declared not critical.

Questioned briefly, Mrs. Scherwin could ascribe no motive for the attack. She said that she and her husband had been married only a short time and that as far as she knew he had no enemies. They lived in an apartment, in one of the most fashionable residential sections in Brooklyn.

SAUNDERS, CHAIN STORE MAN, IS BROKE AGAIN

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Clarence Saunders, who twice dotted the country with chain grocery stores—then lost the millions they made him—has come to the end of a third venture.

Saunders announced today that his store would not open tomorrow, that its stock and equipmen. was for sale to pay creditors, all of whom he said would be protected.

In a four column newspaper advertisement, the former small town grocery clerk and millionaire said adherence to the NRA had increased his costs so much the company's reserves were weakened.

"I'm not blaming the NRA or anybody. I am simply stating facts," the ad said.

"I do not decry the laudable purpose behind the NRA program," it continued, "but I do remark that it is more fitted for those organizations with large reserves who are able to stand the pressure till prosperity actually comes, than for small businesses which can stand just so much and then finds itself out of business before the realization of more trade and increased profits, sufficient to offset the added expense of NRA regulations.

BERT ARNOLD, BOY SLAYER, TO ASK A PAROLE TODAY

Bert Arnold, 17 years old, slayer of Mrs. Ellen Saxe, mother of his stepmother, has completed serving the minimum period of his one to fourteen year santence in the Pontiac reformatory, and his case will be presented to the parole board for the first time today at Pontiac.

Arnold, a Riverside high school boy, beat Mrs. Saxe to death in their home and threw her body into a cistern on Nov. 18, 1932. It was one of the outstanding mystery crimes of the year. The family first believed Bert had been kidnaped by the slayers. He was later arrested in Stockton, Ill., and confessed he had killed Mrs. Saxe in an outburst of temper.

He became B-1383 upon entering the reformatory last Dec. 8 and has been employed inthe tailor shop ever since the end of the three month quarantine period. O. H. Lewis, general superintendent of the institution, said Bert's behavior had been satisfactory.

The executive session of the board of pardons and paroles, at which a ruling will be made on Arnold's case, will be held about the middle of December in Springfield. Eighty-three other inmates' cases will be considered today by the subcommittee meeting at Pontiac.

SHOT BY SON-IN-LAW.

Anderson, Ind., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Earl Turpin, 45, was shot twice today and seriously wounded by his son-in-law, Berl Baldwin, 33, both of Anderson, following a quarrel.

HITLERITE BISHOP FIRES TWO MORE GERMAN PASTORS

Struggle for Supremacy in Full Swing.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—(AP)—With the suspension of two more non-Nazi pastors today the lines became clear for what was generally considered a decisive struggle for supremacy in the German Protestant church.

Prayers were said for the two pastors in 3,000 non-Nazi churches throughout the Reich. They were the Rev. Mr. Voiet of Berlin and Boitzenburg and the Rev. Mr. Ohse of Mecklenburg, both removed for an alleged attack on the Rev. Joaquin Hossenfelder, Nazi Christian leader.

The impending schism in the Protestant ranks received further impetus today when Nazi Christians in Thuringia demanded a policy even more radical than that of Hossenfelder.

Aim of Insurgent Group.

The Thuringians said they wanted "a new interpretation of Bishop Hossenfelder's idea in the spirit of the third Reich."

This insurgent group was regarded as likely to become the backbone of the radical Nazi Christian movement in Germany which began in a huge massmeeting campaign in Berlin.

The anti-Hossenfelder movement gained momentum yesterday when secession from the Nazi Christians was suddenly announced in Bavaria and Wuerttemburg by large groups of pastors.

At the same time a Stuttgart meeting of bishops from Bavaria, Württemberg, Hesse, the Palatinate, and Baden, threw their support behind the 300 young clergymen of the emergency federation, most of them war veterans who have declined to accept the German Christian theology.

Growing Bitterness Marks Fight.

Increasing bitterness has marked the fight between the Nazi faction under Hossenfelder on the one side, and the insurgent group headed by former Reichbishop Friedrich von Bodelschwingh on the other.

The first gun was fired from the Hossenfelder camp when three pastors were ordered suspended "for opposing the Nazi reconstruction of the church." They were re-instated later.

The fighting Bishop Hossenfelder, who has been threatened by the opposition's demand for his resignation, yesterday forced Bishop Schoeffel of Hamburg to resign from the church cabinet.

Almost simultaneously three noted theological professors quit the Nazi German Christian movement in disgust. These opposing moves led many churchmen to believe that only a miracle could prevent a schism.

Bishop Predicts New Church.

KOENIGSBERG, Germany, Nov. 26.—(AP)—A policy of drastic, unyielding adherence to Nazi principles and no quarter for the opposition was outlined here today by Reichbishop Ludwig Mueller in an utterance precipitated by the new church crisis.

"I will not undertake a single step against German Christians or their aims," he said. "Together with Hitler we will build a new German church."

Bishop Mueller referred to Nazi Christian church oppositionists as "criminals against the unity of the German nation," adding that "trouble makers will not get me to back down an inch."

He said the three professors of Tuebingen university who resigned from the Nazi German Christian movement Saturday seceded for personal reasons, which he called groundless because of his previous assurances that the Bible and the Christian creed would remain the foundation of the church.

In opposition Protestant circles, however, Bishop Mueller's utterances were interpreted to indicate that the policy of anti-Semitism was not to be discarded in the Nazi Christian church.

PROTEST NAZI SPEECH; BOSTON POLICE CALLED

Boston, Mass., Nov. 26.—(AP)—A large detail of police, summoned to Ford hall tonight where more than 5,000 persons had gathered to protest a speech by a German professor on Nazism and Hitler, charged the crowd with drawn clubs after it had broken through police lines crying "Down with Hitler."

A detail of 50 police were hurried to the scene to augment a heavy force already there when the crowd surged through the street, radiating from the hall where Dr. Friedrich Schoenemann, professor at the University of Berlin, was speaking in favor of Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany and his policies.

The professor, with Baron Kurt von Tippelskirch, German consul at Boston, had been escorted to the hall by police when the crowd began to form.

One man was knocked unconscious when hit by a policeman's club and he was taken to a hospital. Several policemen were struck with fists and one was knocked down and kicked in the eye. A mounted officer was thrown from his horse when the animal became frightened at the cries of the crowd and bolted.

FRENCH REGARD HITLER PARLEY AS NECESSARY EVIL

Fear Nazis Will Receive More than They Give.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The secret conversations in Berlin between French Ambassador Andre Francois-Poncet and Chancellor Hitler met with little enthusiasm in Paris today because of a prevailing attitude of fear that the French would have to concede everything and get nothing in return.

The talks were accepted as essential, however, to prevent charges that France is not willing to coöperate in problems of disarmament.

Talks Urged as Test of Nazis.

Face-to-face talks between premier and chancellor were openly rejected by former Premier Albert Sarraut, whose cabinet fell last week, but he felt at the same time that diplomatic conversations would help define Hitler's desires and test his sincerity.

[Since the German withdrawal from the disarmament conference and the league of nations Hitler repeatedly has expressed willingness to conduct negotiations with individual nations looking toward disarmament. Ambassador Francois-Poncet and Hitler met Friday, reportedly at Hitler's request, in Berlin. News of the interview leaked out only by accident in government circles.]

Little change in the French attitude is expected in the new cabinet of Camille Chautemps. It is expected, like its predecessors, to cling to the league of nations, refusing a bilateral agreement, and demanding that Great Britain, Italy, Poland and the Little Entente participate as "witnesses," as former Premier Sarraut said.

Fears for Treaties.

The press generally takes the attitude that all France wants is for Germany to live up to the treaties she has signed, but fears that Hitler is seeking to break them down. His alleged desire to gain control of the Saar before the 1935 plebiscite is cited in this respect.

The venerable former Premier Edouard Herriot, probably France's future premier and foreign minister, symbolizes the French attitude that negotiations for a disarmament settlement must be built, at least theoretically, on the framework of a league of nations.

It is stressed generally that France and Germany are only 2 out of 27 signatories of the Versailles treaty, and that consequently direct conversations between France and the reich can produce only suggestions for solutions.

2 Children Drown in South African Rain and Hailstorm

MARITZBURG, Natal, South Africa, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Two children drowned and 2,000 sheep and 250 cattle were killed in a terrific hailstorm and cloudburst that devastated the Droogdal region today, near Dannhauser. Huge rocks were dislodged from the mountainsides. Hailstones, some three inches in diameter, fell.

Unwise to scoff at these hazards

if your resistance is low

No one should make light of outdoor exposure. No one should risk the consequences of indoor living. Many people will recall the unpleasantness of other winters—a long, tedious siege of ills!

Now physicians suggest the possible trouble with winter sufferers. It may be the lack of good resistance.

Good resistance is "the first line of defense" against illness, enlightened medical opinion concludes. The old idea of waiting until people are sick to do something for them is rapidly giving way to the newer practice of helping the body use its own defenses against disease.

And fortunately, there's a way for people to help build up their resistance when it is low. With Vitamins A and D!

These are the two resistance-building factors provided in abundance by halibut and cod-liver oils and Viosterol! They're available in a concentrate—Squibb Adex Tablets-10 D!

Squibb Adex tablets contain 1000 units each of resistance-building Vitamin A and 2450 units of sunshine Vitamin D! They are pleasant to take. And really protected against deterioration so they can be counted on for results.

LINDBERGHS LAND AT FUELING DEPOT IN WEST AFRICA

MADRID, Nov. 26. — (AP) — Word reached here today that Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived safely at Villa Cisneros, a fueling station used by French flyers on the northwestern African coast. The information came from private sources which disclosed no further details of the Lindberghs' flight from Las Palmas, Canary islands, whence they departed early this morning.

Crowd Cheers Flyers.

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh lifted their big seaplane from the harbor at 7:45 a. m. today, circled the city three times, and headed across 300 miles of ocean for Villa Cisnero, on the northwest African coast.

Villa Cisneros is about 600 miles due north of Cape Verde, the westernmost point of the African continent, where Lindbergh has indicated he may start a trans-Atlantic hop.

AUTO CRASH IS FATAL.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 26.—(AP)—John C. Beall, 43, a plant supervisor for the American Telephone and Telegraph company here, died today of injuries received last night when his motor car crashed into a telephone pole.

ARREST OF CHIEFS STIRS NATIVES OF BRITISH SAMOA

APIA, British Samoa, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Imprisonment last Thursday of seven chiefs of the Mau, native Samoan league, convicted of unlawfully collecting money and engaging in seditious activities, led to assembly here today of a large number of Mau adherents.

Police ordered them to disperse within 24 hours. The Mau selected a committee to remain in Apia and attend the trial of O. F. Nelson, accused of seditious activity.

Nelson, who has been in trouble before, returned recently after five years' banishment imposed by New Zealand, the mandatory power of western Samoa.

Mother!

No more guesswork when you buy baby's winter Sunlight Lamp!

Now portable sunlamps are rated for the amount of ultra-violet they give

GRAY winter days need not rob your children of their sunlight. A portable sunlamp will bring artificial sunlight indoors to them.

Now you can buy your sunlamp without guesswork. Under the recommended NRA Code, portable sunlamps for home use are now plainly marked for their ultra-violet output. The ratings range from AA (the highest) down to E.

Portable sunlamps help make up for the lack of outdoor sunlight. They help guard against, and cure, rickets. They promote the growth of strong, healthy bones and teeth. Every member of the family will enjoy frequent exposures to this indoor sunlight.

Go to your electrical dealer, department store, or electric light company. Pick out a portable sunlamp according to the amount of ultra-violet you desire. If it is rated AA or B and has the General Electric monogram GE on the bulb you can be sure of getting adequate ultra-violet.

Prices are low—styles are attractive. There's no reason now for going through another winter without the benefits of indoor sunlight.

The General Electric Company and the Council on Physical Therapy of the American Medical Association are mutually interested in research to more definitely establish the benefits of ultra-violet, for which many impossible, exaggerated and unfounded claims have been made.

NO MORE GUESSWORK

For your protection look for this approval tag on the sunlamp and the mark GE on the bulb.

IMPORTANT: Portable sunlamps using General Electric MAZDA Sunlight lamps (bulbs), Type S-1 and Type S-2, are rated AA and B respectively. Both these MAZDA Sunlight Lamps have been accepted by the Council on Physical Therapy of the American Medical Association, and are on the approved list of the American College of Surgeons. The Type S-1 at 60 inches and the Type S-2 at 20 inches give you the ultra-violet intensity of midday midsummer sunlight. Safe as the beach or the golf course. # 3,000 FARMERS RIOT IN FRANCE; DEMAND RELIEF

Clash with Police; Soore Hurt in Battle.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 27 [Monday.]—Three thousand farmers clashed with the police at Amiens last night when they attempted to march on the prefecture at the Picardy capital to place their grievances before a representative of the government. A score were injured in the ensuing riot.

The disorder broke out after one of many demonstrations held in various parts of France by hundreds of thousands of farmers and about 30,000 coal miners for the purpose of putting demands for relief before the government. Most of the other meetings were carried off in an orderly manner although several minor disturbances were reported.

Clash with Police.

Farmers in the Amiens district met at a movie house, passed a relief resolution and began a march to the prefecture to present the prefect with a copy when they were met by a cordon of police. Fighting started at once. Among the casualties were the mayors of two small towns in northern France —Mayor Le Page of Folleville, some of whose teeth were knocked out, and Mayor Marlin of Mont St. Quentin, who was seriously bruised.

When the mob was brought under control a delegation was allowed to enter the prefecture.

The miners in yesterday's demonstration protested against widespread suffering caused by unemployment, hard working conditions and low wages. They converged on Arras, Bethune, Douai and Valenciennes parading with music and waving banners and placards. At Valenciennes 4,000 demonstrators clashed with the police.

New Cabinet Formed.

Meanwhile, France obtained a new government, dedicated like the last one, to restoring confidence in the franc by balancing the budget.

Camille Chautemps, minister of interior in the previous governments of Edouard Herriot, Joseph Paul-Boncour, Edouard Daladier and Albert Sarraut, is at the wheel this time, with the last three chiefs back at their old posts in the new cabinet. Herriot at his own request was left out, saving himself for a comeback later.

The rest of the ministerial personnel is much the same as in the Sarraut cabinet but the drift away from the extreme left toward the center is a little more pronounced. The cabinet's formation was announced at 3 a. m. It will be presented to President Albert Lebrun at 10 a. m.

Policies Remain the Same.

The composition of the cabinet indicates that both the foreign and financial policies will be unchanged, but Chautemps was given to understand that his cabinet's duty will be purely to save the franc.

The premier has already indicated that he proposes to meet the budget deficit by an emergency bill based on the suppression of tax evasion and reduction of the costs of government. He will present his ministry to the chamber of deputies Thursday. He plans to offer its financial program at the same time, demanding an immediate vote.

The new government is very likely to be in power when Dec. 15 rolls around, but the absence of Herriot affords an indication that there is little chance that it will make a token payment on its war debt to the United States.

PRESIDENT ADVISES PUBLIC'S SUPPORT OF CHRISTMAS SEALS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt, in a statement issued today at the White House, recommended public support of the sale of Christmas seals, which opens on Thanksgiving day, for the financing of clinics and rehabilitation work of affiliated tuberculosis associations. His statement reads:

"Protection of public health long has been one of the fundamental responsibilities of government, and in the period of adjustment through which we are now passing that responsibility has increased. In the scheme of recovery, organizations which devote themselves to public health work are serving the government by supplementing the activities of its established health departments.

"The sale of Christmas seals will open on Thanksgiving day. They will be sold by two thousand affiliated tuberculosis associations throughout the country. With the proceeds derived from this sale, these associations finance their programs of clinics, nursing, education, rehabilitation, and research.

"I heartily recommend that we continue our support of these activities through the purchase of Christmas seals."

GANG ROBS 80 OF $2,000 IN ALLEGED S. SIDE HANDBOOK

A. F. Lorenzen of the Congress hotel, a colonel of Illinois militia, was robbed of $150 in an alleged handbook at 5133 Lake Park avenue Saturday afternoon, it was learned last night. About eighty other persons, including several women, were in the place at the time. It is estimated the bandits got about $2,000.

Hyde Park police, visiting the place in response to a report that a robbery had occurred, were told by Milton Stern, the owner, that a robbery had been attempted, but not completed. It was not until they talked with Lorenzen that they learned definitely that there had been a holdup.

"I had been to the Chicago Beach hotel to see a friend," Mr. Lorenzen told police. "He was not in and I was told he had gone to the Lake Park avenue address to place a bet. I went there to find him and while I was there five robbers came in. They robbed everybody. I do not bet on horses, nor do I frequent such places."

BOY, 7, CROSSES SEA ALONE TO REJOIN MOTHER

Philip Orth, 7 years old, was reunited with his mother, Mrs. Louis Sertraft, 2749 North Mobile avenue, last night, after he had traveled alone from near Prague, Czechoslovakia.

The boy was only 14 months old when his mother left him to come to the United States. She has since remarried.

Because of a misunderstanding Mrs. Sertraft was not at the La Salle street station to meet the boy last night, but the Traveler's Aid society found her with the aid of Cragin police and she hurried to the station to greet him. Philip arrived in New York on the Deutschland of the North German Lloyd lines on Saturday.

HOLY LAND ARABS TO STRIKE TODAY; PROTEST TRIALS

JERUSALEM, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The Arab executive today proclaimed a strike of all Arabs in Palestine to take place tomorrow and Wednesday in protest against the trials of Arab leaders for recent demonstrations against Jewish immigration.

The Moslems arrested in connection with anti-Jewish riots in Jerusalem Oct. 13 will be tried tomorrow before a British magistrate.

On Wednesday another trial begins, that of the leaders of the demonstration at Jaffa Oct. 27, which led to four days' rioting in many cities throughout Palestine. In the disturbances 25 persons were killed and 250 injured.

PIRATES SEIZE FRENCH STEAMER NEAR HONGKONG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Nov. 26.—Fourteen armed Chinese pirates captured a French passenger steamer commanded by Henri Riviere while it was proceeding from Hong Kong to Hai Phong, it was learned today.

The boat was carrying more than 100 Chinese passengers and a general cargo. The pirates, disguised as passengers, forced the captain to proceed to Chiling Point, where the cargo was looted and the passengers robbed. The commander and several passengers were kidnaped and taken ashore. The steamer returned to Hong Kong last night. A French gunboat was dispatched to the pirate lair, but the gang had fled.

Among those robbed were recruits of the 19th Route army on their way to Fukien province. They possessed a large sum of money belonging to the Fukien rebel government. Four actresses of a Chinese theatrical troupe were kidnaped and robbed of their jewels.

AUSTRIA STRIKES PEACE NOTE IN ROW WITH HITLER

Conciliation Near, Predicts Ex-Aid of Dollfuss.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Nov. 26.—A definite forecast of better relations between Germany and Austria was made here today.

Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss some day this week will revise his dictatorial lineup in such a way as possibly to diminish the influence of the armed greenshirts known as the Fascist Heimwehr, and thus of Benito Mussolini's Italy.

Franz Winkler, leader of the Agrarian party, who ceded his place as vice chancellor to the Fascist chieftain, Maj. Emil Fey, in September, announced tonight that he has reached an understanding with the chancellor and is coming back into the fold.

Prince's Influence Reduced.

A disappointed champion of democracy in September, Winkler said today he is reconciled to the Dollfuss ideal of an authoritatarian state. But he was only so reconciled, it is understood, after Dollfuss had assured him that Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, leader of the Heimwehr, would not be allowed to dominate the state.

"Peace with Germany is not so far off as many believe," Winkler said.

This statement attracted wide attention. It was suggested in some quarters that his return to the cabinet may pave the way for an understanding with the Austrian Nazis and possibly some form of collaboration.

Another peace note was struck today. Since it was by no less a person than Kurt Rieth, the German minister, the anxiety aroused here by Friday's killing of a German soldier on the Bavarian border and a stiff German demarche yesterday was somewhat eased.

Speaks at German Graves.

Speaking at the graves of Germans buried here with Austrian world war dead, Chancellor Hitler's emissary spoke suavely of Vienna's great past as capital of the German empire. After this recognition of Austria's one time primacy in the German world, which Austrians claim the Prussians are inclined to ignore, he said:

"Sad though the events of the moment may be for all Germans, we cannot fail to keep in mind that no German people can ever divorce itself from our common destiny."

Dollfuss himself, who tomorrow will doubtless be called upon to give an answer to Rieth's demand for an explanation of the frontier shooting, talked conciliation, too.

"It is not my fault that relations with Germany have been so strained, but the situation is already much better," he said in a speech in which, however, he also stressed Austrian patriotism.

Whether Winkler will reenter the Dollfuss government personally or will be represented by a henchman remains to be seen. His return means two things.

It means, first, that Dollfuss is backing water on the Fascist program in order not to arouse the hostility of the democratic elements. It means second, that the campaign against the Nazis may be softened.

AUTO IN RIVER; ONE BODY FOUND; GIRL SINKS SWIMMING

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—An automobile owned by Ralph M. Beck, chauffeur for Philip D. Laird, a Wilmington, Del., stock broker, crashed through a guard rail on the Gray's Ferry avenue bridge here late today and dropped sixty feet into the Schuylkill river.

When the car was raised, several hours later, a body, apparently that of Beck, was slumped over the driver's wheel.

Grapplers searched the river for other bodies. A witness told police that after the machine struck the water one of the occupants, presumably a young woman, rose to the surface and attempted to swim to shore. She soon sank from sight.

Explosion Kills 2, Wrecks Stores in Nova Scotia Town

NEW GLASGOW, N. S., Nov. 26.—(AP)—A terrific explosion of undetermined origin wrecked several buildings in the heart of the business section last night, killing two persons. The bodies of Morris David and his nephew, Simon Attis, were dragged from the ruins of a two-story brick building where the mysterious blast originated. Fire started, but soon was extinguished.

BELIEVE SOVIETS WILL JOIN WORLD CURB ON WHEAT

LONDON, Nov. 26. — (AP) — The chances of Soviet Russia joining an international pact to boost the price of wheat were viewed optimistically by delegates here on the eve of the first meeting of the world wheat advisory committee.

It was learned authoritatively that the subject of wheat was brought up in conversations between Maxim Litvinov and President Roosevelt in Washington last week. This fact is believed likely to exert a beneficial influence here.

Five Nations Affected.

The American delegates to the parley, which will be presided over by United States Ambassador Robert W. Bingham, left Washington before the conversations on soviet recognition, but they were expecting fresh information from America before tomorrow's session.

The American delegation pointed out that wheat could have been only a minor subject in Washington, however, inasmuch as Argentina, Canada, and Australia are fully as much involved as the United States.

General trade reports indicate that the soviet crop is not so good as it was expected to be two months ago, it was asserted in the American quarters here.

Wants Quota Doubled.

For this reason Russia is expected to be more willing to agree to compromise. Still there was no indication that Russia was ready to give up her demand that her quota of 37,000,000 bushels be doubled. Abraham Gourevitch, Russian delegate, limited his comments to the statement that "the world wheat problem is rather acute and already quite serious."

One of the important matters to be decided by the commission is the scope of activity to be permitted the permanent wheat secretariat here. This decision presents a delicate diplomatic problem, because it involves getting accurate and complete data from all countries so that the commission can act promptly and intelligently.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN ENDS LIFE.

An unidentified man, about 45 years old, shot himself yesterday afternoon in a clump of bushes on 19th street between Marshall boulevard and Albany avenue. In his hand the man clutched a receipt for $60, bearing the signature "Dzonch." There were no other clues to his identity on the body.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

DEAN ACKERMAN ON THE FREE PRESS ISSUE.

Those who heard or later read the address of Dean Ackerman, head of the school of journalism of Columbia university, realized if they had not realized before that the issue raised by the American Newspaper Publishers' association in its demand for an explicit reservation in the newspaper code of rights under the first amendment of the constitution has a significance wider than the press. The effort is made to give this controversy the character of a selfish demand for the special immunity of one industry. Dean Ackerman's exposition forces the truth that the guaranty of a free press is primarily and fundamentally a guaranty to the people. Any encroachment upon the freedom of the press is an encroachment upon the freedom of the people, since, as Dean Ackerman well says, "The newspaper is the proving ground for public policies and public opinion."

This, we had supposed, is a truism which no official and no citizen would dream of challenging, but as Dean Ackerman says, "There is a stream of tendency in this country today away from liberty. Under subtle governmental direction the trend is definitely toward control, coercion, compulsion, and regimentation," and the attitude toward the free press reservation of officials of the NRA and of the ardent adherents of the New Deal is an impressive illustration of this tendency This attitude is accompanied by assurances that there is no intention to infringe upon the freedom of the press. But these assurances are not supported by the resistance of the administration to the press reservation nor by analysis of the act establishing the NRA, as Dean Ackerman has demonstrated. If we are to maintain a government of law and not of men as was declared by the founders of the nation, we shall still rely upon law as the foundation of rights and not the fluctuating moods or purposes of men in office.

Dean Ackerman and the Commercial club which offered him its distinguished forum have performed a service not merely or even primarily to the press but more importantly to the nation a memorable service. The defense of the freedom of the press is a defense of the freedom of the American people. Dean Ackerman has made it clear that the controversy over the press reservation is of moment to the nation, that it involves not merely the rights of the press but every right we cherish as a free people, for it is eternally true that "without freedom to print no other form of liberty is worth a postage stamp." Those who declare that democracy is a failure and seek a government of authority under one guise or another would belittle the issue raised in this controversy. But we who remain Americans and have not lost faith in a free society will not permit this issue to be belittled or befogged, for it is a crucial test of free government.

SHIRKING CITIZENS.

Another jury has shirked its duty. It refused to impose the death penalty on a murderer who added torture to his savagery. The trial judge, Judge Miller, expressed the opinion not only of himself but, we are confident, that of the public when he said the jury was very lenient in imposing a prison term.

The jurymen responsible for this failure of efficient justice deserve the condemnation of their fellow citizens. It is, of course, disagreeable to send any human being to the chair, but in the conditions of flagrant criminal violence which endanger all the people of this and other communities it is a duty which no good citizen is justified in shirking. In the campaign against crime a number of cold blooded and ruthless murderers have been sent to prison for the taxpayers to support for the rest of the killers' lives, unless they escape or have influence enough to get a pardon in due time when executive clemency is in the keeping, as it has been before, of an unscrupulous official. The imposition of the death penalty upon every one of these killers would have made life safer in Chicago and removed a humiliating stain upon our good name as a civilized community. The juries who have refused to impose the extreme penalty have evaded their duty to their fellow citizens. They have made themselves in effect a part of the menace of crime.

THE ROCKEFELLER FOUNDATION IN JAPAN.

The Japanese cabinet has accepted the offer of the Rockefeller foundation to give a million and a quarter dollars for a public health institute in Tokio in which hygiene workers will be trained. The foundation has no nationalistic restrictions. Humanity is its domain, the human race its concern. The fact that the said race is not a set piece but a complication of variables is not in the foundation's calculation. International policies might take one view of Japanese public health and the foundation another.

Some tendencies in Japan are merely smoldering under others. The sense of social injury is secondary and the dogma of imperialistic destiny is on top. What the world principally sees is the dogma. The Japanese war lords couple it with inevitability and some of the world couples it with trouble, usually in connection with the United States.

A German foundation for public health in Poland would be regarded as about as strange as a French foundation for public health in Germany. Any sort of an alien foundation in the United States for the benefit of American citizens would be incomprehensible, but an American hospital for the English in London or church restoration in Devonshire strikes no one here or there as unusual.

An American foundation undertakes to improve the Japanese science of public health and send in its scientists to teach how physical defects can be removed and physical hazards avoided. The expected result is a safer level of human life with, the diplomatist might observe, sounder and healthier recruits, along with, also, an amelioration of social conditions which otherwise might serve as a counterbalance to the dogma of imperialistic destiny.

MORE FEDERAL LIQUOR CONTROL.

Just as federal control of liquor goes out one door with the repeal of the 18th amendment it comes in another under the recovery act. As prohibition it makes its exit, but as part of the agricultural adjustment act it comes back in. Exhibit A is the distillers' code being written for the AAA as a substitute for the code prepared by the industry and promptly rejected

Later, it is said, the AAA will prepare codes for beer and wine, and it is admitted that the administrators have more than excise purposes and more than agricultural relief in mind. They are seeking to exercise a social influence in doing what they can to turn public taste to the lighter drinks, away from the heavier ones; also to reserve for the central government the lion's share of the taxes.

There may not be much, if any, objection to the various objects of the AAA code, per se, although it will be evidence of the reluctance of bureaucratic control to let go anything on which it has once laid hands. Ordinarily federal regulation of the liquor question after the repeal of national prohibition would be restricted to the laying of taxes and the protection of dry states by preventing liquor import in interstate commerce. Under the recovery act the government goes further. It proposes to control by license, and thus to regulate price, chase out the bootleggers, and prohibit manufacturers from engaging in retail trade.

Under normal federal regulation it would not be a central government concern whether a Peoria distiller had a Springfield retail store or not, but the new deal in recovery and the old deal in prohibition find some common ground. The recovery of prosperity and the recovery of rights are not yet members of the same club.

It is worth noting that in these days it could be maintained by the government that the 18th amendment is not necessary for the sanction of the Volstead act. When the amendment was adopted it was a necessary precedent condition in organic law for the authority exercised in the Volstead act, but now the Volstead act, according to prevailing governmental theory, could rest upon the declaration that an emergency existed. Other acts of similar process and parallel procedure are based upon that emergency declaration.

An interpretation is applied to the constitution seeking to make new delegation of authority unnecessary for the exercise of it. In such interpretations any sanction may be found by a misuse of the general welfare phrase in any matter which may be held to be charged with public interest. This doctrine evinces its own absurdity. If it were valid congress could have declared the manufacture of intoxicating beverages to be charged with public interest, setting up the revenue requirements of an emergency, and the 18th amendment would have been as dead as any other article.

The fact that the ordained procedure for amendment was followed in prohibition repeal is exemplary against the concurrent practices of nullifying the constitution by emergency legislation based on nothing but an allegation of public interest. Public interest may be anything any one cares to say it is. The American system of government does not permit this. Congress and an administration can exercise new and revolutionary powers of government only when, as in the case of the 18th amendment, there has been a new delegation of authority by the states in the manner prescribed.

Editorial of the Day

GUERRILLAS IN THE BUSHES.

[The Northwestern Miller.]

The other day, in a Washington news letter, we came upon the expression "guerrillas in the bushes," referring, of course, to those citizens who are reluctant to surrender all tradition, all experience and all independent thought to blind faith in the result of present government by experiment. The expression is typical—might, indeed, almost be borrowed from one of the challenging addresses of official exponents of the new government, to whom all those who honestly differ in opinion have become known as enemies, chiselers, or, as now, guerrillas.

Confessing our honest doubts of the result of our present playing with economic explosives, we yet would have less of doubt and more of faith if it were not for this constant flow of accusation from the mouths, pens and press releases of proponents of the new order. It well may be that in the fullness of the times these theories whereby mankind is to be fitted to an economic pattern, all opportunity and all fortune brought to a common level and all industry made moral and more taxable by law, will be proved. Then will we be chastened for having so long clung to and so reluctantly abandoned the old order. Until then we must confess that our humor often is tried by parade ground economists calling us names through a loud speaker. . . .

Perhaps as the glory of pomp and the sense of power grow older these rulers of ours will become more amenable. Perhaps even a Henry Ford or two, cherishing memories of the faiths of their fathers and in the constitution of the United States, will cause them to contemplate themselves somewhat through the eyes with which others see them, and, even more to the point, through ears which now have to listen to their tub thumping. For ourselves, we know of no guerrillas, no bushwhackers, no traitors. We see only a troubled and altogether patient people, very weary of hard days and growing increasingly doubtful of government which assumes all virtue and ascribes to others all faults. Some day, doubtless, these facts will become more apparent at Washington and the language of government will thereafter become more temperate.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

The Professor and the Unscientific Truck Driver.

A FABLE.

A Professor who was driving his Car through a small town at Night drove right into the South elevation of a large Truck which was parked along the side of a dark Street. The Professor did not see the Truck because it had on no Tail lights. After he had looked at the front of his Car and seen that it bore a close Resemblance to a Custard pie that has Fallen from the roof and hit with great violence on the Pavement the Professor went to the driver of the Truck and said: "This deplorable Incident Occurred because your Vehicle was not displaying a Tail light." "Sez you," replied the Truck driver. "I rather surmise," said the Professor, "that you have not had the Inestimable Advantage of a Collegiate training." "Ah, pipe down!" observed the Truck driver, who was debating should he put up a Stiff argument as to the cause of the Accident or just give the Professor a Swift Poke in the Beak and let it go at that. "You see," continued the Professor, "you were never Taught one of the great fundamental Truths of Science, that two bodies cannot Occupy the same space at the same Time." "Yer dam tootin'," admitted the Truck driver.

"It is Nevertheless true," said the Professor, "and to Prevent unthinking people from Trying to disprove this Great natural law it has been ruled that all vehicles shall carry a Red light at Night at the rear end." "Wotta yer know about That," said the Truck Driver. "It is, indeed," said the Professor. "But instead of being angry with you for Parking your car in a Dark street at night without a Red light I am going to take you to this repair Shop across the street and buy you a Red light and pay for its Installation at the Rear end of your truck. Then Motorists following you will Observe the Light and will not attempt to Defy the laws of Nature by putting their Cars into the same Space already occupied by your Truck." "O. K. by me," said the truck Driver, and so the Professor bought him a Handsome red Tail light for his Truck. Then the Professor, feeling that he had enlightened the Truck driver in Regard to a great Natural law, left his Car with the Repair man and took a Bus back to the City.

MORAL.

After the Professor was gone the Truck man traded his new Red light back to the Repair man for a pair of old Rubber boots and a jar of homemade Apple Butter.

THE CHOICE.

Little old lady, still beating your wings,
Caught in the tangle of "beautiful things,"
Defying the years;
Feeding gaunt hunger on crystal and charm,
Gallantly taking Life's cold formal arm,
Denying old tears.

What if the smile of a son has been sweet!
Silver and silk and a heart that is neat
Outlasts the frail rose.
Burnish the silver that now dully gleams,
Prune the old rose tree that lives in your dreams
And too rankly grows.

Life that is suave as a sheathed velvet gown,
(Your lover had more).
Cruel was the choice that you made with your mind.
Love was the discard—but now you choose blind—

PREVENTING CATARACT.

CONSIDERABLE progress has been made and more is in prospect in the field of prevention of such eye troubles as cataract, night blindness, ulcers of the cornea, retinitis, keratitis, and glaucoma. This is accomplished by means of diet. The group of food elements of greatest importance in this field are the vitamins. The vitamin of most help is that which some call vitamin G, and others refer to as a part of the combination called vitamin B complex.

In a symposium on the subject, given at a recent meeting of the American Medical association, the foods given as richest in vitamin G were greens and especially cabbage, meats, liver, yeast, carrots, and milk.

Some of the work was done on experimental animals, but when it is objected that lower animals do not eat the same foods that man does; that their digestive organs and their bodily requirements differ from those of man, the answer is given that some of the experience has been with man.

Dr. K. W. Cosgrove and associates of Little Rock presented considerable evidence that they had helped the vision of old confederate veterans living in the Arkansas State Soldiers' home.

In the wake of the world war there came reports of ulcers of the eyeballs among the peoples of certain neutral nations. In these countries food was both poor insufficient, and expensive during this period. This eye trouble is charged principally to a deficiency in vitamin A. This vitamin is present in carrots and many other foods. It has been extracted and is available in the form of medicine.

Later came the observations on cataract. This disturbance of vision, due to opacity of the lens, has long been known to be caused by exposure of the eyes to heat, glare, and dust; to senility, and to certain diseases. It is possible to produce cataract by the use of naphthalene. Now comes the information that by the use of a proper diet cataract can be prevented. Furthermore, when a proper diet is instituted early the progress of the disorder can be stopped or at least greatly delayed. To get results the use of tobacco and alcoholic beverages must be forbidden.

Night blindness is a symptom of great significance. There is some difference of opinion as to its prevalence in this country, even though it is known to be widely prevalent in some other parts of the world. The evidence tends to show that night blindness can be prevented and, within limits, cured by proper dieting.

The other eye disorders in which giving diets rich in vitamins have been found to be of service are keratitis, disturbances of tear formation of lachrymation, some diseases of the retina, and some forms of glaucoma. (Glaucoma is of several kinds and due to several causes. Dieting is of service in some varieties, but not in others.)

GALL BLADDER.

O. H. H. writes: Eight years ago I wrote you about my gall bladder trouble. At that time I had passed one gallstone and one kidney stone and suffered greatly from dyspepsia. I first tried hard, manual labor, principally sawing wood, and was greatly benefited thereby. In recent years I have depended principally on dieting, though I continue active, hard work. I am now 62 years old and almost free from dyspepsia and have no gallstone colic. I am better off physically than I have been at any previous time in the last twenty-five years. My diet consists of fresh vegetables and fresh fruits, especially raw fruits, and a green salad once a day and plenty of potatoes. I eat beef, mutton, pork, and eggs. My only restriction is milk. I find I have an allergy to milk and I avoid that. Careful dieting has been the principal factor in my case.

A SKINNY MAN.

A. G. writes: I am 55, weigh 116 pounds with my ordinary walking suit on. I eat and sleep well and, barring a cold every now and then, I have never been ill. I smoke many cigarets and I drink strong tea three times a day. I have tried to put on a little weight but cannot. I am a good walker and my limbs are apparently clean and have no rheumatism. Can you tell me why I am so thin, and is it dangerous?

REPLY.

There are different reasons. Some are of the lean kind. As a rule, they live to a ripe old age. Some are thin because they are nervous and on edge.

Drinking strong tea and smoking many cigarets suggests that you are of the nervous type. Some are thin because they have too much thyroid. Others, because they have tuberculosis or some other organic disease. As a rule, a thin man 55 years old can expect a long and healthy life.

PROPERTY OWNERSHIP.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. About two years ago I paid up my second mortgage on my home and have not received a deed or all of the papers which were tendered to the care of the mortgage company at the time the loan was made. 2. What procedure should I follow to get the deed, and is it necessary to have one prove ownership? 3. Could the deed be used by the realty and mortgage company for making a loan on our home without our knowledge? They claim it is not necessary as long as we have the second mortgage paper marked paid and a guaranteed policy. A. R.

1. The existence of the second mortgage implies that you are not merely a contract purchaser but have already received the warranty deed and that the deed now referred to is the release of the mortgage.

2. Follow up the broker. You do not state whether you have followed him up nor what reasons he assigns for the delay. He has the facts before him and in this sense is in a better position to answer your questions than we are.

3. You have not given us the facts as to the state of your title. Your inability to make the facts clear implies that you have such a lack of understanding of the transaction that you ought to employ an attorney to investigate the facts for you.

SHOULD MAKE A WILL.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father has 40 acres of land in Michigan and wants to leave in writing who should inherit. 1. Is it all right to just write it up on ordinary paper and have it notarized and witnessed, or just how should it be done? 2. How should it be worded? 3. Should the notary be from Michigan or can it be notarized here? 4. Should a copy be made, notarized, witnessed, and sent to the county clerk of that county? 5. He has no money to hire a lawyer.

J. E. S.

1. Such a document should be executed as a will. The services of a notary are not necessary. We advise the employment of an attorney.
2. Leave this to the attorney.
3. See preceding answers.
4. No.
5. You do not state why he is not satisfied to leave the property go under the statute of descent. Ordinarily it is preferable to rely on the statute of descent rather than on a homemade will, unless there are exceptional reasons for wishing to prefer one beneficiary. If, despite this advice, you decide to go ahead with the homemade will, we advise you to secure a printed form from a stationer.

NATIONALITY.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—[Friend of the People.]—I was born in Europe in a town which originally belonged to Austria. My parents are Austrian, but about a year or so before I was born the town was taken by Hungarians. At the present time I believe the town is under Austrian control again. What nationality am I? A. J. L.

If the town in which the writer was born now belongs to Austria, it would appear that the writer is of Austrian nationality.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN.—The fact that a prominent young journalist has just thrown in his lot with Gen. Owen O'Duffy's "Blue Shirt" movement in the Irish Free State is not without its significance.

Thomas P. Gunning is of the younger generation. He is a product of Frieburg university, but a native of western Ireland. Still in the early twenties, he has already a record for enterprise, initiative, and determination. As head of publicity and confidential secretary to Gen. O'Duffy he will find a field for the further development of these qualities.

Gunning gained his first experience on the Irish Independent newspaper, and subsequently became editor of the Standard, a Catholic weekly.

In the latter capacity he took a leading part in the campaign against communism in Ireland, and it is an open secret that he was the author of a series of articles which exposed the plans by which Moscow was endeavoring to gain a foothold here. The eradication of communism is one of the main planks of O'Duffy's program, and in Gunning he will have an able and expert ally.

In recent times there appears to be a distinct flair amongst the younger Irish journalists for politics. The old theory that the newspaper man is not a politician, but a mere recorder of events, seems to be giving way to personal convictions and consequent prejudices. President de Valera, for instance, is well served by newspaper supporters, many of whom would not serve an opposition paper in any capacity.

That politics has its rewards for newspaper men is shown by the appointment of John Lester, former newspaper reporter and a member of the Free State delegation at the league of nations at Geneva, as high commissioner for the Free City of Danzig. His salary will be $25,000 a year. The appointment lasts three years with the possibility of reappointment.

Lester was a newspaper reporter when the rebellion of 1916 broke out. He was arrested for complicity in that affair, but was later released. During the civil war he was government publicity man and propagandist. Lester was rewarded later by his appointment as an established civil servant. He has been at Geneva since the Free State joined the league and has developed into a first class diplomat.

Lester is a Northern Ireland Protestant, but this did not affect his position with the William T. Cosgrave government, nor under that of President de Valera.

GUIDED BY PRINCIPLE.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—In reading Philip Kinsley's history in last Sunday's TRIBUNE of your editorial fight for noninterference with the individual beyond necessity by government, and in studying the page of slashing cartoons by Orr, the old but now neglected idea arose, that the only way to be guided in any course is by principle. Then we can't go wrong.

In opposing prohibition THE TRIBUNE stood for perhaps the first principle of our constitutional system—namely: that the states alone shall deal with local concerns, and particularly with "the health, morals, safety and general well being of the people," which lie in the field of the police power, a field which the writers of the constitution intended that the nation should not enter. The nation was not designed or constructed to do that work, and experience demonstrated what should have been known from principle, that as it was not framed for police service it never could successfully carry it. Being a departure from that principle, the eighteenth amendment broke down, just as a steel bridge or a tall building would do when erected in disregard of experiences established as principles.

So the whole constitutional government of the United States may smash itself if the distribution of weight made by the founders of the republic be disregarded and the powers given to the states be massed at Washington, or if power given to the President be grabbed by congress [as was done in Johnson's time], or if power conferred upon congress be disregarded by a dictatorial President, or if power assigned to the judiciary to keep the whole machinery in balance be disrespected by both the President and the congress.

Some time, before it is too late, we may have it taught to all that go to school that, as Jefferson put it, the blending of many or all of these powers in one hand is the very definition of despotism. Then we shall be guided by principle instead of propaganda.

THOMAS JAMES NORTON.

THE GUARANTY OF DEPOSITS.

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 23.—It is untrue and unfair to state that the present practice of devaluing the dollar in terms of gold is hurting government credit as reflected in the recent decline of U. S. securities. It is still impossible to obtain a yield of ½ per cent for any short maturity of government bonds. The market has been unduly stimulated by recent heavy buying by federal reserve banks. Now it is inferred these quasi-government institutions are going to spank the President by ceasing these purchases and allow the market to find a less artificial position.

Before giving too much credence to the injury being done to the government credit, why not let rates adjust themselves and permit banks and others to again profitably hold short term U. S. securities?

You quote at length from a bulletin of C. F. Childs & Co. criticising the President's policy. Mr. Childs is an astute business man in the government bond business, and before giving too much weight to his opinions consideration should be given to the fact that he, like any other broker or dealer, may be, quite properly, personally affected by market changes. This is particularly true now because it is no longer possible to obtain gold for hoarding or to otherwise legally "crawl into a hole."

THOMAS F. DAZEY.

THE GUARANTY OF DEPOSITS.

Marshfield, Wis., Nov. 22.—I have read your editorial "A Law to Encourage Bad Banking" in your issue of Nov. 22, and am sorry I cannot agree with you.

We have a city here with a population of about nine thousand, located in the center of a fertile agricultural region. We had three banks. Two of them closed their doors last December and the third was closed by the national moratorium last March. Since then it has been doing business under a federal conservator, but is now in process of reorganization, which I hope can be completed in a few days. I am afraid this reorganization could not have been accomplished without some assurance of government guarantee of deposits.

Many of our citizens have had their life savings tied up in these banks, and they are not going to patronize the banks again unless positive security is assured them for their savings.

We cannot in fairness say that the large number of banks which failed did so because of poor management. At the same time the savings of our people must have some adequate protection. The banks may as well close their savings departments if this is not afforded.

Perhaps the law as it now stands is not exactly the right thing but fundamentally it is a move in the right direction.

G. H. BULGRIN.

GRADUATED LICENSE FEES.

Cicero, Ill., Nov. 16.—Home rule for control of liquor and alcoholic beverage sale is undoubtedly the correct solution of the coming problem. The alarming thing, however, is the expressed attitude of several authorities to levy a uniform tax or license fee on dispensaries regardless of volume of business. Such a step would again compel the operation of speakeasies and beer flats, as it is manifestly impossible for every enterprise to pay the same tax.

Why should the liquor business be an exception to the universal practice of graduating a tax according to volume? If taverns are to be respectable gathering places for neighborhoods, then every effort should be made to levy a tax according to volume of business and not tax them out of business and drive them into seclusion.

OTTO T. PERGLER.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—There is one big feature in favor of the stand-up bar which you are overlooking, and that is that it does away with the tipping evil, which in these times is a very real evil.

SO. CALIFORNIA'S HEAT BLAMED ON MOUNTAIN PASS

Natural Hot Air Furnace Found, Scientist Says.

Pasadena, Cal., Nov. 26.—(AP)— Melting into confusion many choice weather theories, a youthful meteorologist, Irving P. Krick, expressed a belief today after months of research, that a 12 mile long natural hot air furnace, formed by a high mountain pass, manufactures southern California's mild winter climate.

Krick, whose work in the Guggenheim laboratory of aeronautics at the California Institute of Technology has done much toward revolutionizing weather forecasting for air travel, named Cajon pass, a great gash in the San Bernardino mountains, as the governing factor in determining the weather here.

Cajon Pass Is a "Furnace."

He believes that Cajon pass, with its 4,000 foot elevation, has caused the present November heat wave in which temperatures ranging from 70 to 96 degrees have been recorded in various southern California cities. He also believes this great natural furnace made it possible for the recent Tujunga-La Crescenta brush and timber fire to gain such rapid headway.

Hundreds of men fought for four days the raging flames which destroyed a dozen homes, a winery, and burned over more than 5,000 acres of valuable watershed. Experienced county fire wardens expressed amazement at the rapidity with which the fire burned and the stubborn resistance it gave to modern fire fighting methods.

"Let a giant fill up Cajon pass with great boulders," Krick said, "and the climate of southern California would become like that of San Francisco. If this gash in the mountains were dammed up the orange industry would be ruined, for coats would become a necessity and chamber of commerce officials would be forced to substitute 'bracing' for 'mild' in its advertising."

Very Simple, He Says.

"It's all very simple, this secret of the southland's climate," Krick commented. "Masses of relatively cold air high above the desert are prevented from flowing down into the Los Angeles area by the mountains except at one point, Cajon pass. There at an altitude of 4,000 feet this cold air starts rushing downward with ever increasing velocity, due to being crowded by the walls of the pass.

"As it descends in a rush it is pressed down upon by a heavier and heavier blanket of the earth's atmosphere. When air is compressed, it becomes heated."

Military Rating 17th, General Says.

"I consider it of the most urgent importance to the United States that this condition be rectified without delay," he said.

The chief of staff's warning on America's military standing, which he said was 17th in world relative strength, was made in his annual report to Secretary Dern.

MacArthur in making specific recommendations for increasing the Army's efficiency, spoke of the "obvious state of unrest now prevailing throughout the world." The recommendations included:

A boost in regular army enlisted strength from 120,000 to 165,000, with immediate exemption of the enlisted man from the 15 per cent government pay cut.

An expenditure of nearly 200 million dollars on aircraft, modernization and motorization of the field artillery, mechanization, anti-aircraft equipment and general motorization.

More National Guard Drill.

Maintenance of the national guard at existing strength with 48 drill periods and two weeks active training annually.

At least 120,000 reserve officers with two weeks' annual training for at least 30,000. At present there are 119,000 reserve officers but only 87,000 are eligible for active duty training.

Restoration of the 1932 instruction and personnel scale for the R. O. T. C. and C. M. T. C.

"The United States does not need a military establishment comparable to the great armies existing in certain of the foreign nations," MacArthur said.

"The professional-civilian military system prescribed in the national defense act is almost ideally suited to our requirements, provided only the strength and efficiency of the several elements are maintained at reasonable elements.

Seeks to Maintain Efficiency.

"The aim of the recommendations I have made herein is simply to provide and maintain the requisite efficiency and strength."

MacArthur said the great proportion of army motor equipment, including tanks, are obsolete.

MacArthur said that while the 1934 supply bill provided 270 million dollars for military expenditures as compared with $334,764,000 in 1932, an order from Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, for a further slash of $80,000,000, "was a stunning blow to national defense."

This order later was modified, MacArthur said, to allow a total expenditure this year of $231,964,000.

Mortorization Needs Listed.

The chief of staff listed general army motorization needs at 9,385 trucks and 279 tractors, plus 19,500 units for the national guard. He said the public works administration had been asked for 304 million dollars distributed as follows:

One hundred thirty-five million for housing; $23,000,000 for mechanization; $39,000,000 for general motorization; $33,000,000 for anti-aircraft equipment; $35,000,000 for modernization and motorization of the field artillery and $39,000,000 for aircraft.

[Since MacArthur's report was written the public works administration has allotted the army approximately $90,000,000 for military purposes, the main items of which include $54,704,000 for housing; $3,000,000 for munitions; $7,500,000 for aircraft; $1,383,000 for air corps technical construction; $2,238,000 for national guard camp construction; $7,000,000 for seacoast defenses and $10,000,000 for motorization.]

Praises Citizen Training.

The chief of staff said the army's mobilization of the civilian conservation corps was in striking contrast with the 1917 mobilization and gave "renewed evidence of the value of systematic preparation for emergency."

But, he added, the heavy drain on the army's 12,000 regular officers in marshalling these 300,000 men "has brought regular army training in the continental United States to a virtual standstill' and has almost destroyed the readiness of units for immediate and effective employment on emergency duty."

STABS HUSBAND TO DEATH WITH CARVING KNIFE

Mrs. Anna Cummings, 26 years old, 1910 North Washtenaw avenue, stabbed her estranged husband, Frank, 30 years old, fatally early yesterday after he had come to her home and demanded food and money. She charged that he was intoxicated and struck her.

The weapon which she used was a carving knife, part of a set which she won Saturday in a contest in a neighborhood grocery. Mrs. Cummings and Benjamin Treece, owner of a lumber business and a roomer in her home, were taken in custody by the Shakespeare avenue police.

Mrs. Cummings told police that she met her husband Saturday evening at California and North avenues, and that he struck her when she asked him for money. At 5 o'clock yesterday morning, she said, he appeared at her home, intoxicated, and they quarreled again. He grabbed for the carving knife, but she reached it first and struck him, she said. Her son by a previous marriage, Earl Grams, 9 years old, was awakened and saw the struggle.

WARNS AGAINST DELAY IN GETTING AUTO LICENSES

State to Deny Leniency to Drivers in 1934.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

BY HAL FOUST.

The office of Secretary of State Hughes yesterday announced that after Jan. 1 the usual prolonged leniency will not be allowed to motorists who fail to display automobile license plates for the new year. Applications for the 1934 plates, and for the mandatory certificates of title, are now being filed.

In former years, under a practice that has received much adverse criticism, the secretary of state has requested police not to arrest motorists immediately after Jan. 1 for failure to have licenses for the new year. The request has been repeated, and granted, until well into the spring before a general enforcement of the automobile registration laws has been started.

Promises Prompt Service.

"These requests," said a spokesman for Mr. Hughes, "were based on the fact that many motorists in other years filed applications, paying their fees, long before they received their plates. This year, we are organized to make prompt delivery of the plates, notwithstanding the new job of registering certificates of title. This office will not have to ask the police to refrain from enforcing the license law after Jan. 1."

Motorists may be inclined to take this warning with a pinch of salt, because it has been a practice for many years for the secretary of state's office to cry "wolf" for weeks if not months before the police really went after the motorists evading the registration tax, January, February, and March have seen only a minority of Illinois cars with license plates of the current year.

The statute in Illinois provides that the automobile license expires on Dec. 31. The law also specifies that no car shall be operated without a license. This, according to Joseph H. Braun, general counsel for the Chicago Motor club, means that an Illinois car can not be operated legally on Jan. 1 without a plate for the new year.

Other States Enforce Laws.

Neighboring states are not as lax as is Illinois in enforcing the license laws. Chicagoans learn this to their sorrow in being arrested in Wisconsin, Indiana, and Michigan not long after the first of the year for not having proper plates on their cars.

Michigan and Wisconsin plates for 1934 are already appearing on the streets, although the Wisconsin statute does not require the new year's license until Feb. 1. There will not be any Illinois plates ready for delivery until the latter part of December.

Next Thursday is the deadline, under the statute, for filing license applications to retain the 1933 numbers on the 1934 plates. The "I Gotta Drag" low numbers and trick combinations of numbers will remain in vogue in 1934. The legislature last spring passed a bill authorizing the secretary of state to reform the numbering system, reducing the number of digits and giving some geographical significance to the plates by using a combination of numerals and letters to be assigned to certain counties. But Mr. Hughes did not exercise this authority.

Some Motorists Puzzled.

The applications for a certificate of title are causing some motorists concern. The registration of this evidence of ownership is being inaugurated as an anti-theft measure. The point that is puzzling most owners was cleared up yesterday when the office of the secretary of state announced that no bill of sale need be attached to applications on cars that are registered in Illinois for 1933 by their present owners. The fee for this certificate is 50 cents.

Application blanks for the 1934 licenses and certificates of title may be obtained from the offices of the secretary of state at Springfield and at 120 South Ashland boulevard, Chicago, or at motor clubs at the Tribune Public Service office at Dearborn and Madison streets.

ORDER SONSTEBY TO SHOW RECORDS OF OFFICE COSTS

Bar Committee Summons Is Served.

A summons upon Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court to produce records of his office showing salaries received by his assistants and other information relative to his conduct of the office has been served by a Chicago Bar association committee which has been delegated to investigate charges that the chief justice has been squandering city funds.

The committee, headed by Attorney Harry G. Hershenson, will meet this afternoon to consider the proper method of holding hearings. No hearing will be held today, but an early date will be set for the start of the investigation. The hearings will probably be open to the public, it was said.

Under Fire for Year.

Chief Justice Sonsteby's expenditures have been under fire for more than a year. Municipal Judges Edgar A. Jonas and Edward R. Casey have led the attack. They were first aroused to criticism when it was revealed that the chief justice had built up his personal office force to a point where it cost the city $76,000 a year to pay the numerous salaries. This figure was more than twice as high as the rate of expenditures during the term of Judge Sonsteby's predecessor.

These salaries were attacked, but the chief justice was successful in obtaining authorization for the employment of a special assistant at $10,000 a year, one assistant at $7,500 a year, three assistants at $6,000, five assistants to the assistants and various other clerks and stenographers with minimum salaries of $2,500. His private secretary received $5,000 yearly.

Special Fund Used.

The $10,000 job of special assistant was later abolished by the city council, but Hiram T. Gilbert, who held the office, has been kept on the pay roll at $6,000 annually, being paid out of a special fund.

The duties and qualifications of this office force is to be examined by the bar association committee. Judges Jonas and Casey charged that many of the jobs were unnecessary and that other employés were vastly overpaid.

The printing at city expense of a bulky volume containing 321 new court rules is also to be investigated by the bar association. Judge Sonsteby announced on Friday that copies would sell at $7.50 each, but Judge Jonas pointed out that the law provides for the printing of such rules at the expense of the city and that there is no law forcing lawyers to pay for them.

JOHN S. LEANDER FUNERAL RITES TO BE TOMORROW

Don't fool yourself about a cold! It's nothing to be taken lightly nor treated lightly. A cold is an internal infection that will quickly spread within the system unless promptly checked. The wise thing to take for a cold is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine.
First of all, it is distinctively a cold remedy and not a "cure-all." Secondly, it is an internal treatment. Thirdly, it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling, and tones and fortifies the entire system. That's the treatment a cold requires and anything less is taking chances. All druggists sell Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and reject a substitute.

She was vice president of St. Mary's hospital auxiliary, president of St. Helen's society of the Polish Women's alliance, and was a member of the advisory committee of the Polish Welfare association.

Trek to South Is Under Way at Early Date

Some Chicagoans Established in Florida Now.

BY JUDITH CASS.

WITH snow flurries in Chicago, all the Florida resorts report that winter colonists are arriving earlier than usual and that the season will be gayer than those of the last few years. From Palm Beach our correspondent writes that the former Muriel McCormick and her husband, Maj. Elisha Dyer Hubbard, again will occupy the charming modern Spanish type house in El Brillo Way that they occupied last winter.

Maj. Hubbard's sister, Mrs. Charles Wadsworth, and her husband will have the adjoining house and another place near these will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Noyes of Washington, relatives of the Hubbard family, with their daughter, Lady Lewis.

The former Virginia Chapman and her husband, J. Brooks Fenno Jr. of Boston, are spending the last of their honeymoon in Florida. After a stay in Palm Beach they have gone to Miami.

Mrs. Edward Hines In Palm Beach Now.

Mrs. Edward Hines already is in Palm Beach and is occupying the McKenna house on Dunbar road. She is accompanied by her grandchildren, Loretta and Howell Howard, and their mother, Mrs. Howell H. Howard of Dayton, will join them later. Mrs. Stresenreuter Butler is in Palm Beach for the winter and has an apartment at the Ocean View hotel. Her mother, Countess Filipponi, has leased her villa for the season.

The Surf club at Miami Beach is launching its fourth season with an informal luncheon next Sunday. The formal opening will not be until Jan. 20, however. The Bath club will open its doors early in December and the Beach Cabana club is opening Thanksgiving eve.

The winter colony at Winter Park is mourning the recent death of one of its popular members, Arthur T. Aldis. He hadn't been well enough for the last few years to take much part in the social life there, but every one knew and liked him and he will be missed there as well as in Chicago and Lake Forest.

Mrs. Aldis' niece, Mrs. Ernest Kilroe, and Mr. Kilroe, also of Lake Forest, are at Winter Park for the winter and among other Chicagoans who will be there later are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel G. Goss Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Potter. The Hubbard Casselberrys live there the year around in a charming villa on Maitland drive, facing Lake Maitland, although Mrs. Casselberry and the children spend most of the summer in the Adirondacks with her father, John R. Leonard of Winnetka, and in Lake Forest with Mr. Casselberry's mother, Mrs. William E. Casselberry.

French Circle to Open Season.

Early this afternoon Miss Isabel Gordon will be hostess for the first class of the season of the Little French circle. Last year when the class started there were about twenty members, all debutantes, but this year there are to be only eight in it, so that those who belong will progress faster. Mme. Rene Coulanges will conduct the class again and her pupils will be, in addition to Miss Gordon, Miss Barbara Graf, Miss Margaret Goehst, Miss Janet Ayer, Miss Virginia Thatcher, Miss Betty Alexander, Miss Peggy Wiley, and Miss Barbara Shaffer.

Mrs. Frederic Woodward, wife of Vice President Woodward of the University of Chicago, told us yesterday that the first of the popular winter series of concerts by the University Symphony orchestra will be heard the evening of Dec. 8 in Mandel hall on the south side campus. Dr. Paul Kerby, Austria's good will envoy, who recently conducted Chicago's Symphony orchestra, will be the guest conductor.

Although the engagement of those two popular north shore young people, Miss Dorothy Louise Welch and Minier Sargent has been predicted for some little time, the formal announcement was made over the week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Dale Welch of 1427 Judson avenue, Evanston, announced the betrothal of their daughter to young Mr. Sargent, who is the

Young Singers to Get Chance at Opera Roles

Auditions to give young singers a chance to win minor roles in several operas will start tomorrow afternoon at the Civic Opera house, it was announced yesterday by Paul Longone, general director of the new Chicago Grand Opera company, which will open a season of five weeks on Dec. 26.

Genaro Papi, musical director, will be in active charge of the tryouts. The auditions will be made by registration for a period for each entrant. The appointments can be made through Harold E. Ray, business manager of the opera, in room 232 of the Civic Opera building, or by calling Randolph 9229.

"Rather than leave the ambitious ones to rely solely upon their own efforts, we are trying to meet them half way," said Mr. Longone. "We are trying to present them with opportunities which otherwise they might spend months or even years in trying to reach."

Mr. Longone believes there will be little difficulty in filling the roles remaining open in a manner agreeable to the musical authorities as well as the public.

The subscription office of the newly organized company will open at 9 o'clock this morning on the main floor of the opera building, and the general business offices will be opened at the same time on the second floor.

Prices have been cut in half as compared with those of the former Civic Opera. Instead of the $1 to $6 scale, tickets will be from 50 cents to $3. Prices of boxes, announced at $25, will probably be changed because of several innovations which are yet to be introduced.

Grace Moore, one of the most beautiful women of the opera stage and the first of the star artists to sign a contract with the new company, passed through Chicago yesterday. Accompanied by her husband, Valentin Parera, she was on her way to fill engagements with a grand opera company and the symphony orchestra at San Francisco. Miss Moore will appear here in "Manon" shortly after the season opens.

What a Girl Is Aggie! But She's Not Real

Good Morning!

Yes—but you don't believe it.

The story isn't credible and the characters aren't honestly drawn. Never have I seen anybody more miscast than Charles Farrell—who returns to the screen after an absence of some months.

While he's permitted to be shy and refined he's all right, but when they turn him into a husky—good NIGHT!

He is seen as a scholarly Bostonese who comes to the wicked city to get a position. Aggie Appleby, minus a boy friend for the time, her battling Red having been sent up the river for several good reasons, takes Adoneram in hand and lands him a job as—foreman of a labor gang . . . !!!!!!

William Gargan makes the rôle of Red as convincing as the scenario permits—which is not very. Betty Furness gives a pleasing account of herself as Adoneram's fiancée. Jane Darwell is faintly amusing as a steel hearted landlady with a saccharine front.

Wynne Gibson does sincere work as Aggie, but she knows, as you know, that it's a shame for her to be wasted on such a part. Zasu Pitts endeavors to inject comedy.

The scrap basket, and not the screen was the place for this effusion.

Two Popular Debutantes Act as Saleswomen

Two of the most popular debutantes of the winter are Miss Barbara Bastien (left) and Miss Patsy Keith. This picture of them was taken when they assisted at the Eli Bates sale at Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen's residence on Astor street where they proved themselves to be very capable saleswomen. Miss Bastien is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin E. Bastien and Miss Keith whose name is Leslie although she never is called anything but Patsy, is the Stanley Keiths' elder daughter. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Bureaus End Troubles of Yuletide List

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Have you lost your courage about this frenzied Christmas shopping that sneaks up on you before you realize that that important date is less than a month away? The clever thing to do is to use the Personal Shopping bureaus. Staffed by bright young shoppers who would rather shop than eat, they accomplish wonders. Nothing can stun or surprise these alert helpers to the "don't know what to buy" or you "suggest something" Christmas spenders.

Suggestive shopping goes on all the year round, but they dash about with twice the enthusiasm the weeks before Christmas.

Husbands have the vaguest ideas about their wives. They send in and ask for lingerie sized 36, its absolutely incredible, the preponderance of this magic size among the ladies, and even though a good half of the lingerie is returned for sizes 32 to 52, the blissfully ignorant masculine shopper still clings pridefully to that 36.

If you are a doting aunt or uncle you can write and shelve your worries, for shopping for the youngsters is always thrilling. If you are miles away from Chicago and want to impress a certain person on your list, do try the shopping service . . . long lists of satisfied swains who did this very thing attest the success of the shopping bureau.

They're really most obliging persons, these knowing shoppers . . . you can send in your lists, the exact sum of money you can spend, and forget it all until the morning these purchases arrive and you sigh with satisfied content and realize your Christmas shopping is finished without the usual flurry and consternation and misgivings, to say nothing of the wear and tear on your anatomy and patience.

NOTE to duck hunters. Probably the neatest tragedy of the shooting season, as relayed by Dale Fisher, concerns the enthusiastic duck hunter who motored to Canada, donned shooting clothes and, from before dawn, crouched for hours, waiting for the rustle of wings. When he finally heard them he leaped up, forgetting the confining height of the concrete hideaway, whammed his head against the roof, and knocked himself unconscious.

"Oi! It's not the beeg bad volf that is bothering me. It's the tree little pigs in the front office."

* *

TWO girls who teach English went to the theater last week and got two single seats, one behind the other. One of them observing the man seated next to her did not address the person sitting on the other side, and hoping that, were he alone, he might change places with her companion so they could sit together, whispered:

"Are you alone?"

To her astonishment, the man responded:

THERE is little to equal the poise and nonchalance of a child. For instance, there is Guy, in the first grade at the Chopin school. He talked enthusiastically to his teacher and his classmates for weeks about his new baby sister, describing her minutely, and volunteering many details about her arrival. His mother had occasion to visit school, and the teacher commented on the new baby.

"But we have no new baby," exclaimed the surprised mother. They both turned to Guy for explanation.

"O, I just thought we had," he vouchsafed.

IT was at a so-called boxing exhibition, to which admission was a dollar. The contestants were waltzing each other around the ring and the crowd voiced its disapproval. One of the handlers near the ring, angered by the booing, shouted:

WELL, we've told you about something that happened in a duck blind, at a boxing match, on a southbound "L," at a theater, at the Chopin school. We didn't actually see or hear any of those things. They were reported by our scouts [and don't think we don't appreciate it]. What we actually did see was pretty interesting, come to think of it. Particularly seeing the dogs. There were two, collie and shepherd, named Semie and Queen, accompanied by their master, named Gatchel, a slender little man with shrewd, kindly blue eyes and a pointed beard. The guests were seated about the drawing room when the dogs were brought in, and during the half hour that followed the dogs did not only all the things their master told them to do, but also what the guests suggested. Told to shake hands with the lady in the red gown, Queen gravely looked about the circle, picked out the hostess in red velvet, walked over and politely offered her paw. Similarly, and without hesitation, she picked out the girl wearing green sandals, and the man who was described to her as the one who was "holding a handkerchief between his folded hands." Both dogs barked answers to addition problems offered by the guests, and displayed such intelligence it was impossible not to think they understood what was said to them. Mr. Gatchel has a theory about how to train dogs, and, as an animal lover, we were unable to detect the cringing manner in his pets that usually means cruel training.

F. Rezner of the Port Byron Congregational church preached the concluding sermon of the centennial observance this evening and the Rev. D. C. Ellinwood of the Methodist church participated in the service.

"Aida" Presented Without Ballet as Dancers Strike

New York, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Alfredo Salmaggi's Chicago Opera company, which has been giving popular priced performances at the vast old Hippodrome, presented "Aida" without its two graceful ballet numbers today. The reason was that Maestro Salmaggi had no dancers—they all walked out on strike a few minutes before the curtain, alleging he owed the 18 of them $163.75 plus pay for today's rehearsal.

Page Mr. Pomeroy

SYNOPSIS.

Bruce Pomeroy, brought up in poverty, befriended a Russian, Boris Orleneff. In return Orleneff, before his death, left Pomeroy a simple invention which is about to make Pomeroy a millionaire. Orleneff didn't want his brother's family, whom he considered parasites, to get a cent from the invention. While taking his morning walk through New York's Central park Pomeroy stops to aid a girl in apparent distress from a sprained ankle. He is seized by three men and overpowered. After a long motor and boat trip he is imprisoned in a comfortable room in a beautiful home. Next morning his captor calls. He is Boris Orleneff, nephew of the inventor. With him is his cousin, Cyril Norrikoff.

"Let's come right down to brass tacks, Pomeroy," he invited. "I don't like law suits, either. One has to wait too long for results. I'm a reasonable man and I'm willing to compromise for a reasonable amount. Boris Orleneff was a bachelor. My father was his only brother. My mother and my sister and I are his legal heirs. You're an outsider. You've got the clip and you've been able to make money with it, which I admit he never could do. Pay me a reasonable amount and my mother and my sister and I won't trouble you again. We'll sign a document that will protect you hereafter. How about it?

Pomeroy looked at him. "One thing is certain," he said, "I wouldn't have given you a cent if you had come to my office. I intend to keep my oath to your uncle. I might have done something else for you—got you a job or something of the sort. But I'll never deal with you as a prisoner. I won't be chloroformed and kidnaped and forced into a settlement. You haven't a claim on one penny from your uncle's invention. "I'll see you in hell before I do a thing for you."

Orleneff looked at him. It was a long, strange look. Pomeroy met it steadily, his brown eyes showing a suggestion of red in their clear flame.

"That's final?" Orleneff asked at last.

The young man shrugged his shoulders. His face, rather strikingly pale even at first inspection, took on a more livid hue. Suddenly he looked rather ill.

"Boris, let me talk to him," Norrikoff urged.

Grateful crept toward him along the wall.

"Boss," he said hoarsely, "I c'n handle this baby. He'll be beggin' ya to take all he's got, if ye'll jest leave 'm to me."

"Boss," he said hoarsely, "I c'n handle this baby."

Orleneff gave the suggestion time to sink into the consciousness of the hearer most interested in it. Then he smiled.

"O, no," he said easily. "Your notions are too primitive, Grateful. We've got past the rack and thumb screw period. At least," he added guardedly, "I hope we have. We'll keep Mr. Pomeroy with us a few days and see if we can't teach him to love us. In the meantime," he rose and turned back to his prisoner, "will you give me your word not to try to escape? You couldn't do it anyway, in this storm, but give me your word as a formality. You might be fool enough to try it and get yourself drowned, and that would be annoying—after all the trouble we've taken to bring you here."

"I certainly won't make any promises." Pomeroy gave him a straight look. "It's my intention to get out of this damned trap the first chance I have."

Orleneff surveyed him discontentedly.

"Why do you have to make things so unpleasant?" he complained. "If you give me your word not to try to escape, I'll let you join my family circle downstairs."

"All living on Uncle Boris till he ran away from them," Pomeroy wearily interrupted. "I know. I've heard a lot about them. I'd rather like to meet them. Look here. Suppose we compromise. Let me come down to lunch or dinner and meet your family. I'll promise not to make any effort to escape till I'm brought upstairs again."

"Sorry," Orleneff said crisply. "Our prisoner can't eat with us. But you can come down to the living room and spend the day, but you must get back to your own quarters for your soup at noon and at night."

Pomeroy stood up and stared at him incredulously.

"My soup," he echoed. "Do you mean that I'm to have nothing but bread and soup while I'm in this infernal house?"

"But—what the devil do you mean by it? I'm used to a couple of square meals a day."

"You'll think more clearly without them. Won't he, Grateful?" Orleneff turned to the henchman.

"He sure will, boss." Grateful spoke with conviction.

"You see we're quite agreed on that," Orleneff told Pomeroy. "Sorry to have a guest complaining of his food, but in the circumstances—would you like to come down with us now? Parole first, you know."

Pomeroy hesitated.

"Can you lend me a clean shirt and collar and some handkerchiefs?" he asked. "I suppose it's tactless to mention it to Gentleman Jim, but you and your gang were rather careless with my linen yesterday. I really need another tie, too."

"How the devil can I help it? I think of you that way."

Orleneff strode toward him and faced him squarely.

"See here, Pomeroy," he asked quietly, "what do you expect to gain by making yourself so infernally objectionable? If you use ordinary self-control and mind your manners you won't have a bad time here. If not——"

"If not, your little friend over against the wall will bring out the hot irons and his tweezers?" Pomeroy suggested. "Well, let me tell you right now Gentleman Jim, that he won't do anything of the sort. I don't think either you or your partners here want to lengthen the prison stretch that you are going to get after this little joke is over. Now, how about some clean shirts?"

"Your things might fit him," Orleneff turned to Grateful, "mine wouldn't. Got anything clean?"

"Nope, 'cept what I gotta use. But the general might have some. He's big enough.

"All right. See what you can find. Tell the general Mr. Pomeroy's suitcase was washed off the boat last night. It would have been if he'd had one," Orleneff smiled.

He went toward the door. "Come down when you're ready, Pomeroy. It's an experiment. And, by the way, the ladies of my family think you are a voluntary guest here. They think you have come as an open minded man to see me and to talk over a possible settlement and avoid a lawsuit. I must have your word also that you won't do anything to unsettle that——"

"That delusion," Pomeroy supplied. "Are you really asking me to believe that the ladies of your family have no idea how I was brought here?"

"Believe it or not, as you like," Cyril said unpleasantly, "it happens to be the truth, except in the case of my sister, Olga, who went to New York with us. Even she didn't know we'd have to dope you."

"I see. They're not in on the kidnaping racket. It makes a charming situation for social intercourse."

"Something tells me that we won't see much of you in our family circle," Orleneff said coldly.

"I have the same premonition," Pomeroy assured him, "but I'll try anything once. Run along now, Gentleman Jim, and take your cousin with you. Spread the glad news that I'm coming down later. I've had enough of your society for the moment."

Doris Blake Answers

Proves Own Weakness.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a boy of 21 who is married. I have tried to forget him, but I can't. Please advise. GEORGIE."

Carrying on an affair with a married man is admitting your inability to attract single men. What's the matter with you, Georgie?

He's Too Bashful.

"Dear Miss Blake: A man I like seems too bashful to ask for a date. How can I encourage him? "BARBARA."

Help him out by asking him to take you to some party to which you're invited, or by giving a party yourself and asking him as a guest.

Authors Hire Beauty to Bar Office Callers

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Bunny Bronson, one of the queenly looking beauties whom Fox used for feminine adornment purposes in recent films, has been employed by those two worthies, Gene Fowler and Ben Hecht, in the most unusual job in Hollywood.

Miss Bronson draws her salary for wearing a highly décolleté evening gown—sometimes black, and sometimes red—and sitting all day at a desk outside the Fowler-Hecht writing suite at MGM studio. Her job is to irritate all would-be interviewers of Fowler and Hecht and to bar callers out of the offices.

Fowler and Hecht enjoy it immensely. As a matter of fact, both take the movies simply as a vast playground set up on the west coast for the purpose [1] of satisfying their unusual sense of humor, [2] of paying them high salaries and [3] of providing a vehicle for the Fowler and Hecht imaginations to present various creations to the public.

After several days of excited efforts to fill the rôle from which Lee Tracy was yanked in MGM's "Viva Villa," Stuart Erwin is announced as chosen to re-do the part of the American reporter who gains the confidence of the leader of the Mexican irregulars.

Wallace Beery refused to say a word about the Tracy episode when he landed in his own plane, late yesterday, after flying back home solo from the Mexican location site.

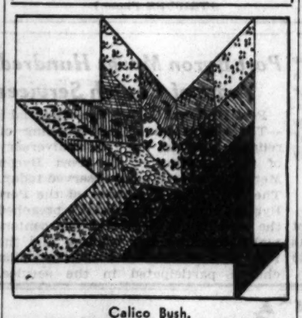
H. W. Hanemann, writer and humorist, has a photograph of his wife and two dogs on his desk at Radio studio. The photograph is captioned: "The Unholy Three."

Colorful Calico Makes Attractive Bush for Quilt



Calico Bush.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Nowadays calico is used only for the frocks of children and the housewife's morning dresses, but when this unusual quilt pattern was created, 'way back in American history, calico gowns formed the basis of every woman's wardrobe.

If you have any odds and ends of calico left over after making small daughter's dresses and your own aprons, a "Calico Bush" quilt will make good use of them. The bush is made of prints cut diamond shape, growing from a pot in plain color. It's quite simple to make.

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE STORY OF PETE MONAHAN.

"Pete Monahan," said Prof. Fordney, "had been tipped off that his brother was being brought back from the south under guard on a charge of embezzlement in Philadelphia. He even knew the car number and that his brother and guards would be riding in the drawing room.

"He hastened down to Wilmington, the last stop before Philadelphia, and after buying a ticket to Philadelphia, paced impatiently up and down the platform in the cold, driving November rain.

"As the train approached the station the torrent was intensified, but that meant little to Pete—he was out to save his brother. Having previously learned where car 62-B would probably stop, he drew back into the station doorway as the Iron Horse came to a halt.

"Beside a drawing room window of 62-B he saw the heavy, stern countenance of his brother's guard and next to 'the law' slouched his brother, dark circles under his eyes and a hopeless, hapless, strained expression on his face. Confident he had not been observed by either, Pete dashed through the rain to the Pullman car behind, pushed aside a startled porter and mounted the steps. He had about 40 minutes before the train reached Philadelphia. He must think fast and act fast. He did both! Once they were well under way he . . ."

"We asked you for one of your own crime cases, Joe," interrupted a fellow club member, "and you're up to your old tricks—even an old codger like myself can spot the fallacy in that story."

WHAT WAS IT?

Perhaps you have a story or problem you would like to submit to Prof. Fordney. If so, send it to him care of this paper. He will be delighted to receive it.

Many Events on Calendar Today.

Gatherings that will concern themselves with everything from Thanksgiving festivity to international cooperation dot today's calendar. The Lake Shore League of Women Voters will hold a round table discussion at a luncheon at the Arts club.

Clark Eichelberger, the executive secretary of the league of nations, who has only recently returned from Geneva, and the Rev. Theodore Hume will lead the international coöperation forum. Mrs. Mitchell Follansbee, the league president, will preside.

Beginning at 2:30, the board members of the ever active Sunbeam league are to have a Thanksgiving party for the children at the Nancy McElwee home, better known as the Home for Destitute Crippled Children. Here the league maintains one of its very worthwhile kindergartens. Mrs. James McKenna is providing the ice cream, cake, and turkey favors for this party.

The Lake View Musical society is offering its first active members' concert at 2:30 today in the drawing room of Mrs. Edwin J. Mosser's apartment at 25 East Walton place. Nine artists are to give the program.

Two of the oldest living alumnae of Monticello seminary, Mrs. Ida Ray Coleman of the class of 1876 and Mrs. Charles Randle of the class of 1876, are to be guests at the tea the Chicago alumnae are to have from 3 to 6 o'clock today at St. Chrysostom's parish house. As president of the alumnae Mrs. Lucille Haskell Simonds will be the hostess. Theodore S. Chapman, a member of the Monticello board of trustees, will attend the tea as a special guest and Miss Marian Smith will speak briefly on "Monticello Today."

Mrs. Linn Will Enjoy Vacation.

Having succeeded in introducing opera intime to Chicago society, Mrs. Howard Linn is planning to have a short vacation, but not before she sets in motion the machinery to make a success of the second of the three performances of intimate opera she has planned as a benefit for Olivet institute. The second will be on Tuesday evening, Dec. 19.

Mrs. Linn is giving a luncheon this noon for Miss Mimi Orr at the Casino, and tonight she and the Byron S. Harveys, Mrs. Walter Paepcke, and Mrs. C. Farwell Winston are leaving for Kansas City to attend the opening concert of the Kansas City Philharmonic orchestra tomorrow night. Karl Krueger, who is conducting the operas intimes here, is the director of the Kansas City orchestra.

Immediately after the concert tomorrow night the party of Chicagoans will return home and on Wednesday Mrs. Linn will take an airplane for Washington. From there she will go to Middleburg, Va., where she is keeping her horses, for the Thanksgiving fox hunt. About Dec. 10 she will be back at home, ready to plunge into preparations for the Dec. 19 intimate operas, Stravinsky's "Pulcinella" and Debuzzy's "L'Enfant Prodigue."

Stravinsky's opera will be done with the ballet pantomiming the story, the singers and the orchestra supplying the conversation and the music.

Second Daughter Born to Erdmans.

Many messages have been sent to the Pasadena hospital in Pasadena, Cal., congratulating the C. Pardee Erdmans on the birth of their second daughter on Nov. 20. Mr. and Mrs. Erdman's other daughter, little Laura Thorne Erdman, is four, and their son, Pardee Jr., is two.

The Erdmans live in Montana in the summer time, but the third week in September usually finds them at their home in Pasadena. Mrs. Richard R. Donnelley is the baby's great-grandmother, and the numerous Donnelleys in Chicago are her aunts, uncles, and cousins.

The popular Mrs. Clive Runnells, who is here spending a fortnight with the Charles Garfield Kings of 1530 State parkway, was in Lake Forest for the week-end, stopping Friday night with the Stanley Keiths and the rest of the time with the Philip D. Armours, who gave a dinner party for her Saturday night. Mrs. Runnells is returning to Mrs. King's today and will be in Chicago until the end of the week. Then she will return to her husband and sons in Santa Barbara.

WOMAN'S AND MISS' NEGLIGEE.

This dainty negligee affords attractive use of contrasting colors and would make a lovely Christmas gift, to say nothing of making it for oneself. The pattern, No. 3098, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

Enviable Hands Are Important Beauty Assets

Housewives and Typists Have Greatest Needs.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It is reported in a trade paper that the two classes of hands most in need of treatment are housework hands and typewriting hands. Next in order are athletic hands and somewhere in the treatment needing group come stained hands, more often nicotine-stained than fruit-acid stained, although there are many of the latter.

Bridge afternoons and evenings are well under way by now. With everybody playing, and every pair of hands wishing to be beyond suspicion of anything but beauty.

It's amazing when you think of woman's activities today, how much better, on the whole, hands are kept. True, we are not so beauty-critical of size and shape of hands. If they're well groomed that's all that is expected. But what that well groomed look means is something else again.

It isn't only nails. It isn't the kind of polish used, though that is important, too. But it is the groomed look of the skin on the hand that matters. And it is surprising how many women today take hand treatments as they take facials. And how many, many women who do their own housework manage a pair of enviable hands in spite of the wear and tear of dishwater and duster.

It's funny about nail polishes as worn in different parts of the country. I found in Chicago in the late summer a strong male prejudice against the deep red polish, with women there conforming to the male's taste. Not all Chicago women, of course, but many on whom you'd expect to see the colored nail.

In Hollywood, where I went after my Chicago stay, nails were for the most part extremely red, and some of the women there, like Tashman and Dietrich, ignored the white tipped finish, with nails coated from base to long nail tip. You have to get used to that, if ever.

Obstructionist Fathers Wreck Happy Homes

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: I have just finished reading your article for today. I am having trouble along that line and wonder if you can't give me some advice in next Sunday's column. I am sure there are many other mothers who may have the same trouble, though, for their children's sake, I hope not.

"My husband thoroughly spoiled our first two boys. I insisted that they should eat vegetables, cereals, and drink milk. He insisted they didn't need to—said he didn't like them and was alive today.

"Our baby girl is 2½ and I am going through the same thing again. When I am alone with her she drinks her milk. When my husband is here no amount of persuasion will do any good. The baby is getting so unruly at every meal. She pushes her dishes back and jumps down from the table.

"I have tried to keep up with up to date methods in raising my children, but his mother and he say that you can't raise a child by a book. There must be other mothers in the same boat. Give us an oar."

This is one of the hardest problems to help with—the father who is an obstructionist who thinks there is nothing he can learn and that a book about children is a joke. No home can run happily and smoothly unless father and mother get together on the subject of their children.

Surely a woman in a situation like this needs help. Anybody who says the things that this husband says is displaying an ignorance as deep and wide as the sea. Milk and vegetables are vital foods, the protective foods for growth. That a grown person can continue to exist without them is no argument. A grown-up hasn't the same needs as a child. And even that a child might seem well without these foods is no argument.

[Kochne Photo.]

Miss Dorothy Fulton, daughter of Mrs. Henry A. Fulton of 547 Brompton place, formerly of Hinsdale, is to be married to Harold Harrison Affhauser, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Affhauser of Greenfield, Mass., on Thanksgiving afternoon.

The service will be read at 5 o'clock by the Rev. Dudley S. Stark at the residence of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. Wallace Johnson of 10 East Schiller street.

The bride's three little nieces, Angeline and Joan Johnson and Jane Fulton will be her attendants, and Frank R. Bryant of Chicago will serve as best man for Mr. Affhauser. After a honeymoon in Bermuda Mr. and Mrs. Affhauser will be at home in Greenfield, Mass.

Interestingness Is Responsible for Popularity

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Why are some girls, who have no particular beauty or background, popular, while others remain chained to the reading lamp?" Reubin repeats the lonesome one's question.

"They do not know they're not interesting. What's more, they indulge in all kinds of charges against the male to alibi their own lethargy about making themselves interesting.

"They say we men only fall for girls who are free and easy. They say we only go out with girls who show off to good advantage. They say we are cheap. We are always ready to take advantage of a nice girl. You'd think we men were a bunch of rotters with no claim or relationship to the same sort of home training those girls themselves are used to. You'd think were were raised in a family without any ideals about women. That our mothers gave the girls only the advantage of moral training. All of which is sheer poppycock, and I dare those accusing young women to prove their statements!

"But we do want our girls to be entertaining, not prudes that hang on every word or action looking for trouble, manufacturing insults out of them when such is the last thing in a fellow's mind.

"Whether a girl pets or not has nothing to do with the question. If she doesn't pet and is interesting, we fellows will see her often and regard her highly. If she's interesting we won't regard her less highly because she does pet. But if she's dull and thinks all she has to do to gain a fellow's interest is to pet, she is no conquest for any man and gets the cold shoulder quickly.

"Girls are swell," Reuben closes. "There are darned many interesting ones today and a fellow doesn't have to burden himself with one of those duds who is willing to remain chained to the reading lamp.

BY MARY MEADE.

Can food families have a coat of arms? If they can, custards must certainly claim an egg and a bottle of milk as theirs. What's more, if we can also allow them a family tree, it's a certain thing that the custard family tree must have its roots down deep in the kitchen history of almost every country.

"'Way Back When," they were quite simple about their custard tastes. The original egg and milk affairs hadn't yet married into the vegetable, fruit, meat, and seafoods families as they have today. Maybe you'll remember some of the old custard names—tart fluff, maiden cream, and burnt cream. The long ago English cooks even had one they called fool.

But don't ever admit the habit of thinking of custards simply as desserts for children. Unsweetened, with cooked rice or other cereal added, they make smoothly pleasing accompaniments for a chicken dinner. Add bread crumbs and a touch of onion and they hobnob sociably with fish dishes. Add vegetables and you have a luncheon dish. Add minced chicken, mushrooms, or flaked fish with macaroni and lo! —dinner dishes! There are even custards for garnishing, and others for salad dressings.

There are really four ways of making custards—baked custards, steamed custards, soft custards, and chiffon custards. The same recipe is used in the first three, and the methods are well known to us. Chiffon custards, the most modern cousins, are made by separating the eggs before making the custard, then folding in the stiffly beaten whites last.

Now a few tips on the making. Custard cooking should always be most deliberate and unhurried. If the heat is just right and the custard not cooked too long the egg becomes and stays just thick enough to hold the liquid in its meshes. If it goes beyond this point you'll find the egg separating from the milk and you'll have what we know as "watery" or "curdled" custard. For this reason we bake custard in a shallow pan of hot water, in a moderately slow oven [325 degrees F.], and pronounce them done as soon as a thin knife blade when inserted in the center comes out clean.

When these same custards are steamed by covering them closely, setting them in water on top of the stove and simmering, it's important that the water beneath isn't allowed to boil. Soft custards are best safeguarded by cooking them over hot water in a double boiler, stirring constantly. They're done just as soon as the custard is thick enough to coat the spoon.

If ever your soft custard does curdle a little you may be able to improve it by pouring it at once into a cool dish and beating with a rotary egg beater. But the best way is the use of precautions before, so we won't need them afterward.

Plaited Frills Give Variety to Plain Silhouette

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—All the fashionable world being now back in Paris, styles for the season are nicely jellied and set in the slim, straight mold the dressmakers showed in August. You do not have to worry about flares and other complications in picking out your daytime frocks. The chic dress is just as slim and plain as can be, with all the novelty breaking out around the top or the bottom, or both.

A number of the smartest women here have chosen the Mirande way of putting style interest into their simple, narrow day dresses. It is shown herewith, and consists of plaited frills around the neck and on the hem.

This dress is made of almond green angora woolen, and the blouse part is fitted around the shoulders by sunray seams that meet the standing frill at the neck. A band of baby velvet ribbon in dark brown is tied around the neck between frill and yoke effect, and makes a string bow in front.

The hem ruffle has a narrow heading, and the fitted sleeves have deep self material cuffs that flare at the outside and top like mousquetaire cuffs.

Two Choruses Have Part in Day of Music

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Two choruses, a song recital, and a dance recital made up the musical attractions offered in the downtown district yesterday afternoon, and the fact that they all were of merit was all the better for those who found difficulty in making a choice.

Hall Johnson brought his Negro choir to sing at the Studebaker for the benefit of the Christopher House association. He, it will be remembered, was the one who built up the musical side of "Green Pastures." With vivid memories of that melodious work, the choir yesterday was even a better singing organization, better in tone quality, in alertness, in delicacy of expression.

Most of the program consisted of spirituals, but there was one group of secular songs that included such extremely secular works as "John Henry" and the "St. Louis Blues." But whatever the character of the songs, the Hall Johnson choir was their expert and persuasive interpreter.

The Don Cossack male chorus, by no means newcomers to Chicago, were at Orchestra hall, and continued to be, as they always have been, about the best male choir in existence today. If they could only sing in English, or if the ordinary concert goer could only understand Russian, they would be about ideal. As it is, one is obliged to take them on the basis of fine, spirited Russian music, both liturgical and folk, and sung with a complete range from the merest whisper to a jovial blast that fairly shakes the building.

Will Blallock, baritone, gave a song recital in the Illinois theater, displaying a voice of fine quality and most of the impulses of a trained musician, including the ability to pronounce the English language clearly.

The dance recital of the afternoon was presented by Eleanore Block at the Punch and Judy theater. She has talent and imagination, natural grace, and acquired talent. Her dance composition had been constructed with an acute ear to both the rhythm and the character of the music, and she performed them deftly and with fine manner.

The Stage

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

"Music in the Air," the operetta which came to the Erlanger theater a week ago, after a year's run in New York, to be generally praised as an exceptional lyric entertainment, will probably end its stay in Chicago next Saturday night. The management issued an announcement of the closing yesterday, with reservations to the effect that the final decision depended upon today's box office omens.

In any event, the Chicago run of "Music in the Air," first figured at a full season, will not extend beyond Christmas. Arrangements have already been made to bring the Theater Guild's staging of the comedy, "Biography," with Ina Claire in the central rôle, back to the Erlanger on Christmas night.

"Bitter Sweet," Noel Coward's operetta, which is now at the Grand Opera house, with Allan Jones and Marion Claire as stars, will end its engagement next Saturday night. The company will continue its tour, with bookings in Toronto, Washington, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, and Boston.

The next offering at the Grand Opera house will be Eva Le Gallienne in three of her New York Civic repertory plays—"Alice in Wonderland," "Romeo and Juliet," and "Hedda Gabler." This engagement will begin Christmas night with "Alice in Wonderland" as the bill for most of the performances in the holiday period.

Miss Le Gallienne, one of the most distinguished actresses of the American stage, has not acted in Chicago for seven years. Her last appearances here were in Molnar's "The Swan," at the Blackstone theater, and Ibsen's "Master Builder," at the Princess, in 1925 and 1926. In the fall of 1926 she established her Civic Repertory theater in New York, where she has made many notable productions. Her current tour is the first she has undertaken with this organization.

Smartness simply demands that lips be Tattooed instead of coated with paste. And, why not! After all, it's color you want. Apply TATTOO like ordinary lipstick . . . let it set . . . then wipe off. Only the color stays. It really stays too—for hours and hours. No purplish cast either, and instead of drying your lips as "indelible" lipsticks do, TATTOO keeps them soft . . . invitingly soft! Choose one of the four really exciting shades, by actual test on your own skin, at any of our toilet goods counters.

No. 1 has an exciting orangish pink cast. Rather light. Revealing on blondes and titian blondes. It is called "CORAL."

No. 2 is our choice of them all. An exotic, new shade—brilliant, yet transparent. Somehow we just cannot find the right words to describe it. It is called "EXOTIC."

No. 3 is a medium shade. A true, rich, blood color that will be an asset to any brunette. It is called "NATURAL."

No. 4 is of the type that changes color when applied to the lips. Gives an unusually transparent richness and a depth of warm color that is truly amazing. It is called "PASTEL."

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Six minutes to play! Portsmouth's Spartans led Chicago's Bears, 14 to 10. Then Bill Hewitt, bellwether of the Bears' last quarter rallies, and big Bronko Nagurski swung into action. Final score: Bears, 17; Portsmouth, 14.

Beating the Bears at Wrigley field still is the most difficult assignment in National Professional league football. Portsmouth, from which eleven the Bears wrested the 1932 championship, was all ready to receive telegrams of congratulations from the home folks yesterday in the fight for first place in the western division of the pro league.

But the Spartans had discounted the ability of Hewitt, and when the firing was over the Bears had written finis to their losing streak and had duplicated the Merriwell finishes which had featured their performances at Wrigley field this season. It was the sixth time in seven victories that the fourth quarter had been all important.

Bronko Goes 29 Yards.

The stirring finish, when many of the 9,000 fans had about decided the Bears were to lose their first game on home grounds, followed precedent except that the touchdown was scored by a brilliant 29 yard run by Nagurski around the right end of the Portsmouth scrimmage line instead of the usual forward pass. Nagurski scored after Hewitt had blocked Elmer Schaake's punt. The ball bounded sideward from Hewitt's outstretched hands and the alert Johnny Sisk pursued and fell on the ball, winning a race from the Spartans who sought possession.

Here was opportunity beckoning, and Nagurski, with splendid interference, capitalized on it. He overpowered the first Spartan tacklers and then straightened out down the eastern sideline. Nagurski burst into the abbreviated end zone at so great a speed that, unable to check himself, he tumbled headlong into the concrete baseball dugout. While he was not seriously injured, he left the game in favor of Jack Manders, who added the extra point to the touchdown by a placement.

It's No. 1 Thriller.

Manders also had kicked the extra point after Bill Karr's touchdown in the first quarter on a forward-lateral pass, and before that had place kicked the field goal which ultimately proved to be the winning points.

The battle was the most thrilling of the many thrillers in which the Bears have participated this year. Despite the early snowfall yesterday morning the gridiron, from which the white snow blanket had been scrapped, afforded firm footing for the ball carriers. And the forward passers were under no handicap. The thousands of fans were inconvenienced, but they forgot the cold, chill wind from the northwest as they watched the best football battle of the season.

The Bears stepped away to a 10 to 3 lead in the first quarter. They then saw the aroused Spartans, favored by the wind, come back to cross the goal in the second period and only fail to take the lead when the Bears checked the Portsmouth assault one foot from the final line.

Presnell Errs on Run.

Glen Presnell was the fleetfooted lad who scored for Portsmouth and he added the extra point by placement. He also might have made a second touchdown except that he chose to cut into the line from the 3 yard strip instead of following his interference around the left end of the Bears' scrimmage line.

So the first half ended with the Bears leading, 10 to 7.

This advantage of the Bears apparently was sufficient to win. Throughout the third period the Bears played Portsmouth to a standstill, although the Spartans had the advantage in defending the north goal. The

Burnett Intercepts Pass and Runs 85 Yards.

New York, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The New York Giants maintained their lead in the eastern division of the National Professional Football league today, defeating the Green Bay Packers, 17 to 6, before a crowd of 20,000.

The first score came on an 85 yard run by Dale Burnett, former Emporia Teachers half back. Intercepting a Packer pass on his own 15 yard line, Burnett dodged and squirmed through the whole Green Bay team. Thrown off balance on the 10 yard line, Burnett fell but regained his feet and staggered across the goal line carrying two Packers with him.

Badgro Takes Pass.

In the third period, with the ball on the Green Bay 33 yard line, Harry Newman tossed a pass to Burnett. Hinkle of the Packers and Burnett both jumped for it. The ball bounded from them right into the arms of Badgro, who stepped across the line for the second touchdown.

A few minutes later Burnett made a fair catch of a poor Packer punt. With the ball on the 30 yard line, New York elected to try a free kick. Strong made good with a placement.

Green Bay Scores.

In the final period the Packers gave up trying to dent the Giant line and resorted to passes. Two throws by Herber finally resulted in a Green Bay score. The first, to Bruder, was good for 50 yards. A few plays later Gantenbein made a one hand catch of a 30 yard pass and fell across the goal line with a tackler on top of him.

DODGERS, 14; REDSKINS, 0

New York, Nov. 26.—(AP)—A smoothly working Brooklyn eleven, flashing its most varied forward passing attack of the season, beat the Boston Redskins, 14 to 0, in a National Professional Football league game here today before a crowd of 15,000.

The Dodgers' touchdowns came in the first and last periods, the second one after an intercepted Boston pass.

In the first quarter Oliver Sansen smashed over from the four yard line and Benny Friedman kicked the extra point. Friedman's bullet-like passes, two of them advancing the ball from midfield, put the ball in scoring position.

The second touchdown came in the midst of a desperate but ineffectual barrage of Boston passes, when Johnny Thomason intercepted one of Cliff Battles' heaves on the Boston 24 yard line and ran it back ten yards. On the next play Chris Cagle faded back and sent a pass to Shipwreck Kelly, who shook off a tackler and ran over the goal line. Hickman kicked a goal.

EAGLES, 20; REDS, 3

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Gathering momentum after a slow start, the Philadelphia Eagles swept aside the Cincinnati Reds, 20 to 3, today in a National Professional Football league game.

Swede Hansen, Eagles' full back and former Temple university star, kept the crowd of 10,000 in an uproar with his broken field dashes, on one occasion carrying the ball 70 yards on three consecutive plays.

Jack Roberts, one time Georgia star, crashed over the center of the Cincinnati line in the second period for the Eagles' first score after Hansen and his mates had completed a steady advance of 42 yards. Sylvester Davis kicked the extra point.

Hansen raced the ball 70 yards to the Reds' five yard line in the third period, Davis going around end for Philadelphia's second touchdown. Cincinnati tried an aerial attack in the final period, but Ike Woodruff intercepted a pass on his own 45 yard line and ran 55 yards for a touchdown. Joe Carter kicked the extra point.

The Eagles made 15 first downs to 8 for the Reds.

NINE VICTORIES PLACE ARMY ON TOP IN THE EAST

New York, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Army's football cadets plowed into the lead among the east's elevens yesterday, hanging up their ninth successive victory without a setback in the 12 to 7 triumph over Navy.

Princeton, by beating Rutgers, likewise boasts a perfect record, as do Bluefield college and St. Thomas, both of which were idle yesterday. Davis and Elkins lost its first decision of the year to St. Vincent, but the Purple hurricane still held a wide edge in scoring with 379 points.

TILDEN TENNIS TROUPE MAY GET SOME RECRUITS

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 26.—(AP)—William O'Brien, manager of William T. Tilden, said today George Lott, Clifford Sutter, Lester Stoefen, and Keith Gledhill had expressed to him a desire to turn professional tennis players.

O'Brien explained there was nothing definite as yet, but he expressed the belief the quartet would join Tilden, Ellsworth Vines, Bruce Barnes, and others in the spring and play in twenty sectional professional tournaments.

It was announced that the national professional indoor tennis championship tournament will be held in Philadelphia from Dec. 27 to 31. Leading professionals from the east and Europe will contest for the title being defended by Vincent Richards of New York.

Babe Ruth Motors to Maine on Hunting Trip

South Bristol, Me., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Babe Ruth came to Maine today to find out whether he can use a 30-30 rifle as skillfully as he wields a baseball bat. Accompanied by Mrs. Ruth and Mrs. Juanita Elias of New York City, the home run artist motored here, planning to spend three days deer hunting in this section.

Denies Michigan to Drop N. U. for Rough Tactics

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Director Fielding H. Yost refused to make comment and Coach Harry Kipke virtually denied the rumor that Michigan would drop football relations with Northwestern after the 1934 game here, because of alleged roughness in the game at Evanston yesterday.

"The game was rough, and was hard fought all the way," Kipke declared, "but as far as unnecessarily rough play is concerned, I think the reports are exaggerated."

Most of the Michigan players were bruised when they arrived here this afternoon, but only Bill Renner was said to have injuries that might require further attention.

Bruce Barnes Defeats Tilden in Indoor Match

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Big Bill Tilden was defeated by Bruce Barnes, the Texan, 4—6, 6—1, 7—5, in an indoor professional tennis match today. It was the first match Tilden has lost in his native city in years.

Detroit Beats Canadiens, 4-2, Amid Battles

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Detroit's Red Wings outplayed the Montreal Canadiens tonight and, with a spirited fist fight thrown in as an added attraction, downed the Montreal team, 4 to 2, in a hard National league hockey match before some 8,500 spectators.

The Wings scored four goals before the Canadiens could get past Goalie John Ross Roach in the final period. Aurie, Emms, Lewis, Wiseman, and Goodfellow were on the Detroit scoring end, while Mondou and G. Carson tallied for the Canadien squad. Wiseman, little Detroit wingman, and Gagnon, Canadien forward, put on a fistic exhibition in the final period. After it was quelled, each drew major penalties.

162 POUND GUARD NAMED CAPTAIN OF NAVY ELEVEN

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Midshipman Richard H. Burns of Willmar, Minn., today was elected next year's captain of the navy football team. Members of the squad made the choice on their return from Philadelphia, where Army defeated the middies, 12 to 7.

Burns, who is a member of the second or Junior class at the naval academy, will succeed Midshipman Hugh Q. Murray of Newman, Ga., who will be graduated in June. The captain-elect was this year's 162-pound right guard, the lightest man in the Navy line.

Midshipman H. W. McDonald of Wetumpka, Ala., was elected manager of the 1934 football team to succeed Midshipman M. H. Ray, Jr. McDonald, also, is a second classman.

TITLE BELONGS TO MICHIGAN, THOUGH SOME MAY OBJECT

Wolverine Consistency Sets Modern Record.

Michigan's victory over Northwestern Saturday, 13 to 0, gave the Ann Arbor team the Big Ten football championship for the fourth consecutive year, but there will be some who will insist that Minnesota, by virtue of its scoreless tie with the Wolverines, is deserving of equal consideration. Both elevens finished with perfect percentages. However, Minnesota defeated only Iowa and Wisconsin and played ties with Indiana, Purdue, Northwestern, and Michigan.

No matter how the critics figure, Michigan still will have a record unsurpassed in modern Big Ten history—that of winning or sharing in four consecutive titles from 1930 to this season.

Typical Michigan Football.

The victory over Northwestern was gained by typical Michigan style of play. John Regeczi easily outkicked his opponent, Roy Augustson, since Ollie Olson was unable to play because of an injury. With field goals by Herman Everhardus and Ted Petoskey and a 31 yard touchdown pass from Bill Renner to Willis Ward, Negro right end, Michigan piled up more than enough points.

Northwestern's line stopped Michigan's running attack, only to have the Wolverines score on passes or run back kicks to reach scoring territory. As usual, Michigan was impregnable on defense. Illinois and Iowa were the only teams to score on Michigan in Big Ten competition. Regeczi and Bernard, backing up a six man line of Petoskey, Wistert, Kowalik, Hildebrand, Austin, and Ward, have been mainly responsible for the defensive showing. Capt. Stan Fay, in returning punts, and Everhardus, Heston, Renner, and Westover [who have shared back field assignments] have contributed to the success with an alert defense against passes.

Hawkeyes Most Improved.

Michigan was the only team to defeat Ohio State, winning, 13 to 0, before a record crowd of 94,000 at Ann Arbor. Ohio State nosed out Illinois, 7 to 6, Saturday, the same score by which Michigan defeated the Illini. Purdue lost one game this fall, but Iowa, the winner over the Boilermakers, was beaten by Minnesota and Michigan. Even so, the Hawkeyes get the award for the most improved team of the conference.

Inability to score field goals [the 3 to 0 victory over Northwestern being an exception] and to count points after touchdowns cost Illinois the championship or at least an undefeated record. Northwestern won one game, at the expense of Indiana, but finished in seventh place in the final standings. Chicago, Indiana, and Wisconsin failed to register a victory. Chicago tied Wisconsin and Indiana, and the Hoosiers tied Minnesota.

MINNESOTA VS. WISCONSIN

Minnesota and Wisconsin, in addition to playing each other at Minneapolis Saturday afternoon, also collaborated in a joint effort against the weather man, but lost that decision in the second half, when one of the worst football days in recent Big Ten history reached its peak with a combination of rain and snow driven the length of the field by a northwest wind, the velocity of which often reached 40 miles an hour.

Before the peak was reached, however, the Gophers, outplayed all through the first half, were doubly fortunate in dodging the gale just long enough to recover a Badger fumble and push over a touchdown to win, 6 to 3.

The scoring in both cases was accomplished within the early minutes of each half. The clock stood at about six minutes of the first quarter when Mario Pacetti, 205 pound Badger guard, dropped back, with Tom Fontaine holding the ball on the Minnesota 39 yard line and the wind directly back of him, and made a great place kick. The wind had given the Badgers their opportunity, Fontaine kicking out of bounds on the Gopher eight yard line. Pug Lund, standing in his

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Those clever Blackhawks, who can fight as well as skate, leaped right back to the lead in the National league last night when they trimmed the valiant Bruins of Boston, 1 to 0. The game was played before more than 16,000, the largest crowd to view a hockey game in Chicago in three years and a gathering said to be equal to any which has turned out for any regular National league contest in the same length of time.

The winning marker was produced in 12:20 of the second period on a deceptive shot by Gottselig, with duly accredited assistance from both of his line mates, Lolo Couture and Paul Thompson.

Keep Firing Away.

After the Hawks had made their point they proceeded on the old gag that a good offense is the best defense, and followed up the theory to the extent that during the last period they fired 10 shots at Goalie Thompson's boots, while the losers were taking only two at Gardiner's padding.

The Hawks resumed the National league lead by virtue of the fact that they won while the erstwhile league leaders, the Canadiens, were taking it on the chin at the hands of the Detroit Red Wings.

The first period developed some nice team play and some exciting moments, although there was no scoring and only one penalty, the one being against Smith for tripping. The session was pretty much of a standoff in every way, a statement which is supported by the fact that each goalie made eleven stops, with each net minder having to really bear down for four of his saves.

Second Period Is Thriller.

There never was a more thrilling period of hockey played at the Stadium than the second one in last night's contest. The session started off calmly enough and it wasn't until the ninth minute that the first melee was precipitated by Coulter, Kendall, and Leswick. A minute later the second penalty of the night was meted out, the victim being Gracie for tripping.

While the Bruins still were shorthanded, the Hawks' first line got on the ice, and in the eleventh minute Paul Thompson barely missed scoring on his brother, following a pass from Gottselig. It was a terrific shot, which extended Tiny to the heights of terpsichorean effort. After the onslaught had failed Smith took the puck the length of the ice and Gardiner had to perform a little miracle of his own to ward off the shot.

Gottselig Scores for Hawks.

When the puck was rammed out into the open spaces again Couture picked it up and started down his left boards. Lolo carried the rubber over the Bruin blue line and then passed to Thompson, who was on the left ice and a bit nearer the cage. Paul made a straight lateral pass to Gottselig, who was in the middle of the Bruin defense zone. Gottselig jockeyed just enough to pull Tiny Thompson out a bit. Then he cut loose and whizzed the disc exactly where Paul's upholstery wasn't. The time was 12:20.

In the fourteenth minute the game really began to get tough. March and Short got put off for roughing. While March and Shore were off, Abel was sent off for tripping, a ruling that caused a protest from Capt. Gardiner, which was received with poor poise by Referee Daignault, who tried to push Gardiner back to his nets.

Quartet Protect Goal.

With the Hawks two men short, Gottselig served as the lone forward, while Conacher and Coulter formed the defense with Gardiner. The barrage which the Bruins laid down was terrific, but the Chicago quartet was equal to the occasion.

The third period also was red hot, but no serious threats developed until the ninth minute when the Bruins were on the verge of scoring, with Gardiner clear out of the nets. The danger passed when he sat on the puck about three feet south of the cage. Romnes got through the Bruin defense for a shot and Coulter busted through twice for blasts which almost knocked off Tiny Thompson's skates.

ARMY, PRINCETON CONSIDERED FOR ROSE BOWL GAME

Seek Eastern Opponent for Stanford.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Named to represent the far west in the Rose Bowl football game New Year's day at Pasadena, Stanford scanned the nation's gridirons today in search of an opponent from east of the Rockies.

No official move will be made until tomorrow. Either Princeton or Army, unbeaten and untied among the major elevens, is expected to get the call.

Duke university has a similar record, and Michigan, leader of the Big Ten conference, has one tie against it. Each will be considered for the assignment, but from sources close to headquarters it was learned these teams are rated secondary choices.

Stanford to Issue Invitation.

Stanford has the privilege of inviting the eleven it considers the best of the rest of the country to be its opponent.

Claude E. [Tiny] Thornhill, Stanford coach, will sit with masters and other members of the board of athletic control tomorrow, when Rose Bowl prospects will be considered. Coach Thornhill said that any team selected will suit him.

Princeton has won eight games and Army nine, but there is a possibility of each being beaten before their schedules close. Army meets Notre Dame and Princeton takes on Yale Dec. 2.

Closes Regular Schedule.

Stanford ended its regular schedule yesterday with a 7 to 3 victory over California. Mathematically, Stanford's record for the season is not as impressive to date as that of either of its two prospective eastern opponents. Stanford won eight of its ten games, losing one and being tied in another. It tied Oregon for the Pacific coast conference title, each team winning four and losing one.

Stanford's defeat was a 6 to 0 setback by Washington, accomplished on a wet and muddy field in Seattle by virtue of two field goals. Earlier in the season a scoreless tie was played with Northwestern in Chicago. The Cardinals scored 131 points in ten games, against 36 for the opposition.

Any claim Oregon had for the Rose Bowl assignment has been waived by Hugh Rosson, graduate manager of the northern team. Rosson sat in on the meeting last night when Stanford was invited by Tournament of Roses officials to represent the west and expressed himself as satisfied with the selection.

Bears' Rally in 4th Period Wins, 17-14

game might have gone to a conclusion with no further scoring, but suddenly, in the final period, Presnell tossed a perfect touchdown pass to Ernest Caddell, for a gain of 55 yards, and Portsmouth took the lead, 14 to 10.

This Spartan touchdown was made possible when, on fourth down, Bronko Nagurski was called for holding while a Portsmouth punt was in the air. The ball was called back and given to the invaders on their own 45 yard line. Before the Bears recovered from the penalty Presnell took the pass from center, retreated precipitately to avoid the rushing Bear linemen and fired the ball to Caddell as he cut to his left through the secondary defense. In less time than it takes to write it Caddell had outrun Carl Brumbaugh of the Bears to the goal line.

Along Comes Hewitt.

After the ensuing kickoff, Molesworth punted out of bounds on the Portsmouth 24 yard line. Schaake plunged twice for 2 yards. Then he went back to kick. Hewitt, as he has done many times this fall, crashed through and the ball bounded from his chest, rolling far toward the west side line. Sisk recovered. Then, with the Spartans in momentary confusion, Nagurski ran around their right end for the winning score.

Actually the game was decided in the first five minutes, despite the theatricals of the final period. In this time the Bears counted 10 points and definitely proved their superiority to Portsmouth.

Acting Capt. Hewitt won the toss and chose to defend the north goal. Brumbaugh brought back Caddell's kickoff to the Bears' 23 yard line. Nagurski hammered through, in two tries, to a first down on the Bears' 44 yard line.

Then came a pass, Molesworth to Hewitt, who lateraled the ball to Karr, and Karr ran to the Spartans' 13 yard line. Nagurski hit the Portsmouth right tackle for six yards, but two more thrusts at the line failed, and on fourth down Manders was substituted for Sisk and kicked a field goal with Brumbaugh holding the ball.

Hewitt Makes Great Catch.

The Spartans received the Bears' kickoff, and, unable to gain, punted to the Chicago 42 yard line. Three plays by the Bears and the score was Bears, 10; Portsmouth, 0.

Nagurski raced around his right end for 15 yards on the first. He followed with a 20 yard gain around the other end, and then, with Portsmouth anticipating another run, Molesworth again sent a short pass to Hewitt, who pulled in the ball with his left hand, and as he was tackled, passed laterally to Karr. Karr crossed the goal line in the extreme west corner. Manders scored the point.

The offensive play of both teams was remarkable. The Bears ran up 11 first downs to 12 for Portsmouth. The Bears, in 17 forward passes, completed 6 for 94 yards.

Portsmouth gained 125 yards from scrimmage as compared to 122 yards for the Bears. Nagurski in 18 attempts gained 124 yards on running plays, only one yard less than the entire Spartan back field.

own end zone, kicked out to his 36 yard line. Three Badger plays got eight yards and on the fourth down Pacetti came back to make his field goal.

The Badgers made a great goal line stand in the second quarter, halting the Minnesota attack on the four yard line with four downs to go. They made another in the first three minutes of the second half, taking the ball on downs on their own 13 yard line, but it was undone by the aforementioned fumble. Schuelke of Wisconsin fumbled on the first play, but recovered on his three yard line. On the next play, he stood back to kick, but the slippery ball didn't go back a yard from center, and in the resultant scramble Dick Smith, Gopher left tackle, recovered on the one foot line. Lund scored over left guard on the next play, and Bevans' try for the extra point was blocked.

PURDUE PLUGS ALONG

Purdue's 19 to 3 victory over Indiana was achieved in much the same manner that the Boilermakers accomplished their three other triumphs —by plugging along and awaiting an opening to send one of their many remarkable backs on a long gallop goalward.

An 85 yard return of a punt by Quarter Back Jim Peele in the second quarter set off the drive that gradually broke Indiana's spirit and stamina. The Purdue offense grew more effective as the gave wore on and in the fourth period the Boilermakers were gaining at will. They made two unbroken marches of 50 yards the last two times they gained possession of the ball. One of these resulted in the third Purdue touchdown and the other ended on the 5 yard line with the expiration of time.

The second Purdue touchdown came late in the third period and also was the result of long runs. Jim Purvis got this one in motion when he broke off tackle for 31 yards from Purdue's 44 yard line. Carter then made 25 yards in four attempts, the last one being a 16 yard sprint around end.

3 STRAIGHT FOR TROJANS

Southern California Saturday became the first team to win three straight football games from Notre Dame. The score, 19 to 0, truly represented the difference in the teams. The injury that sent Don Elser to the sidelines early in the game buried whatever hopes the Irish had for victory. Notre Dame's attack was impotent with the 225 pound full back out of the game.

Irvine Warburton, one of the greatest ball carriers Notre Dame has seen, scored two of the Trojans' touchdowns, and a forward pass, McNeish to Griffith, accounted for the other. Warburton's first touchdown was preceded by a 34 yard run which culminated on the 10 yard line, where Mazziotti forced the Trojan firebrand out of bounds. He carried it over on the fourth down.

Pass to Second Touchdown.

A 37 yard pass, Griffith to Bescos, placed the ball on Notre Dame's 8 yard line in the third quarter, and after the Trojans had been held for two plays, McNeish passed to Griffith in the end zone for the second score. Davis, Notre Dame's substitute end, was sucked in on the play and Griffith was standing unprotected when he caught the pass.

The last touchdown followed Clemons' interception of a pass from Pilney that was intended for Young. Clemons was brought down on the 29 yard line. Off tackle plunges by Warburton and Propst moved the ball to the one yard line, from where Warburton shot through his right tackle for a touchdown.

ILLINI, OHIO LOOK AHEAD

After sleeping off the effects of a thrilling battle for third place in the Big Ten standing, Ohio State and Illinois players and rooters began to look forward yesterday to what is in store for them next year.

Even in defeat a more pleasant outlook was in evidence on the Illinois campus than at Ohio State.

The Illini put the last ounce of their strength and fight into the struggle. There wasn't a complaint to be heard anywhere. Only a ball that refused to take orders from the toe of Dave Cook robbed them of a tie or a possible victory in a game in which they were outweighed and at times overpowered.

Most of the stars in the game against the Buckeyes will be back at Illinois for another year of activity, among them being Jack Beynon, Chuck Bennis, Frank Froschauer, and Bob Wright.

Coaching Troubles at Ohio.

Then, too, there are no coaching worries at Illinois. There are plenty at Ohio State. Reports at Ohio State following the Buckeyes' victory over the Illini were that a rather warm campaign will start at once for the removal of Sam Willaman as head coach and that even some of the Columbus newspapers will lead the drive.

This is in the face of the fact that Ohio State was beaten only once and in that instance at the hands of the champion Wolverines from Michigan. Until this situation is cleared up Ohio State football affairs will be very much in the air. On top of it all several of the Buckeye stars including Cramer, Conrad, Gailus, Oliphant, and Rosequist will be lost by graduation. Whoever coaches the Buckeyes through the 1934 campaign will find it no easy job to replace these players.

REVENGE FOR CHICAGO

To the Maroon way of thinking, the terrible 33 to 7 licking that the good Maroons of 1925 took at the hands of Dartmouth was more than avenged Saturday, for Chicago ran up a larger score and did not permit the enemy inside its 16 yard line.

It is true that the Dartmouth team of 1933 was not rated as one of the Greens' best, but it was good enough to hold Harvard to a 7 to 7 tie, play Yale to a 14 to 13 finish, and hold the undefeated Princeton Tigers to a 7 to 0 verdict.

Exceed Big Three's Total.

Chicago made 11 more points against Dartmouth than did Harvard, Yale, and Princeton combined. Dartmouth made 20 points against the so-called Big Three and it didn't come close to to scoring against the Maroons. Even if you scoff at comparative scores, you'll have to admit the foregoing numbers are significant in the light of Big Ten football, seeing as the Maroons scored only seven points against five Big Ten foes.

On the other hand, the Maroons never played any such football against the members of their own league as they did against Dartmouth.

The Maroons face 1934 without Vin Sahlin and Pete Zimmer, but they have one of the best backs in the game about whom to build their next year's outfit. It's been a long time since the Midway has had a fellow like Jay Berwanger.

JOE LAWS MARKS UP 5 TOUCHDOWNS TO LEAD BIG TEN

Joe Laws of Iowa is the 1933 scoring king of the Big Ten. Joe made five touchdowns in conference competition to top all other ball toters, his closest rival being Herman Everhardus of Michigan, who compiled a total of 29 points, one fewer than Laws' total. Everhardus' total was made through three touchdowns, five points after touchdowns, and two field goals.

Alfonse and Carter Third.

Tied with Everhardus in touchdowns, but 11 points behind him in total tabulation, are Julius Alfonse of Minnesota and Jim Carter of Purdue. Like Laws, Alphonse and Carter confined their efforts to the touchdown technique.

Other High Scorers.

Others who made more than ten points are Purvis, Purdue; Heekin, Ohio State; Renner and Fay, Michigan, and Fisher, Iowa.

BABY RUTHS BEAT JOHNSONS, 5 TO 2, ON COLISEUM ICE

Four goals in the last period gave the Baby Ruths a 5 to 2 victory over the Nestor Johnsons in a Chicago Amateur Hockey league game yesterday at the Coliseum. The winners advanced to second place in the league standing.

In the evening games the Litzinger Fords tied the Whiting Macks, 1 to 1; the Shannons beat the Roosevelts, 5 to 0; the Hornets beat the Piratos, 3 to 0, and the Jones Baumruckers beat the Bauers, 4 to 0.

The Butterfingers, who occupy first place, will play the Blue Ribbons tomorrow evening. Thursday night the University of Wisconsin will be here for a game with the Baby Ruths.

Midi Blaquiere, amateur forward from Winnipeg, is expected to arrive today. It is believed that he will be placed on one of the Chicago league teams.

LOYOLA BEATS FENWICK, 13-0; CLAIMS TITLE

Squabble Continues in Catholic League.

The Loyola academy football team defeated Fenwick, 13 to 0, before 8,000 spectators yesterday at Soldiers' field. By virtue of this victory over the west sectional champion, Loyola claimed the Catholic league title, despite the fact that its preliminary right to the east sectional crown is challenged by Mount Carmel.

Taking the ball on its own 20 yard line in the second quarter, Loyola started a drive toward its first touchdown. McCarthy climaxing a sustained attack with a 30 yard run to the goal. The same player carried the ball on a successful try for the extra point.

McSheehy Plunges Over.

In the third period Loyola launched another scoring attack from its 40 yard mark. After Loyola had advanced the ball to the Fenwick 30 yard line, McCarthy threw a pass to McSheehy which was good for fifteen yards. McSheehy hammered the center of the line for seven yards, and on the next play he plunged for eight yards and a touchdown.

A few minutes later Fenwick made a strong bid, reaching the Loyola 9 yard line before losing the ball on downs. In the last period Fenwick made a first down on the Loyola 5 yard line, but four plays netted a loss of 18 yards, the ball going to Loyola on the 23 yard line.

League officials did not recognize yesterday's game as a championship contest, for they already had granted Mount Carmel another chance at the east sectional title. Mount Carmel will get this opportunity Sunday when it plays St. Rita for the second time.

Used Ineligible Player.

In its first game with St. Rita Mount Carmel had used an ineligible player and was called upon to forfeit, but at a hearing last Thursday league officials threw the contest out of the reckoning and ordered it replayed. This action was taken after it had been established that Mount Carmel was not aware that the player was over the eligible age.

If Mount Carmel wins Sunday it will have a record of five victories and one tie and will be recognized as east sectional champion. Loyola finished its sectional schedule with four victories and two ties. In the event of a Mount Carmel triumph Sunday, the situation may be complicated further by a refusal of Fenwick to play another opponent from the east section in a championship game. It was reported that the Fenwick boys are through for the season and will turn in their uniforms today.

Lineup of yesterday's game:

The Sparta-Leaders soccer team won the Peel cup for the fifth successive year yesterday by beating the Swedish-Americans, 2 to 1, at De Paul field.

Playing with the wind in the first half the Swedes had a slight edge and after 25 minutes Halquist scored with a closein shot when the teams changed goals in the second period. ## OSTAPAVICH AND HEFNER SIGN FOR WRESTLING BOUT

Ernest [Dutch] Hefner, 238 pounder, has been signed to wrestle Dorne Ostapavich, the Lithuanian champion at the Coliseum Wednesday night. The Hefner-Ostapavich match will be one of the four supporting events to the George Zaharias and Gino Garibaldi finish match which is the feature.

Another newcomer, as far as professional wrestling is concerned, will make his debut on the card. He is Karre Krough, the former University of Chicago and All Conference wrestling champion. Krough learned his grappling at Hyde Park high school. He entered the University of Chicago in 1925 and the following year made the wrestling squad and won the all-conference championship by defeating two Big Ten champions.

CHRISTY MAKES SECOND BID FOR C. Y. O. RING TITLE

Faces Scoglio Friday Night in Stadium Ring.

One of the outstanding favorites with the fans throughout the third annual amateur boxing tournament of the Catholic Youth organization, which comes to a close Friday night at the Chicago Stadium, has been Jimmy Christy, Our Lady of Mount Carmel featherweight.

Christy, who battles Sammy Scoglio of Our Lady of Good Counsel for the 126 pound championship in one of the 16 bouts at the Stadium, has done all that has been expected of him so far. Whether he will win Friday is debatable, for Scoglio, a newcomer, has displayed plenty of ability in preliminary, quarter-final, and semi-final tests.

Wins Semi-Final Easily.

He knocked out Lawrence De Lude and Jim Doyle to qualify for the quarter-finals and then he defeated Ed Giffee to advance to the semi-finals. Scoglio didn't have much trouble winning a three round decision over Steve Srnelk of Joliet for the right to battle for his first major championship.

Christy has been boxing for three years. He learned to box at a summer camp and he liked the sport so well that he enrolled with the Central A. A. U. Within a year he had won the Central A. A. U. featherweight title. This is his second attempt to gain a C. Y. O. title.

Whips Marcy, Haberski.

Last year Jimmy attracted considerable attention in the tournament by whipping two former C. Y. O. champions, Bud Marcy and George Haberski. However, he was eliminated from the tournament later when he dropped a three round decision to Harry Booker.

SECURITIES ACT RULING AIDS BOND REORGANIZATION

Smaller Issues Exempted from Registration.

BY AL CHASE.

The way has been cleared for the completion of many pending real estate bond reorganization plans, of which there are hundreds in Chicago, through a decision by the federal trade commission exempting reorganization plans involving issues of $100,000 or less from qualification under the federal securities act.

Since the passage of the act last July many of Chicago's real estate reorganization plans have been held up because of the confusion of reorganization managers over the terms of the act. Qualification under the act meant delay and additional cost of the bondholders cooperating under the reorganizations.

Two Chicago Banks Ask Ruling.

The commission's decision definitely exempting reorganization projects involving issues of $100,000 or less was given in response to requests from two Chicago banks for a ruling. These banks were the Chicago City Bank and Trust company and the Mutual National bank. Their refinancing plans received the approval of the commission under the ruling.

Attorney John C. Tucker of the firm of Rathje, Hinckley & Barnard said the exemption on the plan submitted by the banks will result in a substantial savings to bondholders.

Found Commission "Reasonable."

Mr. Tucker said he found the commission, "entirely reasonable and open minded in the interpretation and administration of the law."

"I should like to say publicly that it is my opinion that any one with a reasonable problem will find the utmost cooperation from the authorities who have the administration of this law under their control."

In presenting their claim for exemption to the federal trade commission, Mr. Tucker pointed out that each bank served as depositary for the bond issues sold by them without compensation and that the reorganization committee was made up of actual owners of bonds who served without pay.

Exemption Is Requested.

Mr. Tucker presented the plan of reorganization used by the banks, submitted typical forms of deposit agreements and trust agreements used and asked the commission to exempt the plan from qualification under the act.

"It was held by the authorities that such a plan was not, in their opinion, within the contemplation of the act," said Mr. Tucker, "although the authority of the commission to exempt it from qualification was limited to those cases in which the issue involved was not in excess of $100,000."

General Cable.

Investors' Guide: Please tell me about General Cable.—Mrs. H. N.

Answer: General Cable corporation manufactures all sizes of copper wire. It also fabricates brass and bronze wires, tubings, copper rods, and related products. In 1930 it brought out a line of aluminum wires.

Loss of $304,000 in the third quarter of 1933 was less than half of loss for the corresponding 1932 period. The company lost $1,893,000 during the first nine months of 1933, against $2,410,000 during the corresponding 1932 period. Firming of raw material prices and pickup in business were responsible for the improved showing.

| | Gross rev. | Net loss. | Com. sh. | Loss per |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1932 .... | $ 717,000 | $5,024,000 | $15.55 | |
| 1931 .... | 2,071,000 | 5,272,000 | 16.23 | |
| 1930 .... | 5,563,000 | 2,068,000 | 9.73 | |

*Profit.

On Sept. 30, 1933, current assets amounted to $9,110,000 and current liabilities totaled $2,475,000, up about $1,800,000 for the quarter. No explanation for the increase was given, although the cause might lie in the $2,400,000 contract awarded on June 8, 1933, to supply copper cable to bring electricity from Boulder dam to Los Angeles area.

Profit and loss deficit at the close of 1932 amounted to $3,130,000. Funded debt due 1947, was $13,966,500.

There are outstanding 150,000 shares of 7 per cent $100 par cumulative preferred stock, 396,368 shares of no par class A, and 492,500 shares of no par common. Nothing has been paid on the preferred since Feb. 1, 1931. Nothing has been paid on the class A—which is noncumulative except as to years when earnings per class A share exceed $8 per share—since June 1, 1930, and nothing has ever been paid on the common.

Answer: These are income bonds and interest is paid, when declared, on coupons. When, as and if interest is declared on the bonds they will be paid to the holders of the coupons on presentation.

WHEAT LOSES 3¾ TO 4¼ CENTS DURING WEEK

Money Situation Is Main Influence.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Uncertainty regarding developments in the monetary situation obscures all supply and demand factors in the grain market.

For the 1933-'34 season the amounts of grain available for domestic consumption or export are definitely known and statistically the feed grain situation is regarded as the strongest in many years. It is one that under normal conditions results in unusually high prices. Only occasionally, however, does the supply and demand position enter into trade comment. The trade is almost unanimous in the belief the immediate trend of grain prices will depend on developments at Washington.

Drought Hits Wheat Belt.

While it is still early for the outlook for the 1934 wheat crop to be a factor in the market, the greatest concern is being expressed by local economists and statisticians over the probable crop outcome. Lack of subsoil moisture and excessively high temperatures were largely responsible for curtailing the 1933 wheat crop to such an extent that for the first time in history the yield fell below the theoretical requirements of the country. The moisture situation in parts of the southwest, west and northwest now is regarded as even worse than it was a year ago. East of the Missouri river the new wheat is reported generally good.

Unusual Crop Situation.

With drought prevailing over a large area and the department of agriculture committed to a program of reducing the acreage 15 per cent below the 1931-'33 average, the crop situation is unusual. Statistician B. W. Snow recently called attention to this condition and the probable effect if there should be another short crop in 1934.

There is no broad speculative interest in the grain markets at this time, and this has been responsible for the failure of prices to advance despite the strong domestic supply and demand position.

Liquidation was under way in wheat during the last week, and the close showed losses of 3¾ to 4¼ cents, with December at 82⅝ cents, May at 86 to 86⅛ cents and July at 88⅛ to 88⅝ cents. Ranges of wheat prices follow:

December corn was quoted around 29 cents a bushel, gold basis, at the close Saturday, or close to the lowest level at which that grain sold before the "new deal" commenced to have its effect on the market. Such a price is proving attractive to foreigners and the development of export business in consequence is not a surprise to the trade. Whether the sales abroad will assume large proportions cannot be determined, due to the uncertain value of the dollar.

As nature reduced the 1933 crop to the smallest total in about 30 years and the department of agriculture has opened its campaign to reduce the acreage of the 1934 crop by 20 per cent, the situation is one that needs only an aggressive demand for the cash grain to start prices moving rapidly higher.

Corn futures closed the week at net losses of 2¼ to 2⅝ cents, with December at 43⅞ cents, May at 50⅝ to 50¾ cents, and July at 52⅞ cents. Ranges of corn prices follow:

Spreading operations causing the selling of rye and buying of wheat—at times reversed—provided a good speculative trade in a nervous rye market. Liquidation was heavy, and there were times when prices dropped sharply only to recover within a short time. Expectations are that the tariff commission will raise the import duty from 15 cents to around 22½ cents.

More Foreign Rye Offered.

About 2,500,000 bushels of rye have been imported from the Danubian basin, and 1,000,000 bushels or more are offered from Hungary at about 38 cents c. i. f. New York.

December rye closed at 56 cents, May, 63½ cents, and July, 64 cents, losses of 2 to 3½ cents for the week.

Barley futures were off 3 to 4 cents for the week. May closed at 45 cents.

Liquidation affected provisions, due to liberal supplies and lower prices in hogs. The net losses on lard were 77½ to 87½ cents, and on bellies 27½ to 95 cents per hundred pounds.

Dollar Drop Proves Boon to Germany

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 26.—Germany is actively repatriating her long term dollar bonds and is reducing her short term external debt at a rapid rate because of the depreciation of dollar exchange, according to Robert S. Byfield of Byfield, Willard & Co., president of Foreign Bond Associates, Inc. Writing to his firm from Berlin, Mr. Byfield quoted a German banker as saying the slump of the dollar was giving Germany a bonus of $500,000,000.

Mr. Byfield estimated that the short term debts under the standstill agreement had been reduced since June, 1931, from about 6,000,000,000 marks to less than 3,000,000,000, with about one-third of the outstanding long term German dollar bonds repatriated in that period. He predicted that by Jan. 1, 1935, the short term financial position of Germany should be "quite comfortable."

In Three Groups.

"German dollar issues, of which more than 100 are outstanding, fall into three large groups," according to Mr. Byfield. "There appear to be a number of strong situations, chiefly industrials and utilities, which are repatriating their external bonds at a more rapid rate than the average.

"A second group comprises a large number of issues. Some state and municipal bonds and the weaker industrials which, entirely aside from the German foreign exchange position, will need or demand relief.

Loans in Default.

"The third group comprises those loans already in default, even in terms of reichsmarks. They will be reorganized provided the terms of the securities act can be complied with. Germany is having her first experience with the new securities act in connection with the issuance of scrip for a portion of the interest on the dollar bonds, beginning with the July 1, 1933, coupons.

"At this writing the registration statement is being completed by the conversion bank, but the federal trade commission's request for answers to supplementary questions is causing some delay."

JEWEL TEA CO. 4 WEEK SALES OFF SLIGHTLY

The Jewel Tea company yesterday reported sales of $879,669 for the four week period ended Nov. 4, less than 1 per cent under the $885,933 reported in the corresponding period of 1932. The company is operating 1,366 sales routes, against 1,338 a year ago.

Sales were $8,538,291 in the first forty-four weeks this year, against $9,331,743 in the corresponding period last year, a decrease of 8.50 per cent. The average number of routes operated during the period was 1,350, as compared with 1,336 last year.

Sales of the firm's subsidiary, Jewel Food Stores, Inc., were $327,241 for the four week period and $3,310,631 for the forty-four weeks. The subsidiary had an average of 85 stores in operation in the forty-four weeks. Comparable 1932 figures for the subsidiary are not available.

Position of Oklahoma Bank Reserves Improves

Oklahoma City, Nov. 26.—(AP)—State Bank Commissioner W. J. Barnett announced that Oklahoma's state banks now have the largest cash reserve they have carried in sixteen years and, on the whole, reveal an excellent condition as compared with early last summer. In 243 banks the cash reserve averaged 36 1-3 per cent.

PHILADELPHIA GROUP FAVORS FIXED DOLLAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 26.—Restoration of the gold standard, with a gold value for the dollar, was urged by the executive committee of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce today in approving a report of its banking and currency committee.

The latter report was transmitted to the United States Chamber of Commerce and administration officials.

"Maintenance of the integrity of our currency, restoration and continuance of the gold standard, with a fixed gold value of the dollar properly determined, balancing of public budgets, and the removal of restrictions on foreign exchange are vital essentials at this time to the recovery of business," the executive committee stated.

RETAIL HOLIDAY TRADE ACTIVE, SURVEY SHOWS

The Chicago Association of Commerce trade survey reports that retail sales in the department stores reached high levels during the last week by the advance promotion of holiday business. Displays and special sales in connection with the advance opening of the Christmas buying season have drawn crowds to the stores that are comparable only to those of mid-December sales in former years, the report says.

With an unusually successful fall season, retailers are expecting sales to maintain the recent high levels.

HOLDS LEGISLATION NEWLY ENACTED HITS PAYMENT OF TAXES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 26.—Charging that legislation enacted this year in many states which lessens penalties for tax delinquency may destroy the incentive to pay taxes, Municipal Finance, official publication of the Municipal Finance Officers' Association of the United States and Canada, says in its current issue that even in prosperous years tax collecting never was easy. Before the depression, it asserts, increasing levies made up for delinquencies.

"The reduction or remission of penalties and interest on delinquent taxes was legalized in twenty-one states," the report reads in part.

"Such charges were eliminated in many states if taxes were paid by a certain date. In Missouri the percentage of the penalty to be canceled decreases until the penalties are fully restored on all taxes still unpaid on Dec. 31, 1933. The result of these acts has been to bring in a flood of tax payments. The future effect, however, is awaited with fear, because those who formerly paid on time have been discriminated against.

"The present legislation, with the exception of the Kerner-Skarda act in Illinois, which provides that the county treasurer may be appointed receiver for the income of revenue-producing properties and may apply such funds to taxes as well as to operating expenses of the property, will tend to promote further leniency in the administration of tax-collecting laws. The pendulum will probably swing back when prosperity returns and years will have to be devoted to building up the morale of the tax-paying public. Meanwhile, municipal services may be expected to suffer from lack of funds."

Home Life Insurance to Maintain Dividend

The Home Life Insurance company of New York will continue its 1933 schedule of dividends to policyholders unchanged during the first quarter of 1934, approval of this being voted by the board of directors at its November meeting. The interest rate on policy proceeds left with the company also remains unchanged for the first quarter of next year at 4.6 per cent.

MAYER DENIES ASKING JUSTICE RECORD CHANGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 26.—Using the expression "pure fabrication" in describing testimony by William Fox, motion picture magnate, before the senate stock market investigating committee, Louis B. Mayer, executive vice president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, today made public the following telegram he sent to Ferdinand Pecora, senate committee counsel:

"I have read in the press the statement of William Fox that I told him I had caused the records of the department of justice to be changed in reference to the Fox-Loew merger. It is needless to say that I never made such a statement to Mr. Fox, and I certainly never made such a request to the department of justice or any other department or person. The testimony is a pure fabrication."

N. Y. CURB MART SHARES MOVE IN NARROW RANGE

New York, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The Curb market occupied a narrow trading zone last week and net changes were mostly of little consequence. The uncertainty surrounding monetary matters continued to make for caution on the part of operators, many of whom preferred a sidelines position.

Interest in the mining shares, which have been popular hedges against possible inflation, dwindled appreciably. Lake Shore Mines, Bunker Hill & Sullivan, Newmont, Pioneer Gold, and Wright Hargreaves encountered mild selling which put them moderately lower. New Jersey zinc also was easier after an early advance.

Lumber Orders Received Largest Since Oct., 1930

Lumber orders received in the week ended Nov. 18, the National Lumber Manufacturers' association reported yesterday, were the largest since October, 1930, totaling 273,549,000 feet, due largely to purchases in anticipation of the minimum prices now going into effect. Production was only 182,522,000 feet.

STEEL MAKERS FIND HOPEFUL SIGNS IN TRADE

Buying Is Expected to Expand.

With buying by the railroads and for public works expected to expand soon, and adjustments in prices due to be effected for the first quarter of next year, steelmakers are encouraged by considerable "underlying strength" in the market and are hopeful that production in December may exceed that of this month despite the usual year-end influences, according to the magazine Steel.

Operations at the end of last week stood at 28 per cent, compared with 17 per cent at the same time last year. The Iron Age reported on Wednesday that the national rate was 27½ per cent. In the preceding week the average had risen to 28 per cent, according to Steel.

Changes at Chief Centers.

In the chief manufacturing areas, steel work operations rose 1 point last week to 22 per cent at Pittsburgh, 1 to 32 at Youngstown, 2 to 48 at Cleveland, 5 to 51 at Wheeling, and 5 to 75 in New England. The rate was unchanged at 29 in Chicago, 20 in Birmingham, and 32 in Buffalo. Declines of 9 points to 36 per cent and ½ point to 17 occurred at Detroit and in eastern Pennsylvania, respectively.

"Such price adjustments as have been made for the first quarter are calculated to induce specifying and new purchasing," observes the magazine. "The majority of heavy finished products are unchanged from present market levels, but as most consumers have contracts extending to Dec. 1 which were booked at lower prices, substantial specifications are assured. Also, in products that have just been advanced for first quarter purchasing is expected to be accelerated."

Price Increases Reported.

The review reports that tin plate prices have been raised $12 a ton, wire rods $1, manufacturers' wire $2, wire nails $5, track bolts $3, bale ties $7 to $13, and boiler tubes $4 to $6. Manufacturers are contemplating an advance of $3 a ton on cold finished steel bars and $1 a ton on concrete reinforcing bars. The new prices will not become effective until the first week in December. Prices of sheet and strip, plates, shapes, and some bars have been extended for the first quarter.

Practically all the railroads have undertaken negotiations for rails, fastenings and miscellaneous requirements, according to Steel. Some of them will make their purchases with their own funds and not accept RFC credit.

Structural Awards Reduced.

The review reports that structural steel awards were reduced to 14,937 tons, of which 7,000 were for Mississippi river locks. "Pipemakers are looking forward to large requirements from Russia," it says, "but it has been intimated to them they will have to finance the sales."

Pig iron shipments during November have been larger than those in October and will continue to improve next month, it is shown by specifications.

Exports of iron and steel for October expanded to 164,755 gross tons from 103,799 in September and were four times as large as the tonnage in October, 1932. Imports fell to 46,873 tons from 55,706 in the preceding month.

Steel's iron and steel composite is unchanged at $31.59 and the finished steel composite $49.20. The index for scrap has fallen 25 cents to $9.33.

Rural Zoning Developed as Economy Move

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Rural zoning as a means of reducing governmental costs, alleviating poverty and promoting reforestation is a movement which is making considerable headway in northern Wisconsin, according to the Wisconsin Taxpayers' Alliance. Oneida county already has a rural zoning law which it is enforcing, and hearings looking toward adoption of a similar statute are being held in Vilas, Marinette, Langdale, Iron, Sawyer, and Bayfield counties.

Briefly, the plan of rural zoning is to take marginal or remote lands out of general agriculture and congregate the farming population in districts where it is possible to till the soil at a profit.

Profit Impossible in Places.

Wisconsin has found that there are many farms in remote parts of the northern counties where the land is not capable of being worked on a profitable basis under present economic conditions. At the same time families trying to eke out a living in these remote places insist that schools be provided for their children and that public roads be maintained throughout the year despite the high expenses entailed.

Under the Oneida county law, land is placed in two classes—one, where its use is unrestricted and two where it is to be used in reforestation and for recreation. Under the law families living on restricted land will not be dispossessed, but sale of such acreage for agricultural purposes is forbidden in the future. At the same time county officials endeavor to persuade persons living on undesirable farms to give them up, offering to place them on farms in areas where the county holds tax titles.

Expenses Unreasonable.

A number of instances were pointed out by the Wisconsin Taxpayers' Alliance where the taxpayers were being put under heavy expense. In one, Oneida county spent about $4,000 to keep roads ploughed for about a dozen settlers in the town of Stella. In another case a man residing seven miles from Woodruff demanded that the town plough his road and take his children to school. This the town was unable to do because of an empty treasury.

A man bought forty acres of land 18 miles from Minocqua for $50 an acre. The ground was good but schools and roads were lacking. This individual could reach his property only through a fire lane with locked gates. The taxpayers decided that the cost of maintaining such a settler provided a situation that should not be permitted to exist.

Labor Waste Reported.

In a fourth case it cost the taxpayers of Vilas county $1,400 to remove snow from roads for a man living in a remote place. The man's entire property could have been purchased for $800.

Use of restricted areas is limited to: Production of forest products, development of forest industries, parks, recreation camps and resorts and private cottages and buildings used for seasonal occupancy, hunting and fishing cabins for part time use, trappers' cabins, boat liveries, mines, quarries, gravel pits, and hydro-electric plants.

FEDERAL DEFICIT TOTAL ADVANCES TO 7½ BILLIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 26—The accumulated federal deficit on ordinary receipts and expenditures chargeable against them amounted, as of the end of October, to $7,589,000,000, according to the national industrial conference board. This represented the accumulation of the $903,000,000 deficit from the fiscal year 1930-'31, $3,153,000,000 for 1931-'32, $3,069,000,000 for 1932-'33, and $464,000,000 for the first four months of the current fiscal year.

The deficit of $464,000,000 in the first four months of this year, the board says, was $524,000,000 less than in the corresponding period of last year and includes the emergency expenditures of the government, which, under the treasury's new bookkeeping methods, are now segregated from current expenditures. Excluding the emergency expenditures the deficit was only $65,000,000.

STOCK MARKET RUNS CONTRARY TO THEORIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 26.—Something got out of order last week with one of Wall street's pet stock market theories in the mixup of unorthodox happenings. For months, or virtually ever since Uncle Sam's monetary unit began to cut its capers on the foreign markets, the market was supposed to go contrary to the dollar's movements, that is, to go up when the dollar was going down, and vice versa.

It was all right for bonds, particularly those bearing the imprint of the United States government, to string along with the dollar as it bumped to one low after another, but standard corporation shares were supposed to be a haven for the shrinking currency.

Averages Show Recovery.

Now the street sees a farewell to all that—for the time being, at any rate. The market's new policy seems to be to honor the rule in the breach rather than in the observance. At least that has been its practice for the last week. As a result the averages—on fifty representative issues—recovered nearly 2 points on the week, while the dollar was regaining approximately 2 cents of its lost ground.

More discomforting still to the theorists, market authorities have begun to opine that dollar stabilization might prove about the most stimulating influence imaginable to stock speculation. Some of them go so far as to guess that it might even set another major recovery movement in motion. The argument is simple. Uncertainties on the administration's monetary projects have been the market's chief handicap for weeks now, by common consent. What could be more logical, therefore, than that the removal of doubt on this score would inspire fresh buying by engendering fresh confidence and, through it, fresh buying all down the line.

Dollar Stabilization.

In this connection there has been a well defined report in circulation about the financial district for some days that stabilization, or "revaluation," of the dollar is in the imminent prospect—that it will come before the first of the year, in fact. Whether the wish was father of the thought, or whether somebody has been able to "foreguess" the administration's plans, as on so many other stock market occasions, did not appear on the surface of the unsupported prognostications. The fact that Washington made no change in its gold price for the last five days of the week, however, led many to the conclusion that dollar manipulation had finally halted.

Apparently the fresh verbal barrages loosed from the opposing camps in the big currency inflation fuss were without any effect whatever on speculative sentiment. Some of the n
